GEORGE REMUS

Having won liberty in a hard and dramatic fight to escape punishment for the killing of his wife, whom he charged had been unfaithful, George Remus today saw his hopes fade. Judge Lueders in Probate Court found him insane, and committed him to an asylum. Remus pleaded temporary insanity in extenuation of the slaying.

WINSLOW, Ariz., Dec. 30.

NEWSPAPERS talk of a "whispering campaign," suggesting that Herbert Hoover is not eligible to the presidency, because, working at his profession as engineer in various parts of the world, he has not spent all of the last 14 years in the United States. The Constitution says "neither shall a person be eligible to that office who shall not have been 14 years a resident of the United States."

HERBERT HOOVER, was born in the United States, has worked wherever he chose, in any part of the earth, which is the right of every American. He did not lose his citizenship or birthright by crossing the ocean.

His travels, seeing what science and engineering have accomplished elsewhere, have enabled Herbert Hoover to suggest on a sound basis, magnificent, needed projects for the United States.

The Grand Lama of Tibet is supposed to live cooped up in one place, but the United States doesn't need a Grand Lama for President.

WHEN they told Lincoln that General Grant drank too much whisky, he asked what kind of whisky, and suggested that the same be given to other generals.

It would be a good idea to find out just where Herbert Hoover has done his traveling and send some

Woodside Named in Audit

That Robert G. Woodside has between $15,000 and $20,000 deposited in a bank in his name remaining from unclaimed judgments received by him when he retired from the sheriff's office two years ago was brought out in the testimony today at Controller C. C. McGovern's audit hearing.

In his inquiry into the amounts of unclaimed judgments retained by sheriffs upon their leaving office, McGovern subpenaed William R. Brown, chief clerk in the sheriff's office and a veteran county employe, and interrogated him on the general system followed in the county with respect to returning claims.

Brown said that thousands of dollars in unclaimed judgments are turned over to the sheriff annually. These funds, the witness said, were deposited by the sheriff in his own name, the law on the subject authorizing the

LINDBERGH REACHES HONDURAS

BELIZE, British Honduras, Dec. 30.—(AP.)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, completing his second leg of his Central American tour, landed here at 9:45 a. m. (10:45 Eastern Standard time).

By his landing, the American good-will flier added a new record to his long list of achievements, being the first man ever to bring a land plane down at Belize, the only other airplanes visiting the city having been American seaplanes landing in the harbor.

Before leaving Guatemala City this morning Col. Lindbergh said that he expected to make the trip to Belize in three and a half hours. His landing at the British Honduras capital was made just three hours and 25 minutes after his departure from Guatemala City, despite the fact that he was hindered by some fog in the neighborhood of Belize.

It had not been expected that Col. Lindbergh would make a landing at Belize because the only available landing ground, a sports field at the northern end of the city, was not regarded as a very favorable landing place. The field is only 400 yards long and 80 yards wide, tapering down to 50. It also is swampy on the seaward side.

Murdered

MISS THELMA YOUNG

This 17-year-old girl, one of a family of 16 children, was brutally slain near her home in Washington, Pa., late last night. Her partly nude body was found in a field. A young Negro, Fred Drew, was arrested as a suspect.

ARREST SUSPECT IN WHISKEY RUN MURDER

INDIANA, Pa., Dec. 30.—Dave Tarbuch is in jail here charged with the murder of Tony Bill at Whiskey Run several nights ago. He has confessed to the slaying, police say. Of 32 murders committed at Whiskey Run in the last 12 years, Tarbuch is the first arrest made in any of the killings.

LAW WARNS CABARETS, INNS

Proprietors of roadhouses, cabarets, inns and dance clubs—all the "merry merry" places where revelers are wont to gather on New Year's Eve—were summoned by Chief of County Detectives George W. Murren today and warned against law violations.

Murren's warning covered all places outside the city. He put a ban on riotous celebrations and issued these instructions:

New Year's Eve revelry must cease at midnight Saturday night.

Sunday must be kept quiet.

Celebrations must not resume before midnight Sunday.

In the city Public Safety Director James M. Clark hopes to check the flow of liquor at New Year celebrations by stopping sale of ingredients for the mixing of "highballs." He said that proprietors of cabarets who sell ginger ale and cracked ice to patrons for use with liquor will lose their licenses and be arrested, and that cabarets and dance halls must close at 11:45 o'clock Saturday night, but may open for two hours Monday morning after midnight.

Prohibition Administrator John D. Pennington declared himself against staging one-night spectacular raids by his enforcement unit at New Year's celebrations. He said his organization would continue to function as it has during the 18 months he has been in charge and would not put on a special "side-show" demonstration.

REMUS SENTENCED TO ASYLUM FOR INSANE

CINCINNATI, Dec. 30.—(AP.)—George Remus, the former "king of bootleggers," today was condemned to the state hospital for the criminal insane at Lima as "insane and a dangerous person to be at large," just a week after he cheated the electric chair when a jury found him not guilty of the murder of his wife on the sole ground of insanity.

The decision was handed down by Judge William H. Lueders, of the Hamilton County Probate Court who spoke in unmistakable terms despite the finding of three alienists who sat with him in advisory capacities that Remus is "sane."

The alienists, who had no part in

U. S. GRAND JURY ASSAILS OIL JURY TAMPERING

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30.—(AP.)—Balked by the District Attorney office in its desire to return indictments in the oil jury tampering case, the federal grand jury here today made "presentments" roundly scoring the principals in the proceedings, and asserting that the evidence gathered constituted sufficient proof of conspiracy.

District Attorney Gordon had declined to draw indictments against Harry F. Sinclair, William J. Burns, and their associates who figured in the shadowing of the Fall-Sinclair oil jury, while the contempt cases against them were pending. Unable

FOUND DEAD IN FIELD

WASHINGTON, Pa., Dec. 30.—The slain, half-nude body of Thelma Young, 17, employed at the Washington and Jefferson College athletic training table, was found in a field near her home today.

A two-inch gash in her forehead, a blood-covered brick nearby and her torn clothing told the story of a murder that shook Washington from its early morning quiet.

An hour after her body had been found a Negro, Fred Drew, 17, was arrested as a suspect. He was found under a bed in his home at 162 Blaine street, near the field, and detectives said his first words were, "I didn't do it! I didn't do it!"

ONE OF 16 CHILDREN

Thelma, one of 16 children of Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester Young, 62 Altamont avenue, went to a movie last night alone. On her return she took "the short cut" over a path in a dark field that connects Baltimore and Altamont avenues. Halfway across the field she met her doom near the spot where, police revealed today, four other Washington girls have been threatened in the last three weeks.

There was evidence that Thelma had struggled to the limit of her endurance before suffering the attack which police felt preceded the murder. Beads from the amber string she wore lay scattered near the body and her torn clothing shaped a trail which indicated she had been dragged some 25 feet.

Within a few feet of her body a magazine she had bought after coming from the movie covered one of the two shoes which had been loosened from her feet. Her two-piece tan, checkered suit was scattered in a half dozen pieces.

SUSPECT SEIZED

Detectives said Drew, the suspect, had been unable to account for his movements last night and that his muddied shoes and soiled shirt were regarded as further evidence against him. In his room was found a mask shaped out of a black stocking.

William B. Dinsmore, chief of Washington county detectives, and Sergt. William Jones of the state police, who are directing the investigation, said they would use bloodhounds to test their case against Drew.

Dinsmore and Jones described Drew as a "young giant," six feet tall and weighing 180 pounds. They said he had fainted three times during the early grilling. According to city police, Drew has been suspected in previous attempts which have been made to attack girls in the same path. One of the girls who escaped told police she thought the thug was a Negro.

Thelma, who had nine sisters and six brothers, had been warned about using the "short cut" by her father, Sylvester Young, police were informed. Young is a foreman at the Hazel Atlas Glass Company and his family is held in high regard.

Thelma was well known to students at W. & J. through her work at the training table.

PROBE MAY BARE MORE "FOX" MURDERS

By International News Service.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 30.—Startling revelations in the Marian Parker kidnaping and murder case were promised today as District Attorney Asa Keyes ordered a sweeping grand jury investigation of the astounding confessions of William Edward Hickman, 19-year-old confessed kidnaper, killer and bandit.

While the new grand jury inquiry was called for the primary purpose of delving into the murder of C. Ivy Thoms, Los Angeles druggist, killed in a holdup of his Rose Hill pharmacy, Keyes indicated the investigation would attempt to clear up many of the unsolved phases of the abduction and brutal slaying of the little Parker girl.

The grand jury investigation was ordered following the dual confessions of Hickman and Welby Hunt, 16-year-old Kansas City youth, that the two boys planned and executed the daring holdup of the Rose Hill pharmacy which was climaxed by the fatal shooting of Thoms on Christmas Eve, a year ago.

HINT ANOTHER MURDER

Hickman admitted firing the fatal shot. Hunt confessed to his participation in the robbery, but denied responsibility for the killing.

The possibility that another murder would be brought to light was strongly intimated at the district attorney's office.

A. L. Driskell, well-to-do dry goods merchant of Alhambra, was found dead on May 25, last, beneath the high span of the Arroyo Seco bridge near Pasadena.

Police reported his death as a suicide.

Their investigation revealed that on the same day Driskell had gone to the Los Angeles bank where Hickman and Hunt worked as messengers and had withdrawn a large sum of money. No money was found on his body.

A "suicide" note found in one of his pockets was turned over to his widow without any attempt on the part of police to identify the handwriting. There was no inquest.

Mrs. Carrie M. Driskell, 42-year-old widow of the aged merchant and the step-grandmother of Hunt, reported Driskell as missing at 10 o'clock in the morning. His body was found under the world-famed "suicide bridge" later in the same day.

Following the confessions of Hickman and Hunt, Mrs. Driskell was questioned by the sheriff's office, but was released when she denied any knowledge of the Rose Hill pharmacy holdup and said she was unaware of the boys' activities.

Both boys, in their confessions, said they had concealed their crimes from Mrs. Driskell, but that the grandfather "surmised" there was something wrong.

In outlining the new grand jury inquiry, which will open next Tuesday, attaches of the district attorney's office indicated that Mrs. Driskell would be called as a witness.

PROBE OTHER DEATHS

The murder of a young girl, who was found strangled to death near Milwaukee, Wis., and the slaying of an aged, unidentified man, whose bullet-pierced body was discovered huddled by the roadside near Cottonwood Falls, Kan., also will be investigated to determine whether Hickman and Hunt were in any way implicated, the district attorney's office indicated.

Investigation of these two mysterious murders has been requested by Kansas and Wisconsin authorities.

That Hickman and Hunt had a third accomplice in their wild career of crime was revealed by the arrest in Kansas City, Mo., of Frank Bernoudy, 20, who is reported to have confessed that he aided the two boys in a number of their holdups of drug stores and restaurants.

Bernoudy's reported confession is considered by authorities here as another important link in the confessed crimes of Hickman and Hunt, which include a rampage of banditry extending from Kansas City to the Pacific coast.

Meanwhile, Hickman is awaiting his arraignment for plea to the indictment charging him with the kidnaping and remorseless murder of little Marian Parker.

Through his attorney, Jerome K. Walsh, who hurried here from Kansas City to defend him, Hickman obtained a delay until next Tuesday afternoon, when he will be required to plead either guilty or not guilty to the kidnaping and murder charges.

Observers of the case anticipate a plea of insanity. This defense also was indicated by the state's precaution in calling in allenists who examined Hickman and pronounced him sane.

FORBIDDEN TO ATTEND WIFE'S FUNERAL; SUES

WASHINGTON, Pa., Dec. 30.—"When I die I don't want you to go to my funeral," his wife instructed him, Ellsworth Wade, 44, Canton township, testified in his divorce action against Dora L. Wade.

the final decision supported it with this elaboration of their finding that Remus technically is sane:

"We also find that said George Remus is a psychopath and therefore a dangerous individual to be at large. We believe that he is a dangerous psychopath because he is unmoral, lacking a sense of ethics, emotionally unstable, being subject to unrestrained outbreaks of temper and rage and egocentric to a pathological degree."

Judge Lueders, in his decision said: "At the hearing six alienists of high standing in the community as citizens and eminent in their profession were called as witnesses.

"Doctors David I. Wolfstein, Charles E. Kieley, E. A. Baber, H. H. Hoppe, Thomas A. Ratliff and Howard D. McIntyre testified that in their opinion George Remus is now sane, and with the exception of Dr. Baber, all agree that George Remus is a dangerous individual to be at large.

"The evidence further discloses that George Remus at this time does not believe it morally wrong to commit further homicide."

DENIES MORAL WRONG

It was brought out in the probate court sanity hearing that Remus adhered to his previously expressed opinion that it would be a legal but not moral wrong for him to slay Franklin L. Dodge, Jr., of Lansing, Mich., former federal department of justice agent.

To Dodge Remus attributes all his troubles. Dodge was said to have been instrumental in working up the case which wrecked Remus' gigantic illicit liquor enterprise and sent him to the Atlanta federal penitentiary.

Dodge, then, according to evidence adduced at the murder trial, began an association with Mrs. Remus, which drove the former Chicago lawyer and "king of bootleggers" mad.

Girl Shot, Identifies Boxer

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 30.—"Joe" Tiplitz, professional pugilist, was arrested by police today after Miss Bella Roth had identified him as the man who shot her shortly before midnight last night.

Miss Roth is in a hospital in a serious condition.

According to Miss Roth and Miss Florence Phillips, her roommate, Tiplitz and another man rang the bell of their apartment last night and demanded admission. When Miss Roth screamed and ran away they shot her, she said.

Tiplitz was picked up on a suspicious person charge when he was found in a taxicab, the back of which was peppered with shotgun fire.

"KIDNAPED" GIRL WEDS

naped. Mrs. Mary McVay, W. C. T. U. secretary, the girl's aunt, started the search when she reported to the police that her niece had been kidnaped, presumably by bootleggers, who had felt the sting of prosecution.

A warrant charging Pocci with the kidnaping was issued by a local justice of the peace, and it was while the police were trailing the couple that the marriage was performed in Cumberland.

According to word from Cumberland, the couple appeared at the clerk of courts' home late last night and obtained a license. A half-hour later they were married by the Rev. C. R. Stroudsburg, who said there seemed to be no coercion on the part of the groom. The bride, he said, appeared willing to be married.

State police, trailing Miss Fordyce and Pocci, learned that they left Brownsville Tuesday morning in a small coupe, went to Washington, but returned to Brownsville Wednesday afternoon. They then went to Uniontown and thence to Connellsville and spent Wednesday night. It was from Connellsville that Pocci called a friend in Brownsville and asked him to call for his auto.

Pocci's friends say he was well supplied with money when he left Brownsville. Three months ago he was divorced from Helen Elliott, 2070 Twenty-fifth street, Detroit.

Mrs. McVay, in reporting the case to the police, said that her niece, a stenographer, had probably been kidnaped by bootleggers, in retaliation for suits filed by dry workers. Pocci had been convicted on a liquor charge.

When told that there was evidence of an elopement by Miss Fordyce and Pocci, Mrs. McVay still maintained that the girl had not gone away voluntarily.

of our other statesmen on the same trip.

They need it.

MR. HOOVER'S ancestors have been born and lived in America for six generations. Not that it makes any difference. The son of any immigrant, born in this country, might be, and often is ten times better than a man with ten American generations back of him.

Part of Hoover's absence abroad was devoted to war work, feeding hungry children. Would he make a better President had he spent that time at home, working for war profits?

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER, 88 years old, immediately changed his "stanch" at golf, when told by a professional that he stood too close to the ball. That change lengthened his drive by 20 yards and he won a nickel, solemnly bet, with his friend, General Ames, and went home contented.

MR. ROCKEFELLER has said that his success in the beginning was due to patience and economy.

It may have been due also to his ability to listen to others and take advice. That is a thing that many young men who would like to be Rockefellers have not learned to do.

FOR the first time, Chinese replace colored men as porters on trains. The Northwestern-Union Pacific lines have installed 12 young Chinese as club car porters in place of Negroes. All but one of the 12 American born.

They will work well doubtless, but the public, satisfied with excellent service rendered by colored porters, will not like them displaced. Colored men are descendants of those brought to this country against their will, as slaves and for that reason are entitled to especial consideration.

LINDBERGH'S visit to Guatemala and Nicaragua, flying over vast forests, in uninhabited tropical regions reminds you of two things:

First, Lindbergh is taking too many risks.

Second, this country should build a sea level canal through Nicaragua without delay.

A canal between the Atlantic and the Pacific without locks subject to bombardment should start now and be ready before traffic overcrowds the Panama canal locks, and there should be no nonsense about its being anything but a United States canal, from start to finish—the canal and the land on both sides.

ENTERING Guatemala City, Lindbergh flew between two volcanoes, "Fuega" and "Aqua," meaning fire and water, which reminds you of the average young American's life journey here at home. He travels between fire and water, the water of prohibition, and the fire water of the bootleggers. Many, unfortunately, "crash."

A LAWYER suggests that Hickman, kidnaper and murderer, may escape conviction in the first degree because doctors say the poor child died of fright, and wasn't actually killed by strangling and dismembering the body to which the murderer has confessed.

It should take a good lawyer to save that particular murderer from the extreme penalty. Whether he killed the little girl by strangling and butchering, or by frightening her to death, will make no difference to any jury. "I only frightened her to death," a weak defense.

YOUNG people may be interested in a definition of true love, printed by Frank S. Hoag on the front page of the Pueblo Star Journal:

"Love is that which a girl has who goes with a man who doesn't own a motor car. But maybe her idea is compassionate marriage."

ALICE CHARGES CRUELTY IN SEPARATION SUIT

By International News Service.

NEW YORK, Dec. 30.—Mrs. Alice Jones Rhinelander has commenced suit for separation from her husband, Leonard Kip Rhinelander, it was learned today. The New York Society man's mulatto wife alleges cruelty, inhuman treatment and abandonment in her summons and complaint.

Papers in the suit are on file at White Plains, N. Y. Sheriffs of three counties in the metropolitan district have received a copy of the papers, but Rhinelander is believed to be in Louisiana and copies of the summons and complaint have been mailed to authorities there, in the event that the Supreme Court here grants Mrs. Rhinelander's appeal for privilege of service by publication.

Judge Samuel W. Swinburne, Mrs. Rhinelander's attorney, said she probably would seek alimony of $1,000 a month. She is now receiving $300 a month from Rhinelander.

The Rhinelanders were married in 1924. A month after the wedding "Kip" began an unsuccessful suit to annul the marriage. A jury at that time held that Rhinelander had not been deceived by his dusky bride and decided he knew all the time during his courtship that she was a mulatto.

At the home of her father, a New Rochelle, N. Y., postman, Mrs. Rhinelander today declared she still loves her husband, but that a legal separation was inevitable.

"I love Leonard with all my heart," she admitted wistfully. "I will always love him. We are separated, but stone walls cannot separate lovers and distance lends enchantment to the view."

Quite coyly, then, Mrs. Rhinelander whispered a secret.

"Right here, in my own room, just back of a photograph of Leonard, there stands a vase filled with the most beautiful roses. He sent them to me on Christmas day and they are as fresh today as when I got them."

Then she revealed another secret:

"For more than two months I have been collecting material for a book that I am writing about my great experiences with Leonard," she said. "That is taking up all my time now and will keep me busy until I am ready to leave on my trip to Europe next summer."

SUB-ZERO COLD WAVE HEADED FOR CITY

A cold wave, plunging the mercury to 20 below zero in the Canadian border states, will be felt here in modified form tomorrow and Sunday, the Weather Bureau announced today.

A vast low pressure area stretching from the St. Lawrence basin southwestwardly to Texas, kept the weather here mild today, with likelihood of occasional light rain, changing to snow tonight and Saturday. By New Year's skies probably will clear and moderately low temperatures will prevail, Forecaster W. S. Brotzman said.

Breezes from the South and Southwest were wafted over this region today, but their velocity was so low that they required several hours this morning to dispel a dense fog.

DRY AGENTS NAB STAR OF STAGE

By International News Service.

NEW YORK, Dec. 30.—In a sensational raid on the Chez Helen Morgan early today, a large squad of Federal prohibition agents seized a quantity of alleged liquor, wrecked the interior of the exclusive night club and forced 300 formally-attired patrons to the street.

The officers arrested Helen Morgan, musical comedy star, as the owner of the establishment. She and eight of the club's staff were taken to a police station in a patrol wagon and charged with illegal possession of liquor.

The actress, who plays a leading role in "Show Boat," a Broadway production that recently opened here, was highly indignant. Clad in an expensive evening gown and ermine wrap, she excoriated the raiders for the methods of operation.

Bondsmen came to her rescue, however, and before dawn she was free on bail. She and her associates were to be given a hearing later.

A crowd of nearly 1,000 persons gathered on Fifty-fourth street as the alarmed patrons of the club dashed to the sidewalk. Broadway has not seen so much excitement in months.

The raid was made under the personal supervision of Regional Director Maj. Maurice Campbell. It was taken to indicate that further raids will be made on night resorts where preparations have been made to usher in the New Year riotously.

Most of the 20 prohibition agents were imported from Washington especially for the raid. They seized a dozen bottles of alleged liquor, and removed the club's fixtures and furnishings, valued at $50,000, to a warehouse.

Seizure of the club's fixtures marked the inauguration of a new policy by the local prohibition enforcement officers.

The crowd in the street hissed the raiders, and was promptly dispersed by police. Word of the raid spread along the white light district, and patrons of other night clubs quickly left for their homes.

SLAIN WITH HAMMER, ROBBED

His skull crushed by hammer blows and his trunk rifled, Carlo Sperduto, 60, Pennsylvania Railroad watchman at Bessemer, was found dead on the floor of his home at 1092 Bessemer avenue, North Braddock, shortly after 8 o'clock this morning.

"A big black fellow," was the suspected slayer's description furnished police by a Mexican roomer. The Mexican told police that the man, whom he had seen leaving the house this morning, was the person he had seen talking to Sperduto yesterday.

Sperduto, well spoken of by his neighbors, evidently put up a hard battle with his slayer. There was blood in the bedroom and a trail leading to the kitchen where the body was found.

The Mexican told police he had been awakened by a noise and when he reached the kitchen he saw a big black man leaving.

Sperduto's wife died last summer.

BINGHAM DEPUTY CONTROLLER

John L. Bingham, now employed in the office of Sheriff Robert H. Braun, will succeed Maj. William Rees as deputy controller when Controller Robert G. Woodside takes office next week, the latter has announced.

The new controller also announced the appointment of A. W. Powell as solicitor, succeeding Frank McGirr, and D. C. Davies as secretary. He also stated that he has appointed five other new employes: Nevin Woodside, Adam J. Siemon, Raymond B. Wood, Harry E. Lewis and Lloyd J. Hayden.

The following men and women now employed in the office will be retained, Woodside said: Arthur F. Stahl, Nicholas W. Sparr, Ralph W. Wilson, Thomas M. McClarran, William J. Grimm, Raymond F. Jones, Mabel Irene Bradford, Harry P. Letwin, William C. Schafer, Edwin B. Beismeyer and E. R. Grimes.

OFFICERS

NEGRO ROBBER SUSPECT SHOT BY POLICE

Fleeing from two patrolmen in Second avenue, near Brady street, at 6 o'clock this morning, Samuel Heard, 22, Negro, of 415 Kirkpatrick street, was shot in the right forearm and captured. Later he was identified as the Negro who had been detected robbing the home of Mrs. William Feldman, 3207 Kennett square.

Mrs. Feldman, alone in the house, found a Negro ransacking the second floor of her home. She screamed and the Negro dashed out of the house. Special Officer Christ Brandau, of Webster Hall, passing the house, gave chase, but the Negro escaped.

Patrolmen Dean Moriarity and Bernard Rafolski were hurried to the scene from the Oakland Police Station, and while driving in Second avenue saw Heard. He started to run and the officers opened fire.

Heard, after being identified by both Mrs. Feldman and Brandau, was taken to Homeopathic Hospital, where he is now under guard.

HOLD 3 YOUTHS IN AUTO THEFT GANG

A band of youthful automobile thieves, operating in the Bloomfield district, is believed by the police to have been broken up with the arrest last night and early today of three young men who later were held for court by Magistrate A. D. Brandon on charges of larceny. Vincent Screczynski, 18, of 3427 Denny street, was captured near the West Penn Hospital by Detectives John Daly and Charles Sweeney, who found him and another youth in the act of stealing a small car parked in Friendship avenue. After firing several shots Screczynski was arrested, but his companion escaped. Through Screczynski, the police learned the names of his companions and later arrested Frank Redshaw, 18, of 3425 Butler street, and Robert Wasilewski, 19, of 4206 Bessemer street.

ACTRESS SLAIN, TAXI DRIVER HUNTED

By International News Service.

NEW YORK, Dec. 30.—A taxicab driver was sought by the police today in the hope that he could throw some light on the mysterious death of Mrs. Mary Harrington, 29, a vaudeville actress. She was beaten to death, in the opinion of the authorities.

Her body, clad in silk pajamas and silk dressing gown, was found in her room, the walls of which were spattered with blood. There were several wounds about her face and head, indicating that she had been struck with a sharp instrument.

The police were informed that a large blue taxicab had been parked frequently in front of the apartment Mrs. Harrington occupied. When her husband, Guy Harrington, actor-manager, now playing in Wilkes-Barre, Pa., was informed of his wife's death, he exclaimed:

"It's that taxi driver."

Harrington said that his wife, who recently brought suit for divorce and won an uncontested action for $10,000, although the final decree has not been granted, had received attentions from other men.

The attractive young woman's death was, according to the police, similar to the baffling murders of "Dot" King and Louise Lawson.

Mrs. Harrington's dressing gown was bloodstained and there was blood on the floor. No weapon was visible, however. Search of the apartment indicated that her diamond ring and other jewelry were missing. She had advertised to sublet her apartment while she paid a visit to her mother in Joplin, Mo.

FALLS 210 FT. IN TRUCK; LIVES

L. D. McCall, 29, dropped 210 feet in an auto truck over a 65-degree embankment on the Pittsburgh-Duquesne boulevard, near Kennywood Park today—and escaped with lacerations!

McCall, driver for Baur Brothers Bakery, of East Liberty, dropped onto the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks in the truck, which was smashed almost beyond recognition. A slippery road caused the fall, police believed. McCall, in Braddock Hospital, is expected to recover.

P. R. R. Must Pay Big Judgment, Court Holds

Judge James B. Drew has handed down an opinion in Common Pleas Court refusing a new trial to the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, which was attempting to set aside a $52,000 verdict won by the Jeannette Toy & Novelty Company.

This verdict is the second granted against the railroad, the toy company once secured a previous verdict for $61,000, which the railroad company had set aside and a new trial granted, resulting in the $52,000 verdict.

The railroad company had constructed a culvert over Bull Run creek. In the spring of 1921 during a freshet the water overflowed into Fourth street, Jeannette, and damaged goods which the toy company had stored in its warehouse. The plaintiff alleged faulty construction of the culvert.

Lindy Will Help Map Industry, Rogers Says

WILL ROGERS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Dec. 30.—Lindbergh's Central American tour will do more than establish good relations. it will make people study maps that haven't studied anything but golf scores and menu cards in 20 years. And speaking of advanced aviation Wednesday on the battleship Pennsylvania I took my first catapult in a plane from a ship. From a standing start on a runway only 60 feet long, you are going 60 miles an hour at the end of it, shot by compressed air, just watch your head and see that you don't leave it behind you. Maybe you don't know it, but everyone of our battleships carries three or more planes. We are going great now if another disarmament conference don't hit us. Via airplanes,

WILL ROGERS.

PITTSBURGH-SOUTH HILLS SCOUT COUNCILS TO UNITE

Beginning the first of the year the Pittsburgh Council and the South Hills Council of the Boy Scouts of America will function from the same general headquarters, it was announced yesterday by A. T. Benson, executive of Pittsburgh Council. The consolidated council will be known as the Allegheny County Council, West, and the headquarters will be at 920 Fulton Building. The united leadership brings together two of the largest scouting groups in Western Pennsylvania, approximately 3,900 boys.

RECOUNT UPSETS FARRELL ELECTIONS

MERCER, Pa., Dec. 30.—Following the discovery that mistakes had been made in counting the ballots in several Farrell wards at the November election, a petition was presented to the court asking that Andrew Bobby be restrained from taking a seat in Council and that John Dvoryak be barred as constable. A recount of the votes showed that O. A. Harter had won over Bobby and that Victor Rosso had defeated Dvoryak.

REFEREE APPOINTED TO TAKE TESTIMONY

Judge Ambrose B. Reid of Common Pleas Court has named H. G. Florin commissioner to take testimony on the application of the Polish White Eagles of Carnegie for a charter.

JACK FROMME, FORMER BOXER, GRANTED DIVORCE

Jack Fromme, former well-known local boxer, was granted a divorce from his wife, Eva Wallace Fromme, in a decree handed down by Judge George V. Moore. Fromme gave his address as 328 Penn avenue, and his present occupation as a musician. He said his wife lived at Rankin. The couple were married in 1922 and separated in 1925. The pugilist charged desertion.

NEW STYLE MAIL THIEF TRAILS CARRIER

WHEELING, W. Va., Dec. 30.—A pussyfoot thief who trailed the steps of a mail carrier, gathering up the mail dropped into door slots of offices in the Central Union Trust Company Building, got away with checks and negotiable securities of undetermined value, an investigation by postoffice inspectors today disclosed.

The thief kept right at the heels of a carrier, it is believed, and deftly nabbed the mail before it was lifted by office occupants. Among the firms robbed were the Travelers Insurance Company and the Ohio Valley Industrial Company.

Empty envelopes and some of the stolen checks were found today along the banks of Wheeling Creek.

VIEWERS NAMED IN STREET IMPROVEMENTS

Judge James B. Drew of Common Pleas Court has appointed E. Z. Smith, W. M. McJunkin and F. S. Haller as viewers to assess damages and benefits arising from improvements made to Grandview Park, Azimuth way, Perchment, Bellerock and Berwin streets and Flemington avenue. Judge Drew also named C. W. Reamer, R. M. Kopp and S. A. Merkel viewers for Clearfield, Palisade and Kirkpatrick streets and Lincoln avenue.

money to be deposited and paid out in the individual's name.

"How much is Woodside's unpaid balance after two years?" questioned the Controller.

"Between $15,000 and $20,000 remain, but it is being paid out almost daily in checks from Woodside as the claimants appear," answered the witness.

"Has any form of notice ever been given to the persons entitled to these claims or has any effort been made to locate the claimants?" was asked.

"None whatever," Brown replied.

McGovern next summoned John D. Graham, retiring recorder of deeds, to the stand and asked what excess funds were in his possession.

"After being in office 12 years I have between $50 and $150 which I am turning over the county," answered Graham. "On the day I took office in 1916 I placed $25 in the cash drawer in order to have change for the operation of the office. I wonder if I may take this out?"

"Certainly," shot back the Controller. "I'm surprised that you did not take it back during your first three months in office."

On further questioning Graham said that the transcribing system in the recorder's office could be improved. He said he turned over about $60,000 a year to the county in fees.

"Besides the expense of running the office that $60,000 looks like a lead nickel in comparison," observed McGovern, adding that the photostat system would save the county hundreds of thousands of dollars in clerical hire in the transcribing department.

U. S. GRAND JURY

to obtain the indictments the grand jury decided to make its report any way for such action as might be decided upon.

Dorsey Hyde, foreman of the grand jury, insisted that the presentment which also named W. Sherman Burns, of the Burns Detective Agency; Sheldon Clark and Henry Mason Day, Sinclair oil officials; Charles G. Ruddy and Frank J. O'Reilly, must be acted upon by the district attorney's office.

Hyde said that the jury had been convinced for some time that the action of the oil men and the detectives constituted 'conspiracy to defeat the ends of justice," as charged in the presentment, which was prepared a week ago.

DOESN'T BLAME PROSECUTOR

The foreman declared that because of the many angles in the oil case now before the courts, he was not surprised that no indictments were drawn up.

"I would not expect the prosecuting officials to take any other action than they have taken," he declared. He explained, however, that the grand jury felt the evidence constituted such a clear cut violation of the law that the inquisitors were duty-bound to return the presentment to the court.

REED WITHHOLDS CHOICE OF THOMSON SUCCESSOR

Senator David A. Reed said today that it will be some time before he recommends appointment of a successor to Federal Judge W. H. S. Thomson, retired. There are a large number of aspirants for the position.

PITTSBURGHERS GET $700,000 TAX REFUNDS

WASHINGTON, Dec., 30.—Illegally collected taxes aggregating approximately $700,000 have been returned to Pittsburgh, according to information obtained today at the House of Representatives building. The amount to be returned to Pittsburgh is part of $103,000,000 in tax refunds ordered by the Treasury Department.

An appropriation of $150,000 more has been made available by Congress for further refunds by June 30, 1928, and $135,000 is the estimate for an appropriation for the same purpose to be carried in the supply bill for the treasury for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1929.

The $103,000,000 is for refunds already closed on the treasury books, of which the recipients have already been notified. Among them are:

ATTACKS KIDNAP VICTIM, THEN LEAVES HER

By International News Service.

REDLANDS, Cal., Dec. 30.—A manhunt rivaling that conducted for William Edward Hickman is in progress in Southern California and along the Mexican border today. The object of the search is Robert E. McClelland, paroled ex-convict, who kidnaped Evelyn Smith, 11, from her Oakland home on Christmas Day.

The child, who had been left with a Redlands welfare worker by her abductor, declared she had been attacked by him in the course of the automobile journey from Oakland.

Police expressed the belief that the man sought, aided by a confederate, is the one who Wednesday night chloroformed Mrs. Lawrence Ferguson here, and made off with $100, two diamond rings and two watches.

Mrs. A. Quayle, probation officer, left Oakland for Redlands last night to take the Smith girl back to her parents.

The child said she had accompanied her abductor when she was told that his well-to-do mother desired to adopt her.

DOUBLE FUNERAL FOR SLAIN

A double funeral will be held tomorrow when Mr. and Mrs. Levi D. Goughenour, 153 Flowers avenue, Hazelwood, victims of the man's insane rage at his inability to obtain employment, are laid to rest.

Goughenour shot his wife five times yesterday morning and then turned the weapon upon himself. Services will be held at the E. E. Roney funeral home for members of the family and immediate friends.

POLICEMAN DIES OF OLD WOUND

Internal ailments, resulting from a gunshot wound suffered seven years ago, resulted in the death yesterday of Andrew Katnik, 45, of 819 Washington street, Braddock, a borough policeman and a constable there for 15 years. Katnik was shot by Stanley Kryzwicki, of Washington street, Braddock, when he attempted to disarm the latter, who had threatened his wife and family. Kryzwicki then shot and killed himself.

FRATERNITIES NO BAR TO STUDY, SPEAKER SAYS

Fraternity membership does not interfere with study, said Dr. Charles A. Tonsor, Jr., chairman of scholastics of Delta Sigma Phi, in a report submitted today to that organization, which is holding its national convention at the William Penn. He produced figures to the effect that at 31 of the 51 leading universities the scholastic standing of fraternity men averaged higher than that of non-fraternity students.

SMALL LOAN BANK PLANNED IN CARNEGIE

A group of Carnegie bankers and business men are planning the organization of a small loan bank for the workingmen and women of the borough, it was learned following a meeting Wednesday night of those interested in the proposed organization. The bank will probably be known as the Carnegie Thrift and Loan Corporation, capitalized at $100,000.

JUDGES' FINAL SENTENCES ARE MILD

Two Criminal Court judges retiring from the bench after this week imposed prison sentences regarded by attorneys as extremely lenient.

John Bozcar, Wildcat Hollow miner, convicted November 3 of involuntary manslaughter, was sentenced by Judge Nelson McVicar to four months in the workhouse after a motion for a new trial was refused. On February 11 Bozcar, while drunk and driving his car recklessly, according to state witnesses, fatally injured Askland H. Merry, Jr., aged 13, of 405 Patterson avenue, McKeesport.

Arthur Walk, 27, married, of Presto was sentenced to the workhouse for one to two years by Judge Frank I. Gollmar, following a conviction several weeks ago on a serious charge. Walk was a school bus driver and was accused of taking a 13-year-old schoolgirl away from a carnival the night of May 24 last and attacking her in an isolated spot near Woodville.

FINED FOR 'GUN' CIGARET CASE

Dan Clemons, 21, Negro, of 1908 Irwin avenue, reached for his hip and whipped out a wicked looking "automatic" which proved to be a trick cigaret case, Plainclothesman Thomas Obronovich testified in North Side Police Court this morning.

Magistrate E. M. Hough ordered the cigaret case confiscated when its likeness to a real gun was demonstrated, and sentenced Clemons to pay a fine of $25 or spend 30 days in the workhouse.

Obrenovich testified that the Negro carried the case in a holster and handled it as though he meant business when Obronovich attempted to question him at Columbus avenue and Brighton road last night, while searching for a Negro who has held up half a dozen women.

TAKES POISON, ARRESTED

Leo McCullough, 28, of 1252 Steadman street, was reported to be in a serious condition in St. John's General Hospital this morning as a result of swallowing poison in his home yesterday. A charge of disorderly conduct is lodged against him at the North Side Police Station.

Gimbel Brothers
New York

General Electric found America in darkness and led it into the light. Ford Motors found it shackled to door stoops and led it out into the world. The Radio Corporation found it intensely bored and brought the world's entertainment to its finger tips. And Gimbel Brothers found it waiting for a fuller department store service and brought it that service in the Gimbel Idea.

A new generation of Gimbels grew up. A new generation that read nation-wide service into the Gimbel Idea. The Milwaukee and Philadelphia Institutions were prospering. The youthful Gimbel spirit in its new inspiration said, "We must hurry on to New York."

And 1910 saw the doors swung wide on Gimbel Brothers, New York. New York of the frantic pace—New York of mingled nations—New York, metropolis of the world, stopped a moment to welcome the colossal store of Gimbel Brothers—the most modern, comprehensive department store the country had seen.

Seventeen years have passed since that day. And Gimbel has become a household word in homes humble and majestic—a word on every tongue from the Bronx to the Battery. Within the past few months, improvements and additions to the amount of four millions of dollars have made the New York store ultra-modern by all the standards of 1928. And the twelve-story service building recently acquired makes all things possible to Gimbel Brothers, New York.

The Gimbel Idea, better service to more people; the Gimbel Brothers, tireless in their business efforts have made the Gimbel Brothers Stores the most powerful group in the department store world—a monument to the Great Idea.

THIEF RANSACKS HOME, GETS $6,100

Diamond rings valued at $5,000, Liberty bonds worth $1,000 and $100 in cash were stolen yesterday afternoon from the home of Mrs. J. C. Ruswinkle, at 720 North St. Clair street, according to a report to detectives. The robbery occurred while Mrs. Ruswinkle and a daughter were being given a demonstration in a new automobile. The woman told police the jewelry had been taken from a clothes chest on the second floor of the house and that other rooms in the dwelling had been ransacked. The money and bonds were taken from a small safe in another bedroom, the safe having been jimmied open. Entrance was gained by forcing a cellar door.

COURT DECIDES ELECTION TIE

Tied at the general election with 38 votes each for commissioner of the eleventh district of Mifflin township and unable to agree upon the customary toss of a coin to break it, Alvin E. Johnson, railroad yardmaster, and Elmer E. Kennedy, electric line foreman, both employed by the Carnegie Steel Company at Homestead, appeared with their respective factions at a hearing in Quarter Sessions Court upon petitions filed by each asking appointment at the hands of the court. Judge James R. Macfarlane decided in favor of Johnson and signed an order appointing him.

"Show Boat" Is Described As Educational Music Play Destined for a Long Run

By ALAN DALE

Famous Dramatic Critic of Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.

HERE at last we have a story that was not submerged in the trough of musical molasses; here we had a "book," the humor of which emerged naturally and the unusual quality of which struck you as something peculiarly different from the general trend of the musical comedy "libretto."

And I am speaking of the production of "Show Boat" in the Ziegfeld Theater. Could there have been a more delightful theme upon which to embroider the fancies and the whimsies of musical comedy than Edna Ferber's novel?

Although, when you first read it, you hadn't precisely a musical show in your mind's eye, you saw that nothing more appropriate or relevant to sterling musical entertainment than this Feber tome could have been discovered.

We had characterizations, sketches, diverting pictures of the Mississippi in the eighteen-eighties, and best of all, that fruitful theme of the "show boat" life. I do not hesitate to say that it was all so new to me and so unlike the imaginary stories of imaginary princesses in imaginary realms that it gave me a sense of delicious newness. For I think we all tire of the conventional musical comedy themes and the ornate people of the impossible realms and the kings and queens and the rest of it.

Here in "Show Boat" we had a gorgeous view of the "colored folks" in their own pet territory, and we listened to them chanting and singing and watched them all a-dance and alive with energy, taking an interesting part of a variegated story.

When Joe got down on his uppers and warbled "Old Man River," with his jubilee singers, you thought of "Porgy" and of other admirable "colored" selections, and you could scarcely believe that it was merely a "musical show." Of course, if you've read Miss Ferber, you'll recall the "white" characters and the very beauteous Magnolia and the heroic Ravenal and all the queer types that environed them so excellently. But, for me, the "show boat" scene was in itself worth the price of admission.

There was one scene showing the auditorium and stage of the Cotton Blossom during the third act of "The Parson's Bride," which was bubbling with merriment. The burlesque performance, with the old chap in the gallery firing at the villain and Cap'n Andy explaining the entire proceedings to the audience, and acting 'em, too, was excruciatingly droll. There was no horseplay, no buffoonery, no clownery, but most straight, legitimate humor—the brand that hasn't to be kicked at your shins. No comedian was necessary to hold up the action; no feat of vaudeville was required to bolster up the proceedings. The fun sprang naturally and gushed geyser-like from the splendid book suggested by Miss Ferber.

It was all set to pleasant, rhythmic music, composed by Jerome Kern; who is always musicianly and has outgrown his adolescence of mere tune. He has written in "Show Boat" some particularly relevant and harmonious stuff, some of it seeming to suggest the Mississippi and its turgid depths. That there are tunes, too, need not be overlooked, but what I say is that this new score is not designed for the lovers of thick molasses. There isn't a drop of treacle in its make-up.

The "colored" people were in their element. I think we are gradually beginning to realize that these "colored" neighbors of ours are so essentially dramatic and so innately theatrical that we can use them for almost any purpose that the theater demands. Take Jules Bledsoe, fr'instance, and see his keen dramatic instinct and hear his velvety tones.

Charles Winniger worked like a trojan, with results, and there—by me troth—was Edna May Oliver, fresh from the "legit," as funny as ever and as different from the usual musical comedy duenna as possible. And Eva Puck and Sammy White and Helen Morgan and Norma Terriss were all to the merry. Howard Marsh has never been in better voice.

Scenically, "Show Boat" was pictorial. It had eight scenes in one act and nine in the next, and these scenes were not blazing suggestions of opulence, but genuinely and almost educationally interesting views.

"Show Boat" is going to have a wonderful sail—no storms—no adverse winds—nothing to keep it from making port—goodness knows when. I don't.

Charlie Chaplin to Discard Cane And Derby, and Turn to Serious Drama in Portrayal of Napoleon

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS,

Motion Picture Editor of Universal Service

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 30.

IF HENRY FORD could have looked in the back yard of the United Artist Studio, I am sure he would have been tempted to take a few photographs as Mary Pickford's new Ford car was being admired by Douglas Fairbanks, Charlie Chaplin, Joseph Schenck, Ernst Lubitsch and four or five studio executives. Doug, as the donor of the car, was describing it in detail to Charlie, whose Rolls Royce, standing close by, looked on jealously.

No doubt Charlie was impressed. He couldn't believe it was a humble Ford, but then, neither could any of the rest of us. "Come on, some news, Charlie," I whispered between motor demonstrations.

"I am going to make 'Napoleon,'" he said.

My laugh brought Joseph Schenck to where Charlie and I were conversing.

"But he is, this time," said Mr. Schenck. "We are planning it for 1928."

Pinned down, the man who made the derby hat and cane famous, said that he starts a comedy the last of February—now tentatively titled "Nowhere"—and as soon as that is finished he will begin his research work on "Napoleon."

Every once in a while we are reminded how very uncertain life is. Last Tuesday we dined with Norman Trevor. He seemed in the best of health. He was a delightful host and he didn't complain of feeling sick. At 5:30 o'clock next morning he was rushed to the hospital and operated on for gastric ulcers. The latest word from the bedside is that he is resting comfortably. Mr. Trevor had just bought a new house on Linden drive. He was most enthusiastic, especially about Anna Q. Nilsson, who is furnishing it complete. "You needn't buy a thing," she told him, "I'll see that you have everything from cups to reading lamps." There is a reason for Anna doing all this. You see, her fiance, Ernest Krause, sold Mr. Trevor the house.

There will be no more gadding about to this and that studio for Buster Collier. When he finishes at Columbia Studios he moves to Tiffany-Stahl and there he remains. That is, if contracts mean anything. You see John Stahl has signed him on a long term contract and hereafter he will appear exclusively for Mr. Stahl and the company he represents.

There were so many people at the United Artist Studio to see that I didn't get as many calls made as I expected. But I gathered up enough news to make it worth my while. David Wark Griffith will remake "The Battle of the Sexes." This story made so many years ago by Mr. Griffith, while he was king-pin at the Biograph Studio, will, of course, be entirely different in its modern form. But it should be interesting the way he now has it worked out. I have a sneaking feeling although I couldn't get a single word of verification, that Lillian Gish may make her first appearance as a U. A. star in this picture. It is Mr. Griffith's next.

Paramount seemed to think that it was a big piece of news that Harry Cording had been signed to play the part of Stephens in "The Patriot." I suppose it is, although I couldn't get excited over it. Ernst Lubitsch, the director of "The Patriot," spent most of yesterday afternoon on the United Artists' lot. He was in conversation with Joseph Schenck, but I haven't heard that he is going to make a picture for United Artists. Even with my imagination I don't dare suggest this.

Screen "Bad Girl" Is Good Girl Now

Evelyn Brent, the safe-blower's "moll" in Paramount's great crook melodrama, "Underworld," and the player of more than a dozen criminal and "bad woman" roles in recent succession, will appear as a perfectly good and proper, although adventurous, young woman in the new picture "Beau Sabreur." This film made as a companion piece to "Beau Geste" shows Miss Brent as an American novelist gathering material in the Sahara. There she falls in love with the dashing young French captain, Gary Cooper, and sees a succession of brawls and battles with wild Arab tribes.

PSYCHOLOGIST COMING FOR LECTURE SERIES

Dr. E. C. Feyrer, known as a lecturer, author and teacher, will deliver a series of five lectures on the power of the subconscious mind, beginning Sunday evening, in Memorial Hall. They will begin at 8 o'clock and will be on successive nights. Seats are free.

Our Own

KENNETH THOMSON

Mr. Thomson, formerly of Pittsburgh, graduate of Tech, drama department, is a son of Mrs. Edith Taylor Thomson, former Pittsburgh concert manager, now living in Los Angeles with her son The latter has a role in "The King of Kings," coming next week to the Nixon.

Picture and Plays In Theater Programs

"The King of Kings," coming to the Nixon next week, opening with a special New Year's Day matinee, is described by a well-known publication as "the picture, of all pictures, that you must see, and, having seen, you will never forget."

Florence Reed, who is starring in "The Shanghai Gesture" in the Alvin, is supported by a cast including Percy Waram, Mary Fowler, C. Henry Gordon, Georgia Decker and Maym Kelso.

Maxwell Anderson's "Saturday's Children," with Ruth Gordon, playing a second week in the Pitt, opening with a special New Year's Day matinee next Monday.

Eddie Foy is coming to the Davis next week to headline the vaudeville in a skit, "The Fallen Star." The screen attraction will be Mary Astor and Lloyd Hughes in "No Place to Go."

"Chickie," serpentine dancer, has been especially engaged as the added attraction with "Dancing Around," the New Year's week burlesque offering in the Gayety. She will make her appearance at the Sunday midnight show and at the matinee and evening performances daily.

Film Star's Hobby Is Training Horses

Training horses is a hobby with Fred Thomson. The amazing things that Silver King, his famous white mount, does in pictures are all the result of his training and the obvious fondness which the horse has for his master.

Thomson has a stable full of horses and he spends much of his spare time with them.

Horses vary in personality and intelligence as widely as humans, Thomson says. He studies them carefully and teaches them tricks by means of voice tones and pantomime. Silver King has become so accustomed to this method of teaching that he will do entirely new tricks in every picture with one or two rehearsals.

During the making of "The Pioneer Scout" for Paramount, Mr. Thomson taught the horse to crowd in with a group of horses at a watering trough, to act annoyed when he could not reach the water, and then to back out, go and get a bucket and dip out a pail of water for himself by going around to the other side of the trough. The two first times the star showed the horse what to do, and when the cameras were ready to start, the big animal went through the act perfectly.

OPPONENTS TELL OF OPPOSITION TO CHEST

Representatives of organizations which feel it will be undesirable for them to affiliate with the proposed Pittsburgh Community Chest met last night in the Commonwealth Trust Building to discuss the matter.

T. J. Gillespie, who presided, and D. M. Clemson said the community chest slogan, "Give once and you are through," is misleading, in that most of the city-wide campaigns for funds in Pittsburgh are conducted not to provide current expenses of charitable organizations, but for building and endowment purposes and for educational and religious causes not included in the community chest.

C. C. Cooper said there was a tendency on the part of the executive board administering a community chest to assume an autocratic attitude toward participating agencies. Moreover, he said, the community chest executives were usually high-salaried men, whose pay came out of the chest and meant just so much less for the welfare work of the city.

Ralph W. Harbison, a national officer of the Y. M. C. A., said many Y. M. C. A.'s which had joined community chests regretted having done so.

Societies represented at the meeting included the Salvation Army, Presbyterian Hospital, Humane Society, Kingsley Association, Y. W. C. A., Association for the Improvement of the Poor, Allegheny General Hospital, Pittsburgh Free Dispensary, Lutheran Inner Mission, Council of Churches and St. Barnabas Home.

A resolution was adopted calling for a joint statement by organizations opposed to the community chest.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Engagement of Miss Edith Anne Rea Creates Interest Among Wide Circle of Friends

BEFORE she left for Palm Beach yesterday, Mrs. Henry R. Rea, of Sewickley Heights, announced that her daughter, Edith Anne, is to marry George Andrew Benney, Jr., son of Mrs. George Andrew Benney, of Sewickley. Mrs. Rea is so well known both for her social and her civic activities—as well as for the beautiful garden that surrounds her home—that the announcement of her daughter's betrothal will interest a wide circle of friends.

Last spring Mrs. Rea bought a home at Palm Beach and she and her daughter expect to spend the remainder of the winter there. No plans have been announced for the wedding.

Another engagement, this one involving a local man and an out-of-town girl, was announced Wednesday in New York, when Mrs. Harold C. Buckminster, of Boston, gave a luncheon at the Ritz Carlton. At that time, Mrs. Buckminster made known the betrothal of her sister, Emilie Wright, daughter of Arthur Wright and the late Mrs. Wright, of New York and Utica, to Graham Johnston, son of the Norwood Johnstons, of Shady avenue and Pinehurst, N. C.

Emilie Wright went to Dana Hall and is now attending school at Pine Manor. Mr. Johnston did his prep work at the Hill School and was graduated from Yale in 1926.

Because New Year's Eve falls on Saturday this year, the Pittsburgh Club advanced its annual ball two days and held it last night, with officers of the club and their wives receiving the guests. The ballroom was decorated with masses of Christmas greens, with clusters of red and silver holly and poinsettias, and mistletoe hanging from the chandeliers and draped over the doorways.

In the receiving group were Mr. and Mrs. J. Frederic Byers, the latter wearing a gown of white crepe and satin embroidered with silver; the Charles F. Holdships, Mrs. Holdship appearing in dark green velvet; the Walter S. Mitchells, Mrs. Mitchell wearing pale green satin; Mr. and Mrs. J. Denniston Lyon, the latter wearing blue; the Thomas S. McGinleys, Mrs. McGinley wearing wine-colored velvet; Allen T. C. Gordon and Richard King Mellon.

Supper was served for about 300, the tables bearing baskets of holly and poinsettias tied with huge bows of red satin ribbon.

Anne Virginia Pugh, debutante daughter of the Claude Freeman Pughs of Hamilton road, Thornburg, who has been home from Wellesley College for the holidays, left Tuesday for Cleveland to be the guest of a classmate, Theodate Johnson, daughter of the Homer H. Johnsons of Cleveland. From Wednesday night, when a dinner dance was given, the week is filled with entertainments in which Anne and her hostess will take part.

At the tea dance which the Robert Lee Wilsons of South Fairmount avenue will give tomorrow afternoon in the Twentieth Centry Club in honor of their debutante daughter Eloise, who is home from Wellesley College for the holidays, there will be three honor guests besides the debutante, Frances L. Palmer and Ruth R. Butler of Plattsburg, New York, and Elizabeth V. Freeland of Anniston, Alabama. These guests will assist the Wilsons and the debutante in receiving.

The aides will include Mrs. James Stephen Martin and Miss Beulah E. Kennard, sisters of Mrs. Wilson; Ruth Martin, her niece; Miss Jane Bennett, Mrs. Will Knox Dunlap, Mrs. John Joy Edson, Jr., Mrs. Lawrence Litchfield, Mrs. Robert J. McKay, Mrs. Joseph W. Marsh, Mrs. Charles Marchell Clarke, Mrs. Harry Phillips Davis, Miss Helen Balph, Mrs. J. R. Macfarlane, Mrs. Truman P. Gaylord, Mrs. John J. Jackson, Mrs. Howell Van Blarcom, Martha Cooper, Lyda Repp, Anne Pugh, Eleanor Baton, M. Sarah Lewis, Jean Hamilton and Anita Tim.

Preceding the ball at the Pittsburgh Club last night, always one of the most exclusive society events of the year, there were as usual many dinners, mostly rather small affairs.

In addition to the dinner parties for the older set, there was a dinner for the buds. Mrs. Julian Burdick and her daughter Frances gave a small dinner in the Pittsburgh Golf Club for Mary Louise Johnson, daughter of Mrs. W. Terrell Johnson.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Harden Church, who are very popular as hosts, gave a dinner in the club before the ball, and among others who entertained was Thomas Mellon.

The younger school set of Sewickley had a dance all of their own last night when Mrs. Ralph S. Richards and Mrs. Richard Gundry Jennings entertained in the Allegheny Country Club. The guests of honor were Mary C. Jennings and Charles Snowden Richards.

Another dance, which was preceded by a dinner, was given last night in the Country Club of Allegheny County for the school set. Mrs. James Mills Dalbey, of Roslyn place, and Mrs. Dickson Kearns Coyle, of Wallingford street, entertained in honor of their daughters, Elizabeth Mills Dalbey, an Ellis school girl, and Whilhelmina Coyle, a Westover girl.

Miss Mary Louise Haddock, a Sargent School girl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Haddock, Jr., of Ivy street, will entertain with a small bridge party Tuesday for her house guest, Miss Margaret Hammett, of Wilkes-Barre, formerly of South Bend, also a Sargent School girl. Miss Mary Thompson, of Uniontown, will be an out-of-town guest.

The marriage of Miss Sadie Weiss, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Antol Weiss, of Woodstock avenue, Swissvale, and Max Bigman, of Braddock, was solemnized Sunday at 6 o'clock in the Lincoln Club by Rabbi Heimlich, assisted by Rabbi J. Hammerman, of Youngstown, O., uncle of the bride. Miss Eleanor Wintner, of Duquesne, was her cousin's maid of honor, and Mrs. Sidney Bigman was matron of honor. The bridesmaids were Miss Ida Goldman, of Pittsburgh, and Miss Ruth Hammerman, of Youngstown. Morris Weiss, brother of the bride, was best man and the ushers included Maurice Zinman and Philip Schwartz. Dorothy Bigman was junior bridesmaid and Bernard Bigman, junior usher. Ruth Litman was flower girl, David Litman ring bearer and Dorothy Bigman, train bearer. Miss Julia Goodman sang. After an eastern trip, Mr. and Mrs. Bigman will be at home in Woodstock avenue.

Mrs. Harry C. Beacom, of Mellon street, entertained with a bridge luncheon in her home yesterday for her daughter, Miss Mary Louise Beacom. Sharing honors were Miss Edna Jane Haddock, who is home from the Harcourt Place School, Gambier, O., and Miss Myra Jean Dallenbach, a Birmingham School girl. Four tables were in play and Christmas decorations were used. Mrs. A. F. Taylor and Miss Margaret Carson assisted the hostess.

Miss Dorothy Thomas, of Spahr street, gave a small luncheon followed by a theater party today in honor of Miss Edith Russell, of Akron, O., who is visiting her uncle, Walter Hahn, of this city.

Miss Mary Agnes Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Smith, of the Bellefield Dwellings, is home from Brescia Hall, London, Canada, spendinig the holidays with her parents. She will return to school on Tuesday.

The Alcoma Country Club is to celebrate the fifth anniversary of the opening of the clubhouse with a dinner dance Monday night. The program is in charge of a committee including George W. White, chairman; George Stengle, J. M. Linn, Charles A. Riddell and T. N. Treese. Karl Heinrich will dance, assisted by Miss Virginia Shaw and Miss Madeline Ward.

Max V. Schoonmaker, of the Ruskin Apartments, and George L. Yaste, of Edgewood, are in Albany, N. Y., where they were guests of Gov. Smith at a reception in the executive mansion yesterday in honor of the daughters of Gov. and Mrs. Smith.

Argyle Lodge No. 48, Daughters of Scotia, will hold its New Year's dance Monday night in the Moose Temple, Penn avenue. Miss Mina Agnew is chairman.

Patricia Pitt

VISITING IN EAST

Miss Margaret G. Webb, who is a student at the University of Pittsburgh and a daughter of E. J. Webb, of this city, is spending the holidays with relatives in New York.

MISS MARGARET G. WEBB

DRAMA LEAGUE PLANS 4TH ANNUAL CONTEST

The Pittsburgh Center of the Drama League will hold its fourth annual amateur players' contest the week beginning April 16. Applications are to be sent to Mrs. Lane Thompson, Mattern avenue, before February 15, and although the contestants will be limited to 16, a waiting list will be established which can be drawn upon in case any group is compelled to withdraw. The winning group will be awarded the Samuel French trophy and a prize of $100, other prizes being $50 and $25 for the best presentation of a one-act play and $25, $15 and $10 for the best individual acting. The productions will be judged for choice of play, diction, interpretation and setting, and the contest will, as before, be open to any non-professional group in any city.

At the Christmas luncheon of the Norcross Club, which was held this afternoon in the Congress of Clubs, the following officers were elected: President, Miss Sue L. Taggart; vice president, Mrs. F. J. Erbeck; recording secretary, Mrs. William Barry; treasurer, Mrs. H. R. Welty. The luncheon, which celebrated the club's fifth anniversary, was an attractively appointed affair. At each place was a Colonial candlestick holding a red candle and in the center of one of the two tables was a decorated Christmas tree, while the other's center held a Santa Claus seated in his sleigh and carrying the gifts which were distributed to the guests during the afternoon. A program of artistry was opened by Mrs. Frederick H. Steel, who gave a musical reading in costume, with Miss Marilla Kohary at the piano. Miss Kohary also contributed piano solos and Mrs. Walter E. Close gave several readings. Mrs. Penn S. Spangler, social chairman, was assisted by Mrs. J. S. Alexander, Miss Charlotte Atkinson, Mrs. William P. Cooper, Mrs. A. H. Holliday, Mrs. William D. James and Mrs. C. C. Yingling.

Mrs. Raymond Kaufmann, president of the Council of Jewish Women, the other officers and the past presidents will receive Sunday afternoon at the New Year's reception which the Council will give in the Bellefield "Y." Miss Helen Rauh and departments heads will preside at the tea tables.

The Turtle Creek Woman's Club will meet tonight in the Y. W. C. A. rooms and will discuss American authors and some of their works. Mrs. W. R. Rauh, Mrs. L. G. Graham and Mrs. W. F. Huhn will be hostesses.

The volunteer service of the Pittsburgh Chapter, American Red Cross, will have a luncheon Wednesday in the William Penn Hotel. A guest speaker from national headquarters will be present and reports of the North Side disaster and roll call will be made.

A meeting of the cultural group of Hadassah Chapter will take place tomorrow afternoon in the home of Mrs. Julius H. Cohen, Bartlett street. A review of "The God of Night," by Tobantin, will be given and a discussion of current topics will be led by Mrs. A. H. Vixman, and old Hebrew melodies will be sung. The monthly board meeting of Hadassah will be held Wednesday afternoon at the Y. M. and W. H. A.

The holiday meeting of the Wilson College Club of Pittsburgh will take the form of a breakfast in Webster Hall tomorrow. Miss Isabel M. Alter, chairman, has on her committee Miss Margaret Lindsay Reber, Miss Isabel Zacharias and Miss Sara Pitcairn. Miss Kathleen Alter, class of 1928, has charge of the undergraduate "stunt."

At Tuesday's meeting of the Health Colony Club in the Congress of Clubs Mrs. C. B. McFail will give a travel talk, Mrs. J. R. Wahn will provide the music and Miss Elizabeth O'Neil will read.

Miss Angeline Casselle was soloist yesterday afternoon at the holiday meeting of the Pittsburgh Female College Association, held in the College Club. Miss Casselle sang several Italian and English songs and Mrs. Martha Steele gave a group of readings. Mrs. T. C. Donovan had charge of the program.

Doesn't Rain, Just Pours, Fritz Thinks

VANDERGRIFT, Pa., Dec. 30.—It never rains—ask Fritz Andring.

Fritz is in New Kensington Hospital with a bullet wound in his chest suffered, he says, in a tussle with his wife, Elisabeth. When he gets out he will have to face trial on a charge of liquor law violations. His wife is under $1,000 bail on a charge of felonious assault preferred by Andring's mother, Mrs. Katherine Andring. His sister, Margaret, 15, is seeking annulment of her marriage to George Neiman, 39, of Youngstown, O., who, she avers, she married under threat of death.

And as if that wasn't enough trouble, two Negroes stole Fritz's automobile and wrecked it.

300 AT C. OF C. PARTY GIVEN BY WHOLESALERS

Distributors and jobbers composing the Wholesale Council of the Chamber of Commerce gave a party for their sales representatives at the commerce chamber last night. Three hundred attended. James Rae, chairman of the council, presided. The speakers were W. P. Benson and Teal Williams, both of Pittsburgh, and Dr. D. W. Daniel, of Clemson College, South Carolina, who delivered a witty talk on "The Ideal Statesman." The entertainers included William David and a quartet, Arthur James, James Hughes, Miss Etta Cunningham and Miss Mabel King.

OBSERVE ANNIVERSARY. OF EMANCIPATION

The sixty-fifth anniversary of the emancipation proclamation issued by President Lincoln will be observed here under the auspices of the United Colored Societies of Allegheny County in the Central Baptist Church, Wylie avenue and Kirkpatrick street, Sunday at 2 o'clock. The Rev. Dr. Thomas W. Wallace, a former member of the faculty of Livingston College, Raleigh, N. C., will deliver the emancipation address. Other speakers will be Magistrate John J. Verona, Benjamin H. Giffen, Councilman James F. Malone and County Commissioner E. V. Babcock.

Kendrick; Mary Kreczkowski against Dimytro Kreczkowski; Louis Verba against Maria Verba; Mary Semenik against Louis Semenik; Jack H. Suggs against Lena Suggs; Ruth Simmonds against Edgar J. Simmonds; Susan Conley against John D. Conley.

NEGRO ROBBERS DRAW 2 YEARS IN WORKHOUSE

Eddie Williams and Herman Moultri, Homestead Negroes, each were sentenced to one to two years in the workhouse by Judge James R. Macfarlane in Criminal Court, after pleading guilty to robbing the store of James Beacoate, Braddock, of 17 suits valued at $510, November 30, and robbing John M. Runner, Negro, 544 Heisel street, Homestead, of clothing and household goods, December 7. Williams was given four months additional for violation of a parole granted him in August, 1925, for larceny.

HOPE TO PIERCE HULL OF S-4 TODAY

PROVINCETOWN, Mass., Dec. 30.—(AP.)—Divers hoped to penetrate the hull of the sunken S-4 off this harbor today for the first time since the submarine went down with its 40 officers and men nearly two weeks ago.

Whether they will be able to do so will depend entirely upon weather conditions. Southwest storm warnings have been hoisted on Monument Hill and the seas are high and long.

Operations were halted yesterday by the gale, but not before the second tunnel under the hull through which raising chains are to be passed had been almost completed.

The way was thus cleared for unwatering operations and the sealing of the S-4's compartments preparatory to lifting by pontoons.

There was some possibility that bodies of several of the victims might be brought to the surface today.

Work today was in charge of Capt. Ernest F. King in the absence of Rear Admiral Frank H. Brumby, control force commander, who returned to New London, Conn., for a change of clothing. It was the first time the admiral had quit the scene except for brief conferences at Boston with Rear Admiral Philip Andrews, commandant of the first naval district.

Admiral Brumby said he was coming back prepared to continue salvage operations all winter if necessary.

OVERBROOK BOARD OF TRADE PICKS OFFICERS

The Overbrook Board of Trade has elected the following officers for 1928: President, Richard Owen; vice president, P. C. Mayfield; treasurer, A. Opferman; secretary, J. J. Demskie; board of directors, William Hodby, E. E. Meier, R. S. Miller, J. H. Criswell, L. W. Lashbrook. The appointees to the Allied Board of Trades were Hodby, Meier and Opferman.

COURT DISSOLVES J. D. O'NEIL CO.

A decree has been handed down by Judge James B. Drew, dissolving the J. D. O'Neil Company of McKeesport. The late J. Denny O'Neil was the owner of the business, a department store, which has been taken over by others.

Died

MRS. J. I. BUCHANAN

MRS. BUCHANAN, EDUCATOR, DIES HERE

Educationalists throughout the country learned with regret today of the death Thursday night of Mrs. Eliza Macfarlane Buchanan, president of the Pittsburgh and Allegheny Free Kindergarten Association.

Mrs. Buchanan's death occurred at her residence in Bellefield Dwellings after a long illness. She was the wife of James I. Buchanan, president of the Pittsburgh Terminal Warehouse and Transfer Company. She was born in Newville, Pa., April 3, 1855, but came to Pittsburgh in 1884 where her sister had established one of the first kindergartens in the Pittsburgh district. She was largely instrumental in the development of kindergarten work to its present position of importance.

Mrs. Buchanan was a life-long member of the Presbyterian Church. She is survived by a brother, Dr. S. S. Macfarlane, Frankfort-on-Main, Germany; two sisters, Mrs. Eli Torrance, wife of the former national commander, G. A. R., and Mrs. John M. Patterson, Evanston, Ill. Judge James R. Macfarlane of the Allegheny County Common Pleas Court is a first cousin. Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

OHIO SUNDAY BLUE LAW FIGHT SPREADS

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O., Dec. 30.—The Dover Sunday movie fight may spread to this city. A theater in this city has advertised a vaudeville show, one performance of which will begin at 10:15 p. m. Saturday and continue several minutes on Sunday morning.

THE DIVORCE MILL

FOUND HER JOBS

Even though Harry C. Way was always hunting his wife, Marcella Way, a job, as she testified in her application for a divorce, Judge James B. Drew in an opinion handed down has refused her a decree, and dismissed the libel without prejudice.

WHO PAYS?

Such violent physical exercise as knocking a wife off a chair and then threatening to kill her is good grounds for a divorce, so Judge Harry H. Rowand has granted Emma Griffen a decree in her libel against Daniel J. Griffin. After Mrs. Griffin had finished giving her testimony and reciting various abuses heaped upon her by her husband, Judge Rowand wanted to know "Who's paying for this divorce?" "I am," Mrs. Griffin answered. "If I cannot make him do so." The Griffins were married in 1920. Mrs. Griffin lives in Oakmont.

BRUSHTON ASKS CAR EXTENSION

Citizens of the outer part of Brushton met last night in the Marion Social Hall, Frankstown avenue, and started a drive for street car or bus service from Frankstown avenue and Oakwood street out Frankstown avenue to a connection with the Verona line.

The meeting formed an organization, the Crescent Civic Club, with John L. Sullivan as temporary chairman and James A. Dean as temporary secretary, and arranged for another meeting at the Crescent school house next Wedesday night, when, it is expected, petitions bearing 10,000 signatures will be presented for submission to Thomas Fitzgerald, vice president and general manager of the Pittsburgh Railways Company.

GETS FUR COAT, SILK UNDIES

Apparel valued at $500, including a fur coat, silk underwear and dresses, was stolen by a thief who last night ransacked the home of Miss M. A. Creighton of 1212 Boyle street. The burglary occurred while Miss Creighton was out for the evening. The burglar used a key she had secreted in a hallway to open the front door.

EGGS TO BE SCARCER AS THIEVES RAID HEN ROOST

Walter Baldesberger, Upper St. Clair township farmer, reported to county detectives today that eggs will be scarcer in his neighborhood until a mystery is solved. Somebody ventured onto the Baldesberger farm during the night and departed with 150 of his prize chickens.

LOSES PURSE AND RACE

Miss Clara Kennedy, 28, of 811 Peralta street, lost her purse and a race to the same young man in Duquesne way this afternoon.

At Duquesne way and Ninth street a youth grabbed her purse containing $15.50, she told police, and ran along Duquesne way closely pursued by Miss Kennedy. After a block she gave up the chase to the fleet-footed thief, who disappeared up an intersecting street.

YULE ACCIDENTS KILL TWO

Accidents of the pre-Christmas season caused the death of two elderly residents today. Mrs. Julia Domachowski, 65, died at her home, 911 South Canal street, of burns suffered December 23 when her clothing caught fire from an open grate.

David Lamont, 85, died at St. Francis Hospital of injuries suffered when he fell, December 22, at his home, 4725 Sylvan avenue.

TWO HURT AS AUTO SKIDS ON ROAD NEAR RIDGWAY

RIDGWAY, Pa., Dec. 30.—Two Ridgway residents were injured on the Ridgway-St. Mary's road yesterday when their automobile skidded. They are Mr. and Mrs. Walter Murphy of Ridgway. They were hurled against the windshield with such force that the glass broke cutting both severely. They were taken to the St. Mary's Hospital.

FATES BLOCK JUDGE

JUDGE WILLIAM A. McCONNEL JUDGE FRANK READER

Judge McConnel, of Beaver County (left), was slated to receive the new Ambridge-Woodlawn Bridge from the county commissioners yesterday, for the people. He couldn't reach the bridge in time, he explained afterwards, because his family had taken his automobile to attend another kind of a bridge (card) party; so his fellow-worker, Judge Reader (right), present as a spectator, was called upon to accept the bridge. Judge McConnel arrived just at the close of the program, bemoaning the fact that an automobile he had commandeered had become stuck in the mud after he left Beaver Falls, forcing him to walk two miles.

SNIPPING OF RIBBON UNITES AMBRIDGE AND WOODLAWN

ABANDONS SEARCH FOR "DAWN"

HANDS ACROSS THE RIVER

Burgess Art W. Coombs of Woodlawn (left), and Burgess Charles Straube of Ambridge (right), having a final handshake yesterday over the ribbon that soon afterward was severed, formally opening the new Ambridge-Woodlawn $1,000,000 steel bridge which will bring much river freight to Beaver County and at the same time connect the two boroughs more closely.

500 AUTOMOBILES IN PARADE

Amid the bursting of aerial bombs and shrieking railroad and steamboat whistles, the van of the parade following the ceremonies that attended the formal opening of the bridge began its march toward Ambridge from the center of the bridge to martial music furnished by the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie and Pennsylvania Railroad bands. More than 500 automobiles were in the line of parade besides the marchers. Stephen M. Tkatch was master of ceremonies.

CUTTING THE RIBBON

A happy moment in the lives of Mrs. O. A. Kratzert, of Woodlawn (left), and Miss Freda Straube, of Ambridge, when they cut the red, white and blue ribbon in the center of the new bridge, permitting traffic to cross the structure, at the close of the ceremonies while thousands of citizens of the two boroughs cheered.

Ambridge-Woodlawn Bridge Dedicated

Before a crowd of 10,000 residents of Ambridge and Woodlawn, amid the screeching of whistles accentuated by the bursting of aerial bombs, the Beaver County Commissioners yesterday formally turned the new $570,648 bridge connecting Ambridge and Woodlawn over to the people of those boroughs.

The bridge was accepted for the residents by Judge Frank Reader of Beaver County Court.

The span of a cantilever type, has a 27-foot roadway and an eight-foot sidewalk, with a total length of 1,907 feet. Memorial shafts will be placed at each end of the bridge by the American Legion posts of the two boroughs.

Stephen M. Tkatch, a member of Ambridge Council, was master of ceremonies and introduced the various speakers to the huge throng that filled the roadway of the bridge at its center where, after the acceptance of the bridge by Judge Reader, Mrs. O. A. Kratzert of Woodlawn and Miss Freda Straube of Ambridge, daughters of the respective burgesses, cut the red, white and blue ribbon, officially opening the bridge to traffic.

The Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad and Pennsylvania Railroad bands furnished the music during the ceremonies, and later led a parade of 500 automobiles through the two boroughs. T. W. Wilkerson, consulting engineer of the project, presented the bridge to Beaver County Commissioners James P. Leaf, Art W. Coombs and Enoch W. S. Engle, who in turn gave the bridge to the people of the boroughs. Other speakers were: Senator George T. Weingartner of New Castle, Congressman J. Howard Swick of Beaver, A. R. Raymer, vice president and chief engineer of the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad; Burgesses Charles Straube and Art W. Coombs of Ambridge and Woodlawn, respectively.

HOOVER LIKELY TO ASK CONFAB WITH SHIPPERS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30.—Secretary of Commerce Hoover may call a conference of leaders of the shipping industry in January to further the advance of American shipping interests, he announced.

The proposal for such a conference first came from prominent shippers and Hoover will consult other leaders in the industry before acting.

Ruth Pens Poetry As She Awaits Chair

NEW YORK, Dec. 30.—(AP.)—Mrs. Ruth Snyder, awaiting electrocution at Sing Sing Prison for the murder of her husband, spends most of her time writing poetry and reading the lives of the saints, her attorneys said today.

Dana Wallace, of her counsel, said Mrs. Snyder has become intensely religious and that her poetry is in a religious vein.

Report Plane Heard in Raging Snow Squall

NEW YORK, Dec. 30.—(AP.)—Convinced that further search of the waters off the Newfoundland and Nova Scotian coasts for Mrs. Frances Wilson Grayson and her three male companions in the amphibian plane Dawn would be futile, the U. S. Navy has ordered withdrawn the five destroyers which for two days searched the waters about Cape Sable.

Authorities were unanimously of the opinion that the Dawn could not have escaped discovery if it had been in the waters covered by the destroyers and the dirigible Los Angeles.

Remembering her husband's remark that if forced down he would try to make land, Mrs. Brice Goldsborough, wife of the Dawn's navigator, urged that search be made inland for her husband, Mrs. Grayson, Oskar Omdal, pilot of the Dawn, and Fred Koehler, motor expert, who accompanied the plane.

Additional reports were received of an airplane circling about in the vicinity of Harbor Grace, N. F., Mrs. Grayson's destination when the Dawn left Roosevelt Field Friday night on the first lap of a projected flight to Croydon, England.

Mr. and Mrs. Burress, keeper of the Half Way House between Carbonnear and Heart's Content, N. F., and two others said they heard the drone of an airplane motor several times between 8 o'clock and midnight Saturday, while a snow squall was in progress. They believed the plane was trying to make a landing.

Four women at Harbor Breton said they heard a plane passing there about 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon, but having no knowledge of the Dawn's flight had not regarded their information as important.

Carbonnear is about half way between Harbor Grace and Heart's Content, whence came the story by a telegrapher of a radio message, signed with call letters resembling the Dawn, asking "Where are we? Can you locate us?" Harbor Breton is on the course the Dawn was expected to follow on its flight.

DRAWS ONE DAY IN WORKHOUSE

"If you are going to stay in this city you cannot do such things and you must go straight or you will be sent away," Judge James R. Macfarlane warned Charles J. Long, 25, of Steubenville, O., in Criminal Court, after he had pleaded guilty to larceny in the theft of clothes from the room of Peter Manos at 402 Penn avenue, where Long also roomed. He was arrested December 3 after a brother of Manos overheard him talking about the stolen clothes in a restaurant. Because he has been in jail since, Judge Macfarlane released him by a technical sentence of one day to the workhouse.

Pat Holds Off Lily's Plan To Be Married, Because Of Her Engagement

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Lily Lexington is the spoiled and only daughter of the Cyrus Lexingtons, who have always lived far beyond their means. She realizes her highest ambition when she becomes engaged to Staley Drummond, a rich bachelor older than herself. Downtown to meet her chum, Sue Cain, she is attracted by Pat France, a taxi driver. She asks him to drive her home. On the way she learns that he is cab-driving to raise money to finance a new kind of piston ring he has invented. Pat tells her that he is selling the cab to raise money for the piston ring, and she miserably wonders how she'll see him after that. Staley tells her the age-difference between them doesn't matter and tenderly kisses her. Lily realizes that she hates his love-making. Mrs. Lexington announces the engagement just as Lily's made up her mind to tell Staley that she doesn't want to marry him, and she feels like a mouse in a trap—helpless. The Lexingtons decide to get a chauffeur, who turns out to be Pat. Lily confesses to him she loves him.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

PAT'S fingers found the engagement ring on her hand and turned it. "That's why, for one reason. Because you're engaged to Drummond," he said. "Another reason is that I couldn't afford to have a wife like you, Lily. You'd go downtown and buy a hat and a manicure, and my salary for a week would be shot. See?

Lily looked at her manicured fingers, their nails like bits of almond-shaped coral, their skin like white velvet. Lovely soft hands that were almost as useless as the hands of a doll. . . . Hands that never had held anything heavier than a golf stick, or done any work more tiring than shuffling a deck of cards.

"You'd be the most unhappy girl in the world—married to me," Pat was saying now. "You wouldn't understand my way of living and my kind of folks any more than I can understand your kind. You wouldn't like my friends——"

"I'd love them!" Lily broke in, passionately. "I'd love them because they were your friends!"

They were going down another little side street, and all at once Pat turned the car into a driveway and stopped before a red brick building with big white letters painted across its front: "JETTERSON'S AUTO LIVERY."

"This," said Pat, waving his hand toward the building and grinning, "is the home of the Mercury Cab Company, and the place where yours truly is putting together the neatest little piston ring that was ever perfected." He honked the horn, and after a minute the doors of the garage slid back.

The car rolled into the gasoline-scented dimness, and Pat jumped out and vanished into an office at the right of the doorway.

In a minute or two he appeared, and with him was a short blonde man with a nice good-natured face who smiled broadly at Lily. He did not take off his checked cap nor remove an unlighted cigar from his mouth when he shook hands with her.

"Miss Lexington, I want you to meet the best friend I have in the world—Roy Jetterson," said Pat, looking from one to the other of them.

"I certainly am pleased to meet you at last," Roy Jetterson said, pumping Lily's hand up and down with vim and vigor. "I certainly am!—I'd like you to meet the wife, too. She's a great little woman, Miss Lexington. You and Sadye would get along fine, wouldn't they, Pat, eh?"

Pat said nothing.

Silence fell upon the little group.

"I'm expectin' Sadye to drop in here most any minute," Roy Jetterson went on, after an uncomfortable pause. "She's going down town to buy herself a spring suit, so she tells me this morning at breakfast. 'I'll be down about 9 for some jack,' she says. Cool, eh?"

He winked at Lily, and Lily winked back at him. She liked him in spite of his loud cap and shirt, in spite of his loud way of talking. He seemed to be smart and pleasant and sincere.

But a second later, when Mrs. Roy Jetterson walked into the garage on the highest heels that Lily had ever seen, she disliked her thoroughly and completely.

She knew she was "Sadye" the minute she came in, for her husband called her by her name and threw an arm around her plump figure as she snuggled up against the wide, candy-striped silk shirt he wore.

Sadye Jetterson must have been 30 years old when Lily first met her, and she was dressed like a flapper of 17. Her skirts barely reached her plump knees and she wore the thinnest of pink chiffon stockings. Her black satin dress was too small for her and showed too plainly a figure that was all curves.

On the front of her black satin turban was a large pearl buckle, and pearl earrings were screwed into her ears. She had a pretty pink, plump face and a high soprano voice. She giggled constantly when she talked.

"How do you do?" she greeted Lily, and laughed a little as she spoke. "Roy and I have heard so much about you. So much!"

"Is that so?" asked Lily, in a voice that was as hard and cold as a shower of hail stones. She hated the idea of Pat talking her over with these two friends of his. . . . And what had he told them about her? Had he told them how she had been running after him for weeks—climbing into his cab, stealing his photograph and refusing to give it back to him?

"I think we ought to go, Pat," she said, drawing herself up, and lifting her chin so that she seemed to look down from a great height upon the three people who stood beside the car. She held out her hand to the Jettersons and said good-bye to them without the shadow of a smile on her face.

"What do you mean by talking me over with those two people?" she asked Pat, furiously, the minute they were out in the sunshine once more. "Don't you know that a man ought never to discuss a woman with another man. . . . The idea of talking about me to that Jetterson man—and his wild-looking wife!"

"Is she wild-looking?" Pat asked mildly, taking a brier pipe from his pocket and putting it into his mouth. With his left hand he began to fill the bowl of it as he talked. "She's a mighty nice girl—Sadye Jetterson, whether she's wild-looking or not. She and Roy are my best friends, and 10 minutes ago you said you'd love my friends because they were my friends. That's why I wanted you to see them—and you have seen them. But you don't even like them."

Lily shook her beautiful head. "I never could love Sadye Jetterson, and she never could be any friend of mine unless she wore longer skirts and stopped wearing pink stockings on the street. I think she's terrible."

Pat struck a match and lit his pipe—all this with his left hand, as he drove the car through the traffic with his right.

"Do clothes make so much difference?" he asked, and Lily nodded.

"You can tell whether a woman's a lady or not, very often, just by the things she wears, and the way she wears them," she answered seriously.

"This day," she said a half hour later, when they stopped the car in a grassy lane that ran along beside an apple orchard, "was made just for us, Pat. The god of things-as-they seldom-are must have decided to give us one perfect day to ourselves, and this is it. Just look at that bank of clouds—it's like silver."

But Pat had no eyes for the silver-white bank of clouds that lay along the eastern horizon.

He was looking at Lily and he was laughing to himself. "After all this talk about Sadye Jetterson's pink stockings, I notice you're wearing them yourself," he said with a chuckle.

It was true. Lily's stockings had been bought to match the sea-shell pink sports dress she wore. And they were just the color of Sadye Jetterson's chiffon ones!

She flushed.

"It's all right when they match your dress," she said. "And she had on a black dress. . . . What makes you be so horrid to me this morning, Pat?"

"You're not so tender and sweet to me," Pat replied. "You accuse me of talking about you to the Jettersons. You bawl me out for it. But it was Elizabeth Ertz who told them about you. I never mentioned you to them."

"And who is Elizabeth Ertz?" Lily wanted to know.

CHAPTER XV.

PAT grinned sheepishly, and actually blushed as he began to open a tin of sardines with his pen knife. He kept his eyes on it as he answered Lily's question.

"Why, I don't know how to tell you who Elizabeth Ertz is. She's just—Elizabeth Ertz," he said awkwardly. "She's a trained nurse and a great friend of Sadye Jetterson's. An awfully nice, sensible sort of girl."

"Yes, but that's not what I want to know." Lily fixed him with her large, luminous gray eyes. "What I want to know is how she knows enough about me to talk me over with those Jettersons. She's never seen me—she doesn't know me!"

"She's seen you," said Pat, pouring coffee from the thermos bottle into two cups. "You remember a girl who was talking to me one day when you came up to my cab? A short little girl with big blue eyes?"

Lily nodded, her hair, like a golden plume in the sun that came sifting down through the new green leaves above them.

"Yes, I remember her," she said, and then aswed sarcastically: "She has beautiful big blue eyes, has she, Pat? "You've noticed them, haven't you?"

She remembered how she had asked him questions about the small plain girl the day she had found her talking to him, and how he had refused to answer them. She remembered how jealous she had been that day—and she was jealous now in just the same way.

"She's a great friend of yours as well as the Jettersons, isn't she?" she asked, and Pat nodded.

A man very often is as transparent as a sheet of glass to a woman—particularly if he happens to be in love with her, as Pat France was with Lily. And so she saw through him without half trying.

"You've been going around with her for a long time, haven't you?" she wanted to know. "You and she and the Pettersons must have had joyous times together—the four of you."

"We have," said Pat miserably, and then came out with the whole truth, as if he were tired of being cross-questioned. "And I'd probably have married her if I hadn't happened to see you that rainy day in Albemarle street. . . . W'd been going around together for nearly two years—she and I."

"And have you gone around with her much since them?"

Pat shook his handsome head, with its crisp waves of unruly hair. "I've never telephoned her since, or made a date with her," he answered, huskily. "That's how she happened to come down town to see me that day when you saw us. . . . She wondered what was the matter with

I WAS considering writing a short essay on the crying need for greater courtesy among motorists. One of those things carrying the refrain: "Do unto others as you, etc.," but, when, at Sixth avenue and Smithfield street a driver of a car much bigger than my car squeezed in an inch or so ahead of me, I forgot all about the essay, put on the gas, juggled my front wheels and squeezed in an inch ahead of him. The time saved in such grotesque maneuvers by motorists at the end of a year total, according to a Washington bureau of vital statistics, exactly 89 seconds—but motorists will continue to cut such didoes for a long time to come.

THERE are two things that Mayor Kline does exceedingly well—make a radio talk and dress. Clothes may not make the mayor, but it is doubtful whether Pittsburgh's executive can be tied in the matter of sartorial scenery. There is a city hall legend that once a tiny speck was noted on the Mayor's white collar and until an immaculate collar was produced the eaves of the building flapped dangerously and the floors rocked up and down. Mayor Walker of New York is considered by provincial New Yorkers as the best-dressed mayor. Mayor Walker is natty, nifty. Mayor Kline is well-dressed, well-groomed.

Pat Holds Off Lily's Plan To Be Married, Because Of Her Engagement

me. Thought I must be sick or dead or something. I'd forgotten all about her, to tell the truth."

Lily studied him with narrowed eyes as he broke a roll in two, buttered it and ate it hungrily. "Would you go back to her if I married Staley Drummond?"

Pat shook his head. "No, I wouldn't; but you're going to marry Drummond right enough," he said bitterly. "It's the thing for you to do, and you know it—just as I know it."

"Do you want me to?" Lily sat down on the grass beside him and put her warm flushed cheek against against his and her arms around him. She was perfectly frank and unashamed in her love for him.

And then he turned suddenly and seized her in his arms, holding her so close that it was hard for her to breathe. He kissed her and kissed her again.

He stopped for a second—long enough to murmur: "This is how I want you to marry him!" Then he kissed her again with rough tenderness all over her face and her hair and her neck, and Lily lay back in his arms and thought of Staley Drummond's kisses and how cold they had left her, always.

"I can't marry him, Pat—not if you want me," she said when he had let her go, and they sat looking at each other, their hands clasped on the fresh young grass that spread around them in a carpet of living green.

"You can't marry me, either. I can see that—more plainly now than ever before," Pat told her after a long pause. "No matter how much we care about each other, Lily, there are things that would always keep us from being happy."

"What?"

Pat laughed. "Well, things like Sadye Jetterson's clothes. You don't like the way she dresses, and so you call her terrible and wild-looking. But to me, Sadye Jetterson is the salt of the earth. . . . She's a wonderful housekeeper, she's crazy about her husband and her children, she has the most hospitable house your ever saw. It's a sort of second home to me. And the Jettersons are people you'd have to see lots of if you were married to me."

Lily kicked at the grass with the heel of her pink-and-white slipper.

"I shouldn't have said what I did about the woman. She's probably just as nice as you say she is. . . . And Pat, you talk as if I were a snob. I'm not. I fell in love with you when you were in a chauffeur's uniform. I'm in love with you now when you're in a chauffeur's uniform that my mother bought for you, and I'd love you just the same if you were in a convict's stripes!"

Pat took out his little French brier pipe and began to fill it. He stared down into the bowl as if he were a sand-diviner reading the future in its tobacco-scented depths.

"Yeah," he remarked, slowly and thoughtfully, "but after we'd been married for a while, and all the glamour was gone from me, how would you like being married to a poor mechanic who worked all day in Roy Jetterson's garage, tinkering at cabs and touring cars, and came home at night with grease on his overalls and under his nails? Who couldn't take you anywhere but to the picture show or over to the Jettersons to play cards? . . . Staley Drummond and his cars and that big house of his would look pretty slick to you then, eh, sister?"

"It would not, and don't call me 'sister,'" said Lily, "because I'll never be a sister to you. I'm going to marry you, Pat, or know the reason why!"

"I'll have to have something to say about that," Pat replied, gloomily. "I don't see myself letting you in for a load of unhappiness, and that's what I would be doing if I let you give Drummond the go-by and marry me. . . . I feel like a dog, as it is, coming out here and making love to a girl who's all ready to marry the man she ought to marry."

He began to stack together the plates and cups that they had used and to fold up the tablecloth. He packed up the hamper and put it back into the automobile. He found a piece of old newspaper in a corner of the snake-fence near them and used it to start a little fire. In it he burned up the egg shells and crusts of bread and other remnants of their little feast.

Lily watched him idly. It never occurred to her to help him; she was so used to having people scurry around waiting on her.

She took a cigaret from a shell-pink case that matched her dress and asked him for a light.

"All right—catch!" Pat said, and tossed her a box of safety matches that he took from his pocket. Then he went on stamping out his tiny bonfire.

Lily struck a light from the box. "I'm used to having men light my cigarets for me, I don't mind telling you," she drawled. "Instead of throwing a box of matches at me as if I were a tennis net or something like that!"

Pat flushed. "Sure, I know you are," he admitted. "You're used to men who know all the nice little things to do for women—and I don't know them. I've been too busy making a living all my life to learn all the frills, and I'd just drive you wild with my lack of politness all the time, if we were married. . . . Another thing, I think you ought to do some things for yourself. You're lazy. Do you know it? You could see I was busy here with this fire. Why shouldn't you light your own cigaret, after all? I don't like to see you smoke them, by the way."

Lily raised her very beautifully arched eyebrows. She got up from the grass, shaking out her skirts.

"Let's go home, Pat," she said. "Perhaps your right. . . There are lots of things we see from two entirely different viewpoints, aren't there? But there's no use in quarreling about them."

They got into the car and headed for home.

"I suppose two people from two different walks of life have married before now, and lived very happily," Lily said, sitting close to him with her hands locked on his shoulder, as she locked up at him. "If two people loved each other enough, little things like cigaret smoking or pink stockings with black dresses wouldn't make any difference. They'd get along somehow, without much friction, no matter what arguments came up—"

WE WERE BUZZING ALONG IN HIS DAD'S BUS AND UP COMES THE TRAFFIC COP, AND HE SAYS "LETS SEE YOUR DRIVER'S LICENSE" HO! HO! HA! HA!
AND THE JOKE WAS ON THE COP, AS NOISY HASN'T GOT A LICENSE! I THOUGHT I'D DIE LAUGHING!

"My dear, I'm all hot and BOTHered—I mean I'm PRACticably ready to ROLL over and BUTter myself with disMAY at this point because I've actually NEVer HEARD of anything so FOUL as this INcidence that happended to NOIsy and ARab, my dear, which ARab told me was a terribly good JOKE on a TRAFfic cop but, my dear, ARab's sense of HUmor is simply WEIRD and WITCH-like, no less, because he ALways thinks the JOKE is on somebody ELSE but it is practicably ALways on HIM or NOIsy and I mean THIS time it was on NOIsy, my dear, because the way ARab told me the STOry was that he and NOIsy were sort of VAGUEly barging along in NOIsy's father's CAR, my dear, and this TRAFic cop STOPPED them and wanted to see NOIsy's LIcense and, my dear, ARab says it was a JOKE on the COP because NOIsy hasn't GOT a license but of COURSE NOIsy will get a SUMmons or something for driving without a LIcense, my dear, which simply NEVer seemed to ocCUR to that pipsqueak ARab because he's too DENSE to SEE ANYthing but the fact that the COP couldn't examine NOIsy's LIcense because he didn't HAVE one—can you BEAR it, my dear? Well, ANYways, ARab is ALways ready to LAUGH and make a JOKE of it when somebody gets into TROUBLe unless it is HIM, in WHICH case he's the MOST luGUBrious SPECimen and imMEdiately wants to WEEP on your SHOULDer or something and give WAY to awfully GRIM and DREAR reFLECtions, do you know what I mean?"

MEDITATIONS of a MARRIED WOMAN

by HELEN ROWLAND

FREE-AND-EASY MARRIAGE

THE chief reason why "Companionate Marriage" won't work, is because the companionate HUSBAND won't work!

The quickest and surest way to rob a man of his backbone is to rob him of his responsibilities. What the average man needs, in order to bring out all his finest capabilities and talents, is somebody or something to work for, besides himself.

* * *

Every man needs an INCENTIVE to keep him digging and struggling to make a success of himself. Companionate marriage would make failures and playboys of half the men in the world!

HELEN ROWLAND

Moreover, companionate marriage won't be companionable, at all; because in it there will be no mutual interests between husband and wife.

WHY should a man wear his overcoat three years and roll his own cigarets, in order to build a love-nest for a lady, who may be on her way to Reno or Paris in a few months? Why should a woman waste her time embroidering H.M.'s initials all over the family linen, when she may have to pick it all out and put D.G.'s monogram in its place?

Why should two people collect silver and plant gardens and adjust themselves to each other's ways, and study each other's tastes, and work for each other's ambitions, if they can pull stakes and say "Day-day," the first time he drops his cigaret ashes on her dressing table, or she pinches the toothpaste the wrong way?

Oh no, a leased apartment is never a real home—and a leased husband or wife will never be a real mate or a real life-companion!

Why make marriage any EASIER than it is? It is so easy now, that most men are suspicious of it! It is easier to get married than to get a driver's license or to join a good club!

You have to prove your ability to run a car before you can get a driver's license, and to prove your good standing, morally, socially and financially before you can join a good club.

* * *

But all you have to PROVE in order to get a marriage license, is that you have the two dollars to pay for it.

* * *

Giving marriage certificates away like samples at a Food show won't make men and women value them. It's making things difficult and putting a price on them, that makes them desirable, in this world. If marriage were a prize and a privilege granted only to the fit, every man would be struggling to win a wife instead of to dodge one.

Free-and-easy marriage is TOO free—and too EASY!

Love's Embers

Absorbing Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

By ADELE GARRISON

Overcome by Memories, Lillian Reveals the Tragedies of Her Three Loves

AS I listened to Lillian's astouding statement that she would have gone back to her scapegrace husband, Harry Underwood, if it had not been for Marion Morton, her daughter by a former marriage, my first thought was a sensation of eerieness, of something uncanny in her speaking of her husband within so short a time following the request of Philip Veritzen that I tell her of his belief in Mr. Underwood's impending return to the theatrical world, of which he once had been so prominent a member. At least, I told myself, as I struggled to wipe the astontshment from my face, I should not have to worry over the best way of bringing up the subject of Harry Underwood.

"No, I didn't know it," I answered quietly. "I knew, of course, that he made a pretended fetch of your refusal to—"

"To look any longer like a third rate burlesque hoofer," she said bitterly. "Yes, that, curiously enough, is the thing I resent most in my memories of Harry. As you know, for years I have yielded to his wishes that I disguise my real age—as if any middle-aged woman ever really succeeded in doing that—by dyed hair and an atrocious makeup. Then when I learned that Marion was to be given back to me, I resolved that my baby should see me as I really was. Harry—made—it very hard—for—me at that time, but, Madge, I have realized since that a great deal of his unreasoning harshness then was due to actual jealousy of Marion. I have devoted myself so long to him that he was like a petulant child deprived of some treasured possession when he found that I was considering someone else before him."

"That doesn't excuse him," I said, "and surely you could have done nothing else."

"You are right on both those counts," she answered, "but that does not alter the fact that from the minute he and I separated he went straight to the devil as fast as he could, helped by Grace Draper. It was only by the mercy of God that he didn't have Dicky's murder on his soul, and nobody knows what other wickedness he had a hand in. It's a fearful thing to think that perhaps you have been responsible for driving a man to such acts."

"You driving him to such acts!" I ejaculated, scornfully. "Honestly, Lillian, I think you're getting senile, to say anything like that."

She smiled faintly.

"I know, Madge, that I must look to you like a sentimental wobbler," she spoke with a touch of self-scorn in her voice, and ignoring my protest, "but really, I am not so inconstant as you think. There have been three men in my life. One I loved; for another I experienced a brief infatuation, while with the third I had an affectionate and protecting comradeship. Many women have had more emotional experiences than I, and have not been so sure of their feelings."

She paused, but I did not venture to speak, for her eyes were looking beyond me, and I saw that she was lost in her memories.

"I gave the first love of my youth to Robert Savarin," she said, and I feared almost to breathe for I realized that she was unfolding her heart to me as she never had revealed it before. "He did not know it then, thought of me only as a grateful young girl to whom he had given the same helping hand he accorded so many other art students who admired his genius.

"I thought my heart was broken when he sailed away," the deep voice went on, "but I realized when I had grown a little older that youthful hearts do not break so easily. Later, much later, I met Tom Morton, and felt for him that infatuation which is the reason for so many unhappy marriages—and divorces. My experience was unusually terrible, for the man was a blackgaurd—I say it deliberately, though he is dead, and was Marion's father. Thank God there isn't a trace of him in her. She is mine, all mine!"

For the Lovelorn

By ELEANOR GALE

A Lonesome One

DEAR MISS GALE:

I am a young girl 20 years old and am what you might call an all-American girl. I am alone, and would like to travel and see the world. Could you suggest some place where I could join? If you do not understand what I mean, take into consideration the Army and the Navy where young men can join who have no homes. Is there such an organization with which young women can travel and where? I am very settled and am not crazy about men.

A LONESOME ONE.

I am very sorry, my dear, but I know of nothing that could possibly compare with the Army and Navy. Your restlessness is of youth, and we have all felt it at times. Sometimes elderly women who enjoy traveling like to take young women with them as companions. Perhaps you could find something suitable along that line.

Wondering

DEAR MISS GALE:

I must say that I really enjoy your most interesting column and believe that your advice is of much good to members of both sexes. This note is written by a young man of 21 years, who has been associating with girls for the last seven years. It is rather interesting how a fellow's ideas change as the years roll by. When between the ages of 14 and 19 it was my goal to kiss every girl as many times as possible, and I must say, without being proud, that I have succeeded to a very good average. As I reached the age of 20, my ideas seemed to have changed, and instead of trying to kiss all girls as much as possible, I have turned my affections to one very nice young lady, and the limit is a "goodnight kiss." However, I associate with other girls, of course, but this young lady attracts most of my attention. I certainly do not approve of any girl smoking or drinking. Now I am coming to you to solve a situation which happened at a dance the other night. This dance was a couple affair. I took a girl I was very fond of. As you know, the couples exchange dances throughout. Well, at one dance, another couple traded a dance with us, and after this dance was over the young man left the hall with my partner to converse and get refreshments and didn't return until the next dance was half over, the girl knowing she had the next dance with another fellow. Do you believe it was right of her to leave the hall with another fellow without the consent of her escort?

"WONDERING."

I see no reason why this girl shouldn't get some refreshments with her dance partner, Wondering.

The Unholy Four

DEAR MISS GALE:

We are constant readers of your column and positively do not agree with you. We are four high school seniors and we pet, drink, smoke and keep late hours and have one grand time. We think the girls and fellows that say they do not do these things "are all wet." We get a "big kick out of life" and everybody agrees with us. We are very popular, especially among the opposite sex. Our problem is this: No. 1 has been going with a married man for some time and loves him very much. He admits he does not love his wife. Would you advise me to give him up or allow him to get a divorce, as he is planning to do? No. 2 loves a fellow who is engaged to a quiet girl. He does not love me, so please, Miss Gale, advise me how to get him to like me. The fellows all think we are good sports. Miss Gale, you give advice just like my grandmother. We are determined to get all the pleasures that life has in store for us. THE UNHOLY FOUR.

Poor little girls, trying to be grown-up and sophisticated. I am quite flattered that my advice agrees with your grandmother's, and you would be much better off if you listened to her. As for your questions, the first one answers itself. You will ruin your reputation by going with this man, and no girl can afford that. The second question gives a hint as to the real matrimonial inclinations of men. You say he is engaged to a "quiet girl." He displays excellent taste, and nothing you can do with your attempts at wildness could make him change from the best to the cheapest.

Downhearted

DEAR MISS GALE:

I have been going with a fellow for 11 months and I love him very dearly. About two weeks ago, he met another girl, who seems to have taken my place. He still comes down, but not nearly so often as he used to. He refuses to return my ring, although he was wearing hers until about two days ago. Now, please tell me what to do, Miss Gale. Should I try to make him jealous? Should I refuse him dates? That would be very hard for me to do because I am simply "nuts" about him. Miss Gale, you told Lita Lee to forget her boy friend, but I would not lose hope so soon, Lita Lee. My friends always tells me "they always come back."

DOWNHEARTED.

Unfortunately, my dear, they don't "always come back," and there is no use in any girl's breaking her heart over a boy who has lost interest in her. This boy is not engaged to you, so why not retain your friendship with him even though he does go to see other girls, too?

"THE Paris of America" is often used to summarize the attractions of New Orleans. The visitor is delighted with the long succession of warm and sunshiny days that prolong outdoor diversions of every kind all through the winter. Bring your golf sticks as well as your guide book, because between strolls through the old French Quarter you will want to play the splendid courses with which the city abounds. Steamer trips on the river, excursions to nearby Evangeline land, horse and whippet racing, boating on Lake Pontchartrain—fill the days with interest. The restaurants are world famous. Social life is gay and colorful. Mardi Gras brings merry-making. And faces and tongues from many lands make the setting a truly cosmopolitan one.

TAX BOARD JOB FOR HOULAHEN RUMORED

Commissioner James Houlahen, Democrat, who leaves office this week, will be appointed a member of the Board for the Assessment and Revision of Taxes, according to reports today.

He will be given the place now held by Harry Lutz, another Democrat. Lutz, formerly Houlahen's secretary, owes his place on the board to the retiring commissioner.

Recorder of Deeds John D. Graham, who did not seek re-election and whose present post will be filled by Samuel D. Foster, also will be named to the board to fill a vacancy. Both appointments, it was said today, will be announced at a meeting of the commissioners Monday morning.

The resignation of Thomas Flanigan, chief clerk of the board, probably will be presented early in the New York, Flanigan desiring to devote all of his time to the aldermanic office in the First Ward to which he was elected in November. Verner Dawson, of the Twelfth Ward, is being boomed for that position, although there were reports yesterday that friends of former Police Captain Anthony Forrester, who was "fired" from the force for participation in the primary election riots, would like the place for him.

A mild stir was caused in political circles when it was learned that Owen McManus is to be chief clerk in Flanigan's aldermanic office. He is a brother of J. J. McManus, who won the constable fight in the Second Ward over Barney Kenna, brother of E. M. Kenna, head of the County Road Bureau. Flanigan generally was credited with aiding the Kenna-Anderson forces in that fight. Owen McManus formerly was clerk in the office of Alderman George Anderson, Second Ward, but was dropped in the course of the contest.

HOMESTEAD MAN ARRESTED

BUFFALO, N. Y., Dec. 30.—(AP.)—Charged with third-degree burglary and petit larceny, Raymond Pointer, 24, of Homestead, Pa., was in jail here today. It was charged that Pointer entered the offices of the Sullivan Lumber Company, and, failing to open the safe, stole a thermometer.

STORMS DELAY MA LINDY

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 30.—(AP.)—Because of adverse weather conditions, the flight of Mrs. Lindbergh from St. Louis to Detroit, the last leg of her return journey from Mexico City, where she spent Christmas with her son, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, was postponed today until tomorrow.

WOMAN SHOPLIFTER SENT TO MORGANZA

Anna Faulkner, 17, of 1516 Federal street, North Side, was sent back to Morganza by Judge James R. Macfarlane in Criminal Court after pleading guilty to two charges of shoplifting. November 28 she took a coat from one downtown department store and a dress from another. Three years ago she was committed to Morganza for the same charge through Juvenile Court and was on parole from that institution.

FRANKLIN MAN LEAVES $10,000 FOR MAUSOLEUM

FRANKLIN, Dec. 30.—Gen. Charles Miller, pioneer oil man who died recently at 84, left $10,000 for a mausoleum in his will which has been filed for probate. He explained that he gave upwards of 10 per cent of his income to charity over a period of 40 years. The residue of the estate is left to his five children and a granddaughter.

Love's Final Decision

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

AMONG the many letters I receive on the subject of promiscuous petting, I have chosen the following to print because it expresses a slightly "different" and very important phase of the problem.

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"I have been reading your articles about petting for some time and always agreed with you.

"My ideals were of the highest and I hated to cheapen myself by letting young men pet me on short acquaintance. But recently I had an experience which changed me somewhat. What is your advice, please, in a case like this?

"About a year ago, I was introduced to a handsome young man, whom I considered the very highest type of American manhood. From the day we met, he took up most of my time. For an entire year we were just pals and did not do the least bit of petting.

"We were seen together so much that my friends started kidding me about being serious with him. This started me thinking.

"I talked it over with a friend of mine, who is married. I told her I thought a lot of this man, but did not know whether I loved him or wanted to marry him.

"She advised me to let him become sentimental some lovely moonlit night. I followed her advice and let him pet me one evening.

"To my surprise, I found that his kisses were repulsive to me, because he has a marked case of halitosis, and that he is not the type of man I would ever care to marry.

"After that night I did not care to see him again. He was more devoted to me than before, however, and proposed marriage.

"When I told him I did not wish to see him any more he could not believe me. I have not succeeded in convincing him yet.

"I explained that I learned that night we were not suited to each other. He turned on me then and became extremely nasty. He is still annoying me with telephone calls and letters and will not be put off. What shall I do?

'Maybe if I had let him pet me when I first met him I would have found all this out before, and my time would not have been wasted. I will be watching eagerly for your answer.

"WORRIED."

You were wise, my dear, to reserve your final decision until the test of your friend's kisses and caresses proved whether your feeling for him was merely friendly or friendship plus, which is love. It would be the height of folly to become engaged to a man who is physically repellant to you. But it would be a still more serious mistake to promise to marry a man merely because of physical attraction. There will be long periods when congenial companionship, a pleasant disposition and dependable character of the man you marry will determine the happiness of your marriage. The occasional thrill of a moment of love will not make you happy unless you and he are also good pals and pleasant persons to live with.

Promiscuous petting usually makes physical infatuation the sole basis in choosing friends, sweetheart and life partner, because under the lure of physical attraction it is impossible to judge fairly of the mental and spiritual qualities which determine the success or failure of marriage.

That is why it is wise to establish, first, substantial friendship, good comradeship, spiritual and mental devotion, before indulging in caresses and kisses.

A man and woman in normal health, who are thoroughly congenial as friends and pals, and devoted to each other, usually find their first kiss of love beautifully thrilling and inspiring.

Your experience was unfortunate and exceptional. Were you not needlessly cruel and hasty, my dear, in completely turning against your pal of a year's standing, because his kiss did not appeal to you? No wonder he is puzzled and hurt. Why do you not retain and appreciate his friendship, even though you assure him firmly that you cannot marry him, and that it will be wise for you to go about with other friends as well as with each other.

A year is not wasted that builds up a true friendship. Such a friendship is precious aside from all thought of love and marriage. So do not discard this good friendship of yours even though you decide you cannot marry your friend because the thrill of love is lacking.

This is a frank discussion. But today we face our problems of romance frankly, knowing that the sunlight of truth dispels delusions and leads the way to the frank respect and comradeship, and mental, physical and spiritual suitability which make modern marriage, at its best, the finest, highest type of marriage the world has yet known.

For Symmetrical Arms

By MARIA JERITZA,
Prima Donna of the Metropolitan Opera Company and One of the Most Beautiful Women of the Day.

IN this day of the sleeveless frock, for afternoon, evening and sports wear, it behooves the woman who values her appearance to take every sensible measure to insure the loveliness of her arms and hands.

In order to successfully pass the test of beauty arms must not only be symmetrical, with firm, rounded flesh, free from every trace of flabbiness, but they must possess soft, velvety skin texture, and be either pearly white or deep cream, according to the natural hue of the skin.

If your arms are sallow the chances are you need a change from a heavy diet to a lighter one including less of meat, sweets and fatty foods, and more of cereals, cooked fresh vegetables and salads with light French dressing. Irrigate your system also by drinking seven glasses of water daily. If your arms are marred by acne, this simpler diet of well balanced food may clear your skin.

Scrubbing your arms and shoulders every day with warm water and pure soap, rinsing them with cool water, drying them vigorously with a Turkish towel, then rubbing them with 95 per cent alcohol should keep them prettily [illegible] and white provided you [illegible] right food, in regular [illegible] and exercise.

At this time of year many women are annoyed by "goose-flesh" or rough, scaly epidermis on their arms. The following regime should banish the goose pimples:

Rub a handful of rough kitchen salt on your Turkish wash-cloth and with it massage your arms and shoulders briskly. After a few moments of this massage every bit of loose skin will disappear and your skin will tingle with renewed circulation. Then pat in cold cream, or, if your arms are scrawny, substitute a good skin food like lanolin.

Housework—especially sweeping, scrubbing and hanging clothes on the line—is as good exercise as any that can be devised for symmetry of the arms. The following exercise is designed to bring beautiful proportions to the forearms and wrists:

Extend your arms straight out from the shoulders at either side. Clench your fists as tightly as you can and keep them in this position while you rotate your hands in circles about your wrists as pivots, first to the front, up and back 10 times, then reversing the movement to the back and down. Finally, with clenched fists, move your hands as far up and down as you can without moving your arms. Swimming is a wonderful means of bringing symmetry to the arms.

If you will adopt these suggestions you will be sure to note, but as time goes on, that your arms are growing more shapely, white and beautiful.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

Saturday, December 31

The curse of Father Kronus is all but fulfilled. The opposite Arc of the Cycle has been re-struck.—
MORYA.

THE old year passes out under what is astrologically denominated "mixed influences." Old Father Time is in the saddle, in trine aspect with Luna, ready to break through the chrysalis of sobriety and solemnity and participate in the royal welcome to the New Year; also to confer many benefits of substance and reward for those of his children who have been patient and industrious. Be careful in employment and sign all papers cautiously.

Those whose birthday it is may have a steady year of growth with rich returns for diligence and perseverance—for the steadfast pursuit of things worthwhile. They should sign all writings carefully and safeguard the employment.

A child born on this day should have patience, perseverance and diligence but may need some training as to the honorable and veracious avenues to success.

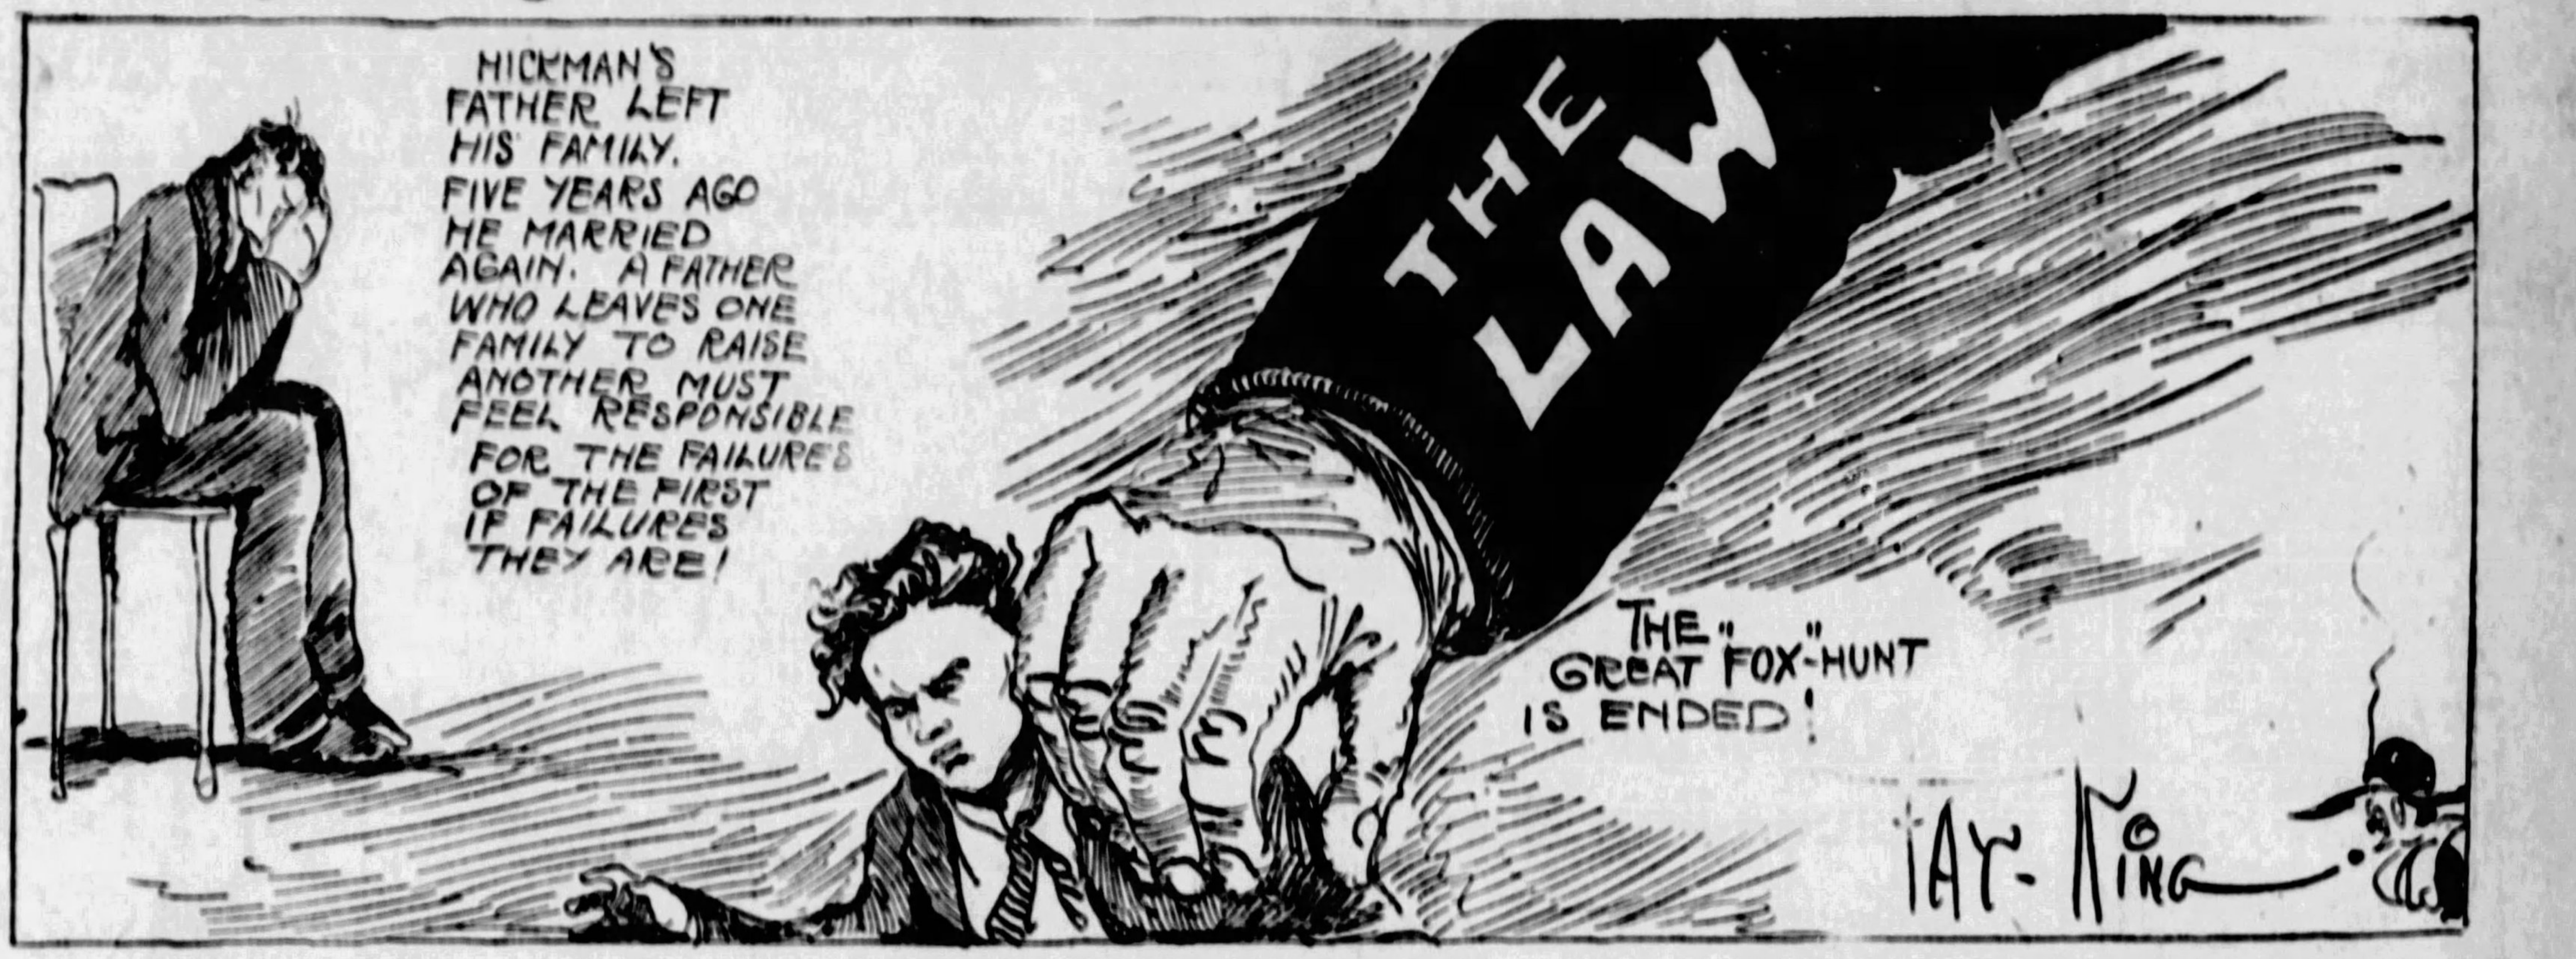
Fay King Dwells on Moral of "The Fox" Crime



HICKMAN'S FATHER LEFT HIS FAMILY. FIVE YEARS AGO HE MARRIED AGAIN. A FATHER WHO LEAVES ONE FAMILY TO RAISE ANOTHER MUST FEEL RESPONSIBLE FOR THE FAILURES OF THE FIRST IF FAILURES THEY ARE!
THE LAW
THE GREAT "FOX"-HUNT IS ENDED!
FAY-KING

By FAY KING

THE great "Fox" hunt is ended!

The youth is accused of a crime so atrocious that a nation stood by awaiting his capture. A hundred thousand dollar reward on his head!

A crime so revolting that other criminals destroyed a suspect who was placed among them!

In the tiny little town of Echo, Oregon, the great hand of the law closed down upon him!

Up to a certain point the crime is not new!

Again we have the underpaid, wayward, weak youth working in a bank surrounded with so much money it becomes an unendurable temptation!

Again we have a mother left alone where a father's influence, that only a father can exert as the head of a family, was needed.

Hickman's father left his family. He has married again and is raising another family.

Any father who leaves one family to raise another cannot excuse himself from responsibility in any failure that may develop in the first family.

The shock and bitterness that comes to children who see a father turn from them to shower his love and affection and support upon a new family is apt at times to develop into such a bitter resentment that might even find its outlet in crime!

A father is as much responsible for the future of the children he brings into the world as a mother is.

A father has no right to seek new happiness while his children are dependent upon his guidance.

When the children are grown to manhood and womanhood, if fathers prefer to leave and make new marriages, that is different. But even then I do not believe the children of his first marriage need ever recognize or feel any affection for the new family.

Danger Signals of Possible Cancer

DR COPELAND

CANCER is our most dreadful disease. It is dreadful because it is neglected in the beginning. It need not be dreadful if taken in time.

What are the signs of cancer—the danger signals? I saw them briefly stated quite recently. These are the chief things to heed:

Any lump, especially in the breast.

Any irregular bleeding or discharge.

Any sore that does not heal.

Persistent indigestion with loss of weight.

You might have one or all of these symptoms and not have cancer. You need not be scared to death if you have one of them, but if you are wise you will find out why you have it. No matter if the cause of your symptom is a trifling thing, it should be gotten rid of anyhow.

The chief cause for neglect of one of these signals is not failure of the victim to realize it. It is the terrible fear that an operation may be needed.

It may well be that an operation will not be needed. Medical treatment may be the only thing required.

I have heard thousands of people say: "I wouldn't have an operation. I'd die first!"

But it isn't so that you would die first. Even though you had cancer, long before it came time to die you would be demanding and crying for an operation. It is human nature to want to live.

It is natural, too, to put off an operation just as long as possible. But that isn't sensible, is it? If by any chance the suspicious symptom is really a sign of cancer and of a type requiring operation, your own good judgment says that the quicker it is performed, the greater is the chance of complete success.

You dread an operation because you think it will hurt. Perhaps you are afraid of the anesthetic.

I had been operating many years before I ever had any reason to take an anesthetic. I am frank to confess I did not relish the prospect of taking it myself. But after having had an anesthetic and repeating the experience a couple of times, I am prepared to say it is not at all an unpleasant experience. If I were told tomorrow that I must take an anesthetic and have an operation I wouldn't dread it a bit. Experience has taught me it isn't dreadful at all—not half as bad as having a tooth extracted.

It is a neglected sore or lump or bleeding place that is dangerous. The place in question "breaks down"—it becomes cancerous. In the beginning it may be of no consequence and be easily overcome. That is the time to give it attention.

Don't keep your suspicions to yourself. Share it at once with your family doctor. In all probability he will laugh at your fears. But, I beg of you, don't neglect these danger signals.

Answers to Health Queries

W. E. P. Q.—Is an operation the only cure for a fistula?

A.—Yes.

W. Q.—I am a young man of 23 troubled with hard and rapid beating of the heart on the least exertion. I chew tobacco. Should I refrain? I am also bothered with pains in the back of neck and shoulder, but they are not severe—what would cause this condition? Should I indulge in athletics?

A.—May be due to nervousness, indigestion, or there may be some slight abnormality of the heart itself. Examination will determine the necessary treatment. Yes, it often interferes with proper digestion. Neuralgia may be the cause of these pains. Be sure that there is no infection in your system. This would depend upon the result of the examination. If you have a heart condition you should avoid overexertion.

L. L. Q.—What do you advise for a cold in my head and throat?

2.—What is the cause and remedy for brown blemishes on my face?

A.—Colds are usually caused by a run-down state of health. Try to build up your general health and you may not be so susceptible to colds. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

2.—Liver spots are due to more or less poor intestinal elimination. The first thing to do, therefore, is to correct constipation. Particulars sent upon receipt of a self-addressed, stamped envelope. Repeat your question.

Making 'Em Like You

By LUCY LOWELL

HERE is another thought for the little girl who wished to know how to make people like her. Perhaps it also will help those others who occasionally write me to ask the same question.

This is Thomas Jefferson's opinion on the subject:

"Honesty, disinterestedness and good nature are indispensable to procure the esteem and confidence of those with whom we live, and on whose esteem our happiness depends.

"Never suffer a thought to be harbored in your mind which you would not avow openly. When tempted to do anything in secret, ask yourself if you would do it in public; if you would not, be sure it is wrong.

"In little disputes with your companions, give way rather than insist on trifles, for the love and approbation of others will be worth more to you than the trifle in dispute. Above all things, and at all times, practise yourself in good humor; this, of all human qualities, is the most amiable and endearing to society.

"Whenever you feel a warmth of temper arising, check it at once and suppress it, recollecting it would make you unhappy within yourself and disliked by others.

"Nothing gives one person so great an advantage over another under all circumstances. Think of these things, practice them, and you will be rewarded by the love and confidence of the world."

To this might be added a saying of Poor Richard: "Be civil to all; sociable to many; familiar with few; friend to one; enemy to none."

HEINZ HOUSE PLAYERS

FUMBLES, LATERAL PASSES SCORED

NEW YORK, Dec. 30.—(AP.)—After short debate over the changes made early this year in the football rules, the American Football Coaches' Association today approved a recommendation to eliminate the alterations affecting use of the lateral pass and the recovery of fumbled punts. The coaches voted in favor of returning to the 1926 rules affecting these features.

As a result of the demand of the coaches for greater representation on the rules committee for 1928, E. K. Hall, chairman of the committee, invited the association to appoint three observers to sit with the rules-makers at the next meeting.

This was understood to be a compromise, inasmuch as the rules committee chairman has indicated he felt that the coaches already have adequate membership in that body. As reorganized yesterday, five coaches have places on the committee of 10. With the addition of three observers, the coaches would have eight representatives at the rules deliberations.

Reduction of membership on the national football rules committee from 13 to 10 ends the 20-year domination of the eastern section of the country in legislation regarding the game.

At the meeting of the rules committee of the National Collegiate Athletic Association yesterday, a new arrangement was adopted whereby the place held by the late Fred W. Moore of Harvard was left vacant, and the posts held by Prof. C. W. Savage of Oberlin College, O., and Dr. James A. Babbitt of Haverford College, Pennsylvania, were dropped.

Under the reorganization, the committee is made up of a member from each of eight districts established by the Collegiate Association with two members at large, Edward K. Hall of Dartmouth, the chairman, and W. S. Langford of Trinity, the secretary.

THE official records for the 1927 baseball season in the National League continue to make the Pittsburgh club stand out as the class of the entire circuit and to demonstrate that the flag victory of the Pirates was scored from every angle on actual merit and unquestionable superiority over the remainder of the field.

The latest batch of figures from President Heydler's office, covering the miscellaneous records of the year, show again that it was a team of true championship qualities that Manager Donie Bush led to the pennant in his first year as commander of the Buccaneers.

IT has often been said that a real champion ball club can win away from home as well as on its own

PITT PLANS FOR DRILL MAY BE CHANGED

By Sun-Telegraph Special Correspondent.

GALLUP, N. M., Dec. 30.—(Aboard Pitt Football Special En Route to Pasadena)—Ashfork, Ariz., where the Panthers are scheduеld to work out this afternoon, is almost submerged by a prolonged downpour of rain, according to a dispatch received from that place by Pitt football officials this morning. Because the field where the Panthers were to have drilled is said to be in no condition for play, Coach Jock Sutherland may decide to stop off at Windslow or Williams for the final practice before the squad arrives in Pasadena tomorrow.

Albuquerque, a delightful oasis in the heart of a barren expanse of sand and sage-brush, proved a real host yesterday. The Pitt squad was shown every courtesy by the hospitable citizens. A special show was provided by the local theater magnate early last evening, so that the Eastern grid champions might attend the University of Mexico-Western State College of Colorado basketball game as guests of the university.

The high altitude handicapped the Panthers yesterday when they worked out on the University of New Mexico gridiron. The players had a minimum of enthusiasm and in signal practice there were frequent fumbles. Hagan and Edwards continued to exhibit marked improvement in their punting, and Edwards gave a beautiful display of drop-kicking ability for the several hundred fans who watched the practice. Edwards booted them from every angle out to the 45-yard line.

Toby Uansa, the McKees Rocks sophomore halfback, also showed promise as a drop-kicker and he sent 12 consecutive tries spinning between the uprights yesterday.

SPEAKING OF SPORTS

by HARRY KECK

SUN-TELEGRAPH SPORTS EDITOR

THE wrestlers are still at it in the less wide-awake communities.

Up in Boston recently, one Stanley Stasiak, a grappler of wide repute as a rough guy, arrived home from a tour just in time to learn that a keen rival, Joe Komar, was appearing at a theater meeting all comers and billing himself as a man the great Stasiak feared to meet.

Stasiak, so the story goes, said nothing, but went down to the theater and planted himself in a close-up seat. When his rival's ballyhoo man appeared on the stage and announced that Stasiak had fled Boston rather than meet the great Komar, Stasiak leaped to his feet and threw the crowd into a furore by calling the announcer a liar and then climbing onto the stage and throwing chairs and whatnot about. It ended up with a riot call for the police and much publicity—not to say notoriety—in the papers.

Oh, yes. Komar and Stasiak now will meet in a regular bout at the same theater.

NEW YORK boxing writers have George Godfrey on the pan criticizing him for meeting set-ups of the Soldier Jones variety about the country while his manager, Jimmy Dougherty, makes capital of the Black Shadow's numerous knockouts in one and two rounds each and yells from the housetops that the leading white heavyweights are discriminating against George because of his color. The scribes contend that Dougherty recently turned down a match with a worthy opponent at a New York club and won't accept bouts with good men around the country on the plea that he can get more money fighting them in New York.

"Godfrey knocked out Soldier Jones in a round in Pittsburgh the other day," one of the metropolitan writers indites. "Who is this Jones? You might as well ask the same question of the other 18 men he is said to have knocked out in succession."

At any rate, Godfrey got a lot of publicity in the East on the strength of his pushover here. Virtually all of the New York and Philadelphia papers put lead heads on the story of

Tommy Davies May Sign at Colgate

Tommy Davies, former all-America halfback at Pitt and more recently coach at Geneva, Allegheny and the University of Rochester, may sign as head grid coach at Colgate, according to rumors current here today.

Davies enjoyed great success last fall in making his debut as Rochester coach, and although his contract there has two more years to run, Rochester officials have intimated that they would grant him his release that he might tutor the gridders at the larger institution at Hamilton.

TO DEDICATE BENCH TO COACH'S MEMORY

BERKELEY, Cal., Dec. 30.—(INS.)—The memory of Andy Smith, late coach of the University of California football team, will be honored Saturday by the dedication of the Andy Smith bench on the side lines of Memorial Stadium.

The dedication ceremonies will be held previous to the kickoff in the Pennsylvania-California intersectional clash.

As Smith rose to fame on the gridiron at Pennsylvania, Saturday's game presents an ideal opportunity for the dedication of the memorial.

Willie Davies and Alec Burlie box the main bout, Young Saylor and Rudy Ceder the semi-final and Jimmy Belmont and Harry Taylor the opener on Monday.

Dominick Petrone and Ignacio Fernandez meet in the semi-final to the Bud Taylor-Tony Canzoneri bout in Madison Square Garden, New York, tonight, and Georgie Rivers and Andy Martin box another 10-rounder.

DUKES BOOK W.-J.; PITT READY FOR O. S. U.

By JESS CARVER.

THE acceptance of Wash-Jeff's terms for a football game in 1928 by Duquesne University and the discovery that Dr. H. C. Carlson, eminent psychologist and basketball coach of the University of Pittsburgh has perfected a "hidden ball" play and a squad of magicians for use against Ohio State here tomorrow night were the outstanding happenings in the local collegiate world yesterday.

College circles are tickled pink today over the closing of negotiations for the Duke-President grid game, the first in history between the two institutions. Members of the Tri-State Class B Conference, which includes Waynesburg, Thiel, Westminster, Bethany and Geneva in addition to Duquesne, were particularly pleased over the deal, for it means increased recognition for the conference by the Big Four.

Graduate Manager of Athletics Holahan of Duquesne accepted Wash-Jeff's terms late last evening and then took his delayed departure for New York, where he will attempt to close with one of the three leading eastern institutions for another gridiron game, thus completing his 1928 card. The game is to be played at Washington on October 13, and will be the major game on Duquesne's schedule.

Turning the attention to Dr. Carlson and Pitt, we find that the genial Redhead had put over another fast one. He has been going along with his fine team so far this season, content to win games by playing straight basketball, using a crackerjack offense built around Charlie Hyatt, Sykes Reed and Stash Wrobleskie. Now he has changed his plans, and while he will not depart much from the plan of attack used against those Big Ten foes and Dartmouth, he has the boys working a hidden ball and faking passing play that is a wow.

TEAM WORKS WELL

The team worked it yesterday in the long drill that Doc gave them, and for a while they had the few onlookers rubbing their eyes, trying to find the missing ball. I thought it had rolled under the seats, and instituted an immediate search, but was convinced of my error when Hyatt suddenly produced it and popped it into the basket for two points.

It may develop that Carlson will not call it out against Ohio State tomorrow night. He wants to win this game, for the Buckeyes have trodden on the Pantherian tail for two years in a row, but this year, the Pitt team in its natural state is so good that they may not have to resort to trickery to upset the Big Ten representatives.

YANK'S SCHEDULE TO DETERMINE TEX'S PLANS

Billiard Note: Chinamen Are Experts With the Queue

★ SUN-TELEGRAPH ★ SPORTS ★

STADIUM SCENE OF TITULAR BOUT

NEW YORK, Dec. 30.—(AP.)—The schedule makers of the American League—and not Gene Tunney, Jack Dempsey, Jack Sharkey or Tom Heeney—will have the most to say as to just where and when Tex Rickard promotes the world heavyweight title match in 1928.

Tex wants to stage the big bout at the Yankee Stadium sometime within the first two weeks of September, but can't make any definite arrangements until the schedule-makers reveal whether the world's baseball champions will be at home or on the road during that period.

If the Yankees are on their home stamping grounds all or most of that time Rickard will find his present plans in jeopardy. He has definitely decided to use the big American League park, but it will require a few days for his workmen to convert it into a boxing arena, arranged to seat 100,000 spectators where only 65,000 may gather for the ball games.

The temporary seating plans call for frameworks of steel girders to block off lower tier seats in the grandstand and range downward from the stands to the very edges of the ring.

Tunney can fight before the tenth of September, 1928, only by agreeing to a flat percentage basis for two fights, Rickard said. No amount of cajoling will induce the promoter to give up his exclusive rights to the heavyweight champion's services, he declared.

In outlining the standing of Jack Dempsey as a challenger, Tex asserted that the former champion can meet Tunney without a previous test only in case Tom Heeney and Jack Sharkey both "look terrible" in their elimination battle here January 12.

"These youngsters deserve a chance," he said, but he indicated it would be a "shame" to waste the "perfect" ballyhoo that sounded for a third match after the one-time Manassa mauler floored Tunney for the "long count" at Chicago last September.

Rickard said that there was no place in the elimination ranks for George Godfrey, latest "black menace," who boasts a formidable string of knockout victories.

"He's one of the worst fighters I ever saw," the promoter declared. "Fought three times here in the garden and never showed anything. Besides, Tunney wouldn't meet a Negro, even if Godfrey knocked out a few more set-ups."

grounds, and the truth of that saying is demonstrated in the records of the various clubs for games captured at home and abroad.

In fact, the Pirates went the old dope one better, for they not only did as well on foreign lots as at Forbes Field, but really surpassed their home showing, so it may be said in all truth that they actually won the pennant on the road.

NO team in the league approached the Corsairs as a road club. Out of a total of 75 games played in other cities the locals won no fewer than 46 against only 29 lost for a percentage of .613. This means that the Bucs captured a fraction above 61 per cent of their games away from home. There can be no disputing the championship caliber of a team capable of accomplishing such a feat. At home the Rovers won 48 and lost 31 for a mark of .608.

How far the Corsairs surpassed the field in strength shown away from home, where gameness, steadiness and every other title quality are tested to the limit, may be judged from the fact that the next best mark, made by New York, with 43 won and 37 lost, was only .538.

Only one other club won as many as it lost on the road, that being St. Louis, which broke exactly even in 72 games. The item that kept the Cardinals in the pennant fight was their success on their own grounds, where they won 56 games and lost only 25, leading the league in winning at home with a percentage of .691.

New York with .662, and Chicago with .641, also rank above the Bucs in winning at home, but in the real test of fighting on the road the Cards, Giants and Cubs failed to compare with Bush's battlers.

ANOTHER factor in Pittsburgh's success was the long hitting of Paul Waner. Not only did Paul lead the league in batting in point of average, but the latest official records disclose that he hit for the greatest number of total bases, 338, and also batted in more runs than any other clouter in the league, the Pirate swatsmith driving 131 tallies across the platter.

In percentage of slugging, however, the leadership goes to Chick Hafey, St. Louis outfielder, who made a mark of .590. Waner was fourth in that system of ranking, his percentage being .543. Rogers Hornsby took second place with .556 and Hack Wilson was third with .579.

Incidentally Hornsby also drew the greatest number of bases on balls, walking 86 times.

WHILE Bob Smith of Boston is given special mention in connection with the miscellaneous records for the reason that he struck out fewer times than any other player in the league, fanning on only four occasions, it must be borne in mind that Smith was at bat only 109 times.

The honors for fewest strikeouts really should go to one of those who played regularly during the season. That would make Frankie Frisch of the Cardinals the real leader, as he fanned only 10 times.

Pie Traynor of the Pirates made a strong bid for the laurels in this department, as he struck out only 11 times. Andy High of Boston also fanned only 11 times, but he played in 37 fewer games than Traynor. Another Pirate, Paul Waner, also was one of the hardest men in the league to strike out, as he fanned only 14 times.

The questionable distinction of having struck out oftener than any other player goes to none other than Hack Wilson, star slugger of the Cubs. Though he ranked third in slugging percentage, Wilson, like most hard swingers, frequently failed to connect at all, and the figures show that he fanned a total of 70 times.

PITT'S sensational basketball team may be hard-pressed to maintain its remarkable record tomorrow night when it meets Ohio State University quintet at the Panther Stadium. Ohio State will be the fifth Western Conference team that the locals have met this season, and though they downed the first four on their own floors, it does not follow that they will have an easy time defeating the Ohioans, if they do it at all.

Local floor fans have not forgotten that Ohio State always has been a sort of jinx to Pitt. The Buckeyes have beaten the Panthers in their last two meetings, and their victory of last season in particular stands out impressively because they won by an overwhelming score, and this after Pitt had trimmed Michigan, the Western Conference champion.

Coach Carlson of Pitt is looking for the hardest kind of fighting tomorrow night and has warned his players that they will have to keep on their toes all the time. "The Western Conference teams build up mentally and physically for each game," said Carlson, in discussing the coming contest. "They play only one game on a trip, spending a whole week to build up the morale of the players. Recently Michigan traveled all the way to Philadelphia for a single game."

THE Pitt players will wear their new gold jerseys tomorrow night for the first time.

A capacity crowd is expected to be present at the Stadium, which will seat 4,200 persons at basketball games.

Robin Ball of Erie is captain of Ohio State's team, and one of the players is a son of Bill Hinchman, the Pirate baseball scout. Several of the members of the Ohio State football squad are on the team.

Temple. The Mieles haven't lost a game this season, and there is no reason to believe they will be stopped tonight.

THE Enoch Rauh Club will be out to avenge an early-season defeat at the hands of Broadway when the two teams clash tonight in an Allegheny County League game at Beechview.

The Rauhs were nosed out by Broadway in their first floor engagement and they hope to turn the tables tonight. The Rauhs have shown a decided improvement in their form since last meeting the Beechview passers, and if they play their natural style of basketball tonight they stand an excellent chance of defeating Mickey Gross and his teammates.

Next Tuesday night the Rauhs will face their acid test when they clash with the Duquesne Lafayettes at Columbus Temple. The Lafayettes have won four straight league games and are holding undisputed possession of first place. Incidentally, they have yet to win a decision at Columbus Temple.

THE Braddock American Legion, admitted to be one of the strongest clubs enrolled in the Allegheny County League race, last night scored its third successive league victory.

The Braddock quintet took three straight defeats before it managed to win its first game at the expense of the Goslins. Since then the Braddock passers have added two more league victims to their record. This team is likely to cut a big figure in the second half of the race.

BOXING NOTES

has been signed for a bout with Sammy Mandell, lightweight champion, at Minneapolis, January 13.

Knute Hansen and George Godfrey have been matched for a 10-round bout at Philadelphia, January 23.

A letter awaits Marco Polo, McKees Rocks heavyweight, at this office.

Bill Tate and Seal Harris, heavyweights, headline a boxing show at Chicago tonight in the semi-final of which Les Marriner, former University of Illinois football player, makes his professional debut against Mickey Smith of Chicago. Eleven bouts make up the card, all of them four-rounders.

Jim Mullen, Chicago promoter, has plans set to close the following bouts for the next few months: Sammy Mandell, lightweight champion, vs. Jimmy McLarnin; Joe Dundee, welterweight champion, vs. Tommy Freeman; Louis (Kid) Kaplan vs. Billy Wallace, and Mickey Walker, middleweight champion, vs. Jimmy Slattery.

SPEAKING of SPORTS

the bout, emphasizing the quickness of the knockout. The stories, incidentally, did not say anything about Jones having quit.

ONE of the sarcastic writers took advantage of a typographical error in a New York account of the bout which stated that Jones went to the floor of the ring for the toll. The story read "tool." "Undoubtedly the ax," wrote the funny man.

Anyway, it's all publicity for Godfrey which later will be cashed in at the box office. No matter whether they write good or ill of him the fans will read it and the best ballyhoo any fighter can ask is that they keep his name in the papers.

GETTING back to the rassling racket, the boys in Australia are having to stand for a lot these days, judging from an account of a recent match between John Kilonis, styled the Greek champion, and Walter Miller, an American, staged at the Sydney Stadium. They wrestled on the 10-minute rounds plan and Miller won the decision in eight rounds. Read on, from the Sydney Referee:

"It was an exhilarating and thrilling encounter, with Kilonis always threatening to charge the atmosphere with electricity by his rough work which invariably aroused the anger of the crowd. But the combatants understood each other, and good-naturedly exchanged their foul work.

"A right to the jaw had Kilonis ungovernable in the sixth round. He not only threw Miller through the ropes, but with both feet he kicked his opponent clear out of the outer rail onto the press enclosure. The crowd looked angry—some spectators threatening to enter the ring to tame the wild Greek—but they only threatened.

"Kilonis then sneaked a right foot to the body, but Miller jumped clear. As Kilonis came on, he delivered a good right to the jaw that staggered the Greek, and, with a body press, Miller gained a fall in 2 minutes, 50 seconds of the seventh round.

"Though Kilonis tried everything fair and unfair to gain a fall in the last round, he failed. He seemed annoyed that the verdict was not given in his favor. For a moment it looked as if he was about to manhandle the referee. Miller was standing with hand extended for the customary handshake, but the Greek glared, and, turning on his heels, walked to his corner, where he remained amidst the hoots and jeers of thousands. He is a showman par excellence."

How I Win By Losing!

My rent has to be paid in January same as any other month. Light, heat and other expenses merrily continue! My only salvation in this ordinarily dull month is to force enough business to break even.

Therefore when I tell you that I'm willing to sacrifice all profit in this twice-yearly sale you can believe me absolutely.

What I lose in profits I win by keeping my organization busy — by keeping my big stocks of woolens constantly turning.

And best of all, I win extra customer good-will.

Why Morgan Takes Office; Steel Stockholders Gain

By B. C. FORBES

AFFECTION for his father, more than any other motive, induced J. P. Morgan to accept the office of chairman of the board of directors of the United States Steel Corporation. Neither the original J. P. Morgan, nor his son ever before held any corporation position—except directorships. Mr. Morgan has no intention whatsoever of devoting his life to his new office. He will preside over all meetings of directors at which he is present. But beyond that his activities will remain very much as they have been heretofore as the most influential member of the finance committee.

The Steel Corporation was the favorite of all the late J. P. Morgan's creations. He regarded it as his industrial monument—his own firm was his banking monument. The House of Morgan all along has felt special interest in, and responsibility for the successful development of this gigantic enterprise. Thus it is that the present head of the house has agreed to become chairman of the board, notwithstanding that his own inclinations are rather to transfer more burdens to younger shoulders than to reach out to pile more on his own shoulders.

Before many years pass the third generation of Morgans probably will be represented on the directorate of the Steel Corporation. Mr. Morgan's son, Unius S. Morgan, now 25, has undergone international training to fit him ultimately to succeed his father. He is a very highly-regarded young man, who takes business seriously, and incidentally, is of a much more democratic temperment than either his father or grandfather.

AS FORETOLD by the writer weeks ago, James A. Farrell becomes the chief executive officer in addition to continuing his former duties as president. Mr. Farrell succeeds Judge Gary as the spokesman of the corporation.

Already Mr. Farrell has taken initial steps to strengthen the executive organization. Recently William A. Forbes, who has been with the corporation since its organization, and had become head of the technical department, was appointed assistant to the president. The selection of one or two capable new vice presidents, from within the organization, will be the next logical step.

WHEREAS Judge Gary was thoroughly trained in finance and administration, but had no practical knowledge of steel, the new chief executive has been essentially a practical steel operator and not a financier. Just as Judge Gary was necessarily supplemented by a colleague to operate the vast enterprise, so Mr. Farrell will be supplementel by a chairman of the finance committee, who will devote practically all his time to the onerous duties, Myron C. Taylor.

So huge are our largest corporations becoming that it is increasingly difficult, sometimes impossible, to find any one man ideally trained to take supreme charge of both operation and finances. General Motors, for example, has for its president and operating genius, A. P. Sloan, Jr., and has a different individual as chairman of its finance committee, John J. Raskob, often called "A financial wizzard." The American Telephone and Telegraph Company, now the largest corporation of all, has for its president a financially-trained man, Walter S. Gifford, and he in turn, is buttressed by brilliant technical experts. Such corporations involve far larger financial transactions than that of a majority of the governments throughout the world.

THE new figure in the Steel Corporation triumvirate is little known outside of high finance and really little known throughout Wall street. Born in Lyons, N. Y., 54 years ago, he graduated from Cornell University as a lawyer, practiced in New York several years, became interested in textiles, attained unusual success, gravitated into finance, made an impression upon George F. Baker and was elected a director of his bank as well as a director of the New York Central, Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe, the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York, etc.

Since the veteran Banker Baker has long enjoyed a unique reputation as a picker of brilliant comers, holders of Steel shares can safely conclude that their interests will be ably served by Mr. Taylor.

IN SHORT, the Steel directors deserve the thanks of all holders of Steel securities for the admirable way they have filled the three offices left vacant by the death of Judge Gary. The changes made strengthen the organization and the stockholders can confidently count upon being benefited.

MARKET DULL AS HOLIDAY NEARS

NEW YORK, Dec. 30.—(AP.)—Further irregularity developed in today's stock market with trading turning dull on the approach of the holiday. The undertone was fairly firm, with pools active in a number of issues which are likely to attract reinvestment funds after the turn of the year. Buying centered largely in a selected assortment of food, independent steel, office supply, copper, tobacco and public utility shares.

Little attention was paid to the retention of relatively stiff call money rates and the sharp increase in federal reserve brokers' loans. Among the score or so issues to break into new high ground for the year were Nash and Packard Motors, Inland Steel, Youngstown Sheet and Tube, Christie Brown, Detroit Edison, Simmons Co., International Business Machines, Coty, Life Savers and Mexican Petroleum.

Rails were rather quiet. Delaware and Hudson advanced 2 points despite the Interstate Commerce Commission's rejection of the proposal of that road to lease the Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburgh, Lehigh Valley, "Cotton Belt" and "Nickel Plate" also recorded good gains.

SUGAR MARKET.

New York, Dec. 30.—(AP.)—The raw sugar market was quiet early today and with no sales reported prices were unchanged at 4.58c for Cuban, duty paid.

Trading in the raw sugar futures market was of a pre-holiday character and mostly in the form of exchanging from near to the more distant deliveries. There was no decided price trend, and after opening 1 point lower to 1 point higher prices continued within that range throughout the remainder of the forenoon. Issuance of 40 January notices led to some liquidation, but offerings were absorbed by shorts and a little buying by houses with European connections.

The refined sugar market was steady and unchanged at 5.70@5.80c for fine granulated. There were moderate withdrawals, but no new business came to light.

FREE ALDINE SUSPECTS

Alfred Lytton, 23, of 740 Bryn Mawr avenue, and Robert O'Neil, 25, Philadelphia, held as suspects in the $4,000 holdup at the Aldine Theater, December 14, were discharged by Magistrate George H. England in Central Police Court today when Gerald Murphy, theater manager, who was held up, was unable to identify them. The two were arrested in Youngstown, O., several days ago.

PUNXSUTAWNEY MINER HANGS SELF TO TREE

PUNXSUTAWNEY, Pa., Dec. 30.—Joe Ompock, 51, a coal miner, today was found hanging to a tree near his shack, where he lived with another miner. He had fashioned a noose out of a burlap sack and life was extinct when the body was cut down. Ompock has no relatives here.

VICTIM OF STRANGE ORIENTAL DISEASE DIES

CEDAR RAPIDS, Ia., Dec. 30.—A victim of shiga, an Oriental disease, rare in the western world, Theresa Nason, 20, died at her home here today. She contracted the disease in an unknown manner, six years ago.

Sun-Tele Financial Resume.

The Sun-Telegraph will issue its annual financial review Wednesday, January 4. The edition will contain complete data on all markets as well as comprehensive forecasts for the coming year and a resume of the events which combined to make 1927 one of the most unusual calendar periods in the country's financial and industrial history.

The various articles comprising the review have been prepared and edited by experts in the different lines and the tables have been compiled and arranged by statisticians of long standing reputation in the financial world.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND VIEWS

Loans at New Peak.

Loans to brokers and dealers held by New York Federal Reserve member banks for the week ending December 28 amounted to $3,717,623,000, comparing with $3,614,331,000 for the preceding week. The latest total represents a new high record for all time.

—I—

N. Y. Bank Rate Unchanged.

The rediscount rate of the New York Federal Reserve is unchanged this week at 3½ per cent. The ratio of Federal Reserve System was 66.5 per cent on December 28, against 67.2 per cent in preceding week and 70.1 per cent a year ago. The New York Reserve Bank's ratio was 61.4 against 71.3 last week and 77.2 last year.

—I—

Week's Gold Exports.

Gold exports at the port of New York for the week ended December 28, were $14,503,000 of which $10,000,000 went to France and $4,000,000 to Holland. Imports were $103,000.

—I—

Detroit Employment Less.

The Employers' Association of Detroit reports employment figures for the week ended December 27 as 187,316, a decrease of 14,872 from last week, but an increase of 59,374 over the corresponding period last year. The increase over 1926 is due to change in inventory shutdown dates on the part of several large manufacturers.

—I—

Postum Company Earnings.

The Postum Company, Inc., and Walter Baker Company, Inc., and Franklin Baker Company report for nine months ended September 30 a consolidated net income of $10,204,279 after federal taxes, equal to $6.34 a share on 1,597,135 common shares issued.

—I—

Doubling Seneca Capital.

Seneca Copper Mining Company proposes an increase in capital stock from 500,000 shares to 1,000,000 shares.

—I—

Holiday Trade Larger.

Holiday trade in December increased about 1½ per cent over last year, according to monthly review of credit and business conditions by the federal reserve agent at New York. Christmas week sales of F. W. Woolworth Company reached a record of $17,189,617, an increase of $1,041,493 over a year ago. Sales the day before Christmas were $4,118,292, a gain of $499,147.

—I—

U. S. Steel Stockholders.

There were 96,297 common stockholders of United States Steel Corporation during the fourth quarter, as against 97,000 in the preceding quarter and 86,024 in the fourth quarter of 1926.

—I—

Baldwin Ships Fewer Engines.

Baldwin Locomotive during 1927 shipped 486 locomotives of all types, compared with 841 in 1926.

—I—

Campbell, I. C. C. Chairman.

Commissioner Johnston B. Campbell of Minnesota has been elected chairman of the Interstate Commerce Commission, effective January 1, 1928.

—I—

White Predicts Better Year.

That business prospects for 1928 in the motor truck and bus industry indicate a much better year than 1927 turned out to be is the opinion of Walter C. White, president of White Motors. "The year now closing has been a year not only of severe competition, small margins of profits and dull business in certain localities, but a year of readjustment. So far as the White Company is concerned, we are ready to meet the conditions of the new year."

—I—

Raskob on A. I. C. Board.

John J. Raskob, vice president and chairman of the finance committee of General Motors Corporation, has accepted an invitation to become a member of the board of American International Corporation.

—I—

New Esthonian Money Unit.

A new monetary unit, the kroon, is to replace the mark in Esthonia, beginning January 1, 1928. The kroon will have the value of 100-248 grams of gold, or the equivalent of 100 sents. The mark had a value of one sent. New sent as well as kroon notes are to be issued.

—I—

General Tire Sales Larger.

General Tire and Rubber Company had its largest volume of net sales in the year ended November 30, reaching $22,020,500. Profit was $2,324,323 before federal taxes.

—I—

A. W. W. Expands in Jersey.

American Water Works and Electric Company has acquired the Bay Head Water Company of Bayhead, N. J. Its other New Jersey properties include Commonwealth Water Company, Monmouth Consolidated Water Company and the Atlantic County Water Company.

—I—

Foreign Copper Trade.

Imports of copper into the United States in November were 4,337 metric tons, against 3,048 in October and 3,280 in September, the American bureau of metal statistics reports. November exports from the United States were 35,210 metric tons, against 37,241 the month before and 41,193 in September.

—I—

Lead-Zinc Exports Down.

Imports of lead in November were 85 short tons, against 127 in October, and exports were 8,467 tons, against 11,449 tons in October. Exports of zinc totaled 2,015 tons in November, against 4,940 the month before.

—I—

May Be Coolidge After All.

One of the Wall Street Journal market commentators makes the following observation anent the recent election of J. P. Morgan as chairman of the board of United States Steel: "Several weeks ago, when the rumor that J. P. Morgan would be made chairman of the United States Steel Corporation and be succeeded later by Calvin Coolidge was current, a big laugh went up in the street. In the first place, said the street, Mr. Morgan wouldn't be able to fill the job because he spends much of his time abroad. Now the street is not so confident of its belief that President Coolidge will not succeed Mr. Morgan, particularly persons familiar with visits of the Morgan firm to Washington."

—I—

Mail Order Prices Cut.

Sears, Roebuck & Co. and Montgomery Ward & Co. are sending out new price lists on many lines of merchandise, showing reductions in most items compared with the latest catalogue prices. Percentage of the cut varies. Among the items in which there has been a cut are tires. Extent of the reduction by Sears, Roebuck & Co. was not disclosed, but an official declared it was "substantial," bringing prices to the lowest level in several years. Cut by Montgomery Ward & Co. is estimated to have amounted to between 5 and 7 per cent.

—I—

Foundation Sells Higher.

Foundation Co. was a strong feature of the industrial specialties again today. Foundation has been under pressure for some weeks, due to selling to register losses for tax purposes. When the stock recovered sharply, it was taken for granted that transactions of this kind had been largely cleaned up.

—I—

Short Selling Ineffective.

One of the big New York commission houses wired the following to its local correspondent today: "Once again brokers' loans have reached a new high peak. This is becoming a rather old story, but it means just one thing, and that is that distribution is still under way. Judging by the action of the market yesterday afternoon and this morning it looks as if it still had a good comeback to it and that short selling was not having any appreciable effect on values. This is not to be wondered at now, in view of the large sums to be distributed in a few days in the way of interest dividends, etc. It is quite natural that those in control of the conservative side of the market should endeavor to hold prices steady, at least until these funds have been reinvested. As a matter of fact, for the next couple of weeks it is to be expected that fairly steady markets will prevail with occasional rallies, but after that time it remains to be seen just what the market will do."

—I—

Chile Earnings Hold Up.

The Chile Copper Company reports for the nine months ended September 30, net profit of $8,367,977 after charges and federal taxes, as compared with $8,588,284 in the corresponding period of 1926. Net profit for the quarter ended September 30 was $2,777,803 as against $2,427,427 in the third quarter of 1926.

—I—

Harbison-American Arch.

Election of J. E. Lewis, president of the Harbison-Walker Refractories Company, to the board of directors of the American Arch Company is viewed in some quarters here as a preliminary step to the amalgamation of the two concerns. There has been a close working arrangement for some time with inter-ownership of stock. American Arch owns patents on arch brick used in lining locomotive fire boxes and handles practically the entire output of this product in the United States. Capital as of December 31, 1926, was $5,000,000 represented by 150,000 shares of stock of no par value. Gross sales for the year 1926 were $5,876,000 and net income $1,900,506.

—I—

Bethlehem Loses Rate Plea.

The plea of Bethlehem Steel Company and other eastern steel concerns for suspension of new export rates on iron and steel products failed today when the Interstate Commerce Commission refused to suspend the disputed rates, which comprise a reduction of 20 per cent from the old ratings on shipments of iron and steel destined to foreign ports. hTe new rates are in favor of United States Products Company export subsidiary of United States Steel Corporation, as well as other Central-Western steel companies.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Dec. 30.—(AP.)—The cotton market opened steady today at an advance of 3 to 7 points, active months selling about 5 to 6 points net higher in early trading on continued covering and trade buying. Considerable realizing was absorbed and the market held within 2 or 3 points of the best at the end of the first hour, March selling around 19.72c.

Liverpool was about as due on the New York advance yesterday. Private cables reported selling, covering and speculative buying in the market there and fair sales of light cotton cloths for India in the Manchester market.

Statistics on the production and sale of standard cotton cloths in this country for 11 months of 1927, showing that sales represented 98.8 per cent of the production, attracted comment, and may have been a contributing factor on the opening advance here.

There were reactions of several points from the opening advance under realizing, combined with a little southern and local selling, but demand became more active around 19.64c for March and prices firmed up later. Both foreign and domestic trade interests were credited with buying on the advance, which carried March up to 19.75c, or about 8 to 12 points net higher, and the market held within 2 or 3 points of the best around midday.

WOMEN OFFICEHOLDERS PREFER FEMININE AIDES

FRANKLIN, Pa., Dec. 30.—A preference for their own sex as assistants was shown by two women elected to public office at the November election, who assume their duties next Monday. Miss Nan R. Lynch, who becomes Venango county's first woman treasurer, announced the appointment of Miss Cora Reading as her deputy. Miss Elizabeth Swyers, elected prothonotary, chose Miss Myra Campbell as her chief aide.

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, Dec. 30.—(AP.)—With selling from the northwest in evidence here and with buying power light, wheat prices early averaged a little lower today. Better weather gave some advantage to bears in the corn market. Opening unchanged to ⅛c up, wheat later sagged all around to well below yesterday's finish. Corn started unchanged to ⅛c off and subsequently underwent a moderate general setback. Oats kept relatively firm. Provisions were easy.

Traders with a leaning toward lower prices for wheat found significance today in advices of enlarged offerings from the southern ports of Argentina and in Liverpool quotations lower than were looked for. On the other hand, Argentine shipments as a whole for the last week were a million bushels short of the previous week's total and shipments from Australia were also reduced.

In addition to lower temperatures likely to facilitate husking and to hasten the movement of the corn crop, liberal sales of corn to be shipped to Chicago from Omaha attracted much notice in the corn pit today. One lot of 75,000 bushels of No. 4 yellow was reported to have been worked at 5 cents under the Chicago May delivery, 30 days shipment. This was ⅛c lower basis than the last previous sale.

KALMAN CO. BUYS PLANT FOR $250,000 MERGER

YOUNGSTOWN, Pa., Dec. 30.—The Kalman Steel Company, Chicago, today purchased for $250,000, the Sykes Metal Lath Company, at Niles, owned by the Thomas interests at Niles, the Kalman Company plans to combine its Youngstown plant, manufacturing reinforcing steel bars, with the Niles property and establish a big fabricating unit.

Irregularity Noted In General List

A buying movement in United Engineering & Foundry Company new stock developed on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today, with the shares reaching new high ground for the current movement and demand for the issue providing support which kept the price around the best level throughout the first half of the session.

While nothing official has been forthcoming as to dividends on the new stock, the financial district is confident that shareholders will receive not only a fair "regular" return on their holdings, but also additional dividends in the form of "extras" similar to the policy followed on the old shares which were paid substantial extras for the past several years. Speculation as to what the "regular" rate on the new shares will be has been heard from time to time ever since the split-up and the general opinion is that the stock will be placed on an annual basis of $1.50 or $2.

The general list was rather irregular due to a moderate volume of tax selling and evening-up of commitments for the year-end. Dixie Gas & Utilities registered a new low for the year at 80, but rallied a point from that figure. Lone Star was quiet and practically unchanged. In the glass group there were several trades at figures near the recent bottoms, but no pronounced pressure was evident.

Are you interested in $80 per week?
WE HAVE THAT KIND OF A PROPOSITION, BASED ON FIVE SALES FOR THE WEEK. WE HAVE ONE NEW MAN, FORMERLY A PITTSBURGH ADVERTISING MAN, WHO, FOR HIS FIRST WEEK ALONE, ACTUALLY MADE $275. HE MADE 29 SALES TO ACCOMPLISH THIS RECORD. WHILE THIS IS UNUSUAL IT IS A USUAL THING TO AVERAGE AROUND $100 PER WEEK.
OF COURSE WE KNOW THAT EVERY MAN IS NOT CAPABLE OF THIS KIND OF INCOME. THEREFORE WE INSIST ON ALL OUR NEW MEN ACCEPTING A SALES TRAINING IN OUR SCHOOL. IF YOU HAVE GOOD REFERENCES WE WILL FINANCE YOU DURING THIS PERIOD.
OUR PRODUCT IS UNIQUE AND IS THE ONLY ONE OF ITS KIND ON THE AMERICAN MARKET. WE ARE ALSO BACKED BY THE LARGEST MANUFACTURER IN THE WORLD IN OUR LINE. THIS IS NOT VACUUM CLEANERS, STOCKS, BONDS OR REAL ESTATE. FOR INTERVIEW SEE MR. SWANN, SATURDAY MORNING OR MONDAY 9 A. M. TO 6 P. M.
Room 10, Marquart Building, Rochester, Pa.

THOMAS E. FINLEY, Attorney-at-Law,
Berger Bldg., Pittsburgh, Pa.
IN THE COURT OF COMMON PLEAS OF ALLEGHENY COUNTY, PENNSYLVANIA. IN RE PETITION FOR SALE OF REAL ESTATE OF THE FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH OF INDUSTRY, NO. 3848, JANUARY TERM, 1928.
Notice is hereby given that the petition of William E. Franklin, F. S. Kohler and H. W. Kilgore, respectfully represents: That they are the committee duly appointed by Redstone Presbytery, a corporation of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, to take charge and make sale of the real estate of the First Presbyterian Church of Industry, Elizabeth Township, Allegheny County, Pennsylvania. See minutes of the Presbytery hereto attached, made part hereof and marked Exhibit "A." That there are no trustees or other officers of said First Presbyterian Church of Industry and said organization has become inactive and extinct by reason of there being no resident or active trustees representing it, and all the members of said congregation having gone away or having been dismissed to other churches, and there being no one to make title to said real estate to a purchaser thereof, and for the past seven years said church building has ceased to be used for church purposes, and the same is being wasted and destroyed and less valuable every year. Said church property consists of a lot or piece of ground situate in Elizabeth Township, Allegheny County, Pa., fronting 56.35 feet on a Public road in the village of Industry and extending back sixty-five feet to property of William B. Miller and wife, and having thereon erected a frame church building, see blueprint marked Exhibit "B." The First Presbyterian Church was organized in 1891, and acquired title to lot 45x65 feet by deed from William B. Miller and wife, dated April 28, 1893, and recorded June 4, 1894, in Deed Book, volume 874, page 502. Title being taken in the name "Trustees of the First Presbyterian Church of Industry, Elizabeth Township, Allegheny County, Pa." A frame church building was erected upon said lot by said congregation, assisted financially by the Board of Church Erection of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America, which holds a mortgage of Nine Hundred ($900.00) Dollars against the same, recorded in Mortgage Book, volume 466, page 516. Church services were held in said church from the time of its completion until 1920, the services being conducted by the pastor of the Sutersville Presbyterian Church, a neighboring church in the Presbytery of Redstone. In 1920 the congregation had gradually disappeared through removals and dismissals to other churches until only two active members remained, viz: The Misses Frances L. Howell and Martha J. Howell. In 1923 the matter was called to the attention of Redstone Presbytery, it having jurisdiction over the First Presbyterian Church of Industry, and at a meeting of said Presbytery held at Mt. Pleasant, April 9, 1923, your committee was duly appointed. See copy of minutes hereto annexed, made part hereof and marked Exhibit "A." In pursuance of said appointment, your committee took charge of said property, and granted letters of dismissal to the Misses Howell to unite with the Mount Vernon Presbyterian Church, and to three other members residing at Santa Paula, California. Said committee entered into an agreement to sell said church property to the "Pride of the Valley Lodge No. 1068, I. O. O. F., of Industry," for the price or sum of Sixteen Hundred ($1,600.00) Dollars, a copy of said agreement is hereto attached, made a part hereof and marked Exhibit "C." That said sum is a fair, marketable price for the same, and a higher and a better price than could be obtained at a public sale, and the sale may be made without injury, or prejudice to any trust, charity or purpose for which the same is held and without violation of any law which might confer any immunity or exemption from sale or alienation. In pursuance of said sale agreement, a survey was made by R. C. Bayne, a civil engineer, who found the N. W. corner of said church building extending over the line and into the property of William B. Miller and wife, as shown by the blue print marked Exhibit "B." This necessitated the purchase of a triangular piece of ground in order to satisfy the purchaser, and by deed dated July 11, 1927, and to be recorded, the said William B. Miller, et ux., granted and conveyed said triangular piece to the Trustees of Redstone Presbytery.
All of the foregoing recited actions of your committee have been taken under the authority of Redstone Presbytery, the superior judicatory with which the aforesaid First Presbyterian Church was affiliated, and the proper authority for that purpose, as provided for under the Act of Assembly, approved May 17, 1921, P. L. 861. Your petitioners therefore showing to your Honorable Court that Redstone Presbytery is the proper authority to dispose of said real estate, it having the power under its Charter (inter alia) "to acquire and take by gift, grant, devise or otherwise howsoever, and to hold real estate and personal property of any and every kind to an amount not exceeding that limited by law; and to sell, transfer and convey the same, by its proper officers; to use and apply its funds from time to time as the said Presbytery shall direct, to erect and maintain houses of worship and such other buildings, as in the judgment of Presbytery shall be necessary for carrying on its work; no real estate shall be conveyed or encumbered, unless by resolution of said Presbytery regularly passed, authorizing the Trustees and officers so to do." Such resolution was passed at Belle Vernon, Pa., September 22, 1924. See minutes of Pres. Vol. 12, page 443, and Exhibit "A" of this petition. And your petitioners further showing that neither congregation nor Trustees of said First Presbyterian Church of Industry are in existence, and that the organization has become inactive and extinct, and the property liable to be wasted and destroyed, pray your Honorable Court to appoint the Trustees of Redstone Presbytery, to make, execute and deliver unto the Pride of the Valley Lodge No. 1068, I. O. O. F., of Industry, a good and sufficient deed for the real estate shown in blue print marked Exhibit "B" and they will ever pray.
WILLIAM E. FRANKLIN,
FRAON S. KOHLER,
HARRY M. KILGORE.
ORDER OF COURT.
And now, to-wit: December 7th, 1927, the within petition presented in open court and upon consideration thereof it appearing to the Court that the facts set forth in said petition are true and correct, on motion of Thomas E. Finley, attorney for petitioners, a rule is granted to show cause why said First Presbyterian Church property should not be sold to the Pride of the Valley Lodge No. 1068, I. O. O. F., of Industry, Pennsylvania, by the Trustees of Redstone Presbytery, as prayed for. Said rule returnable to and hearing fixed for the 14th day of January, 1928, at 9:30 a. m. Notice to be published once a week for four successive weeks in Pittsburgh Legal Journal and the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

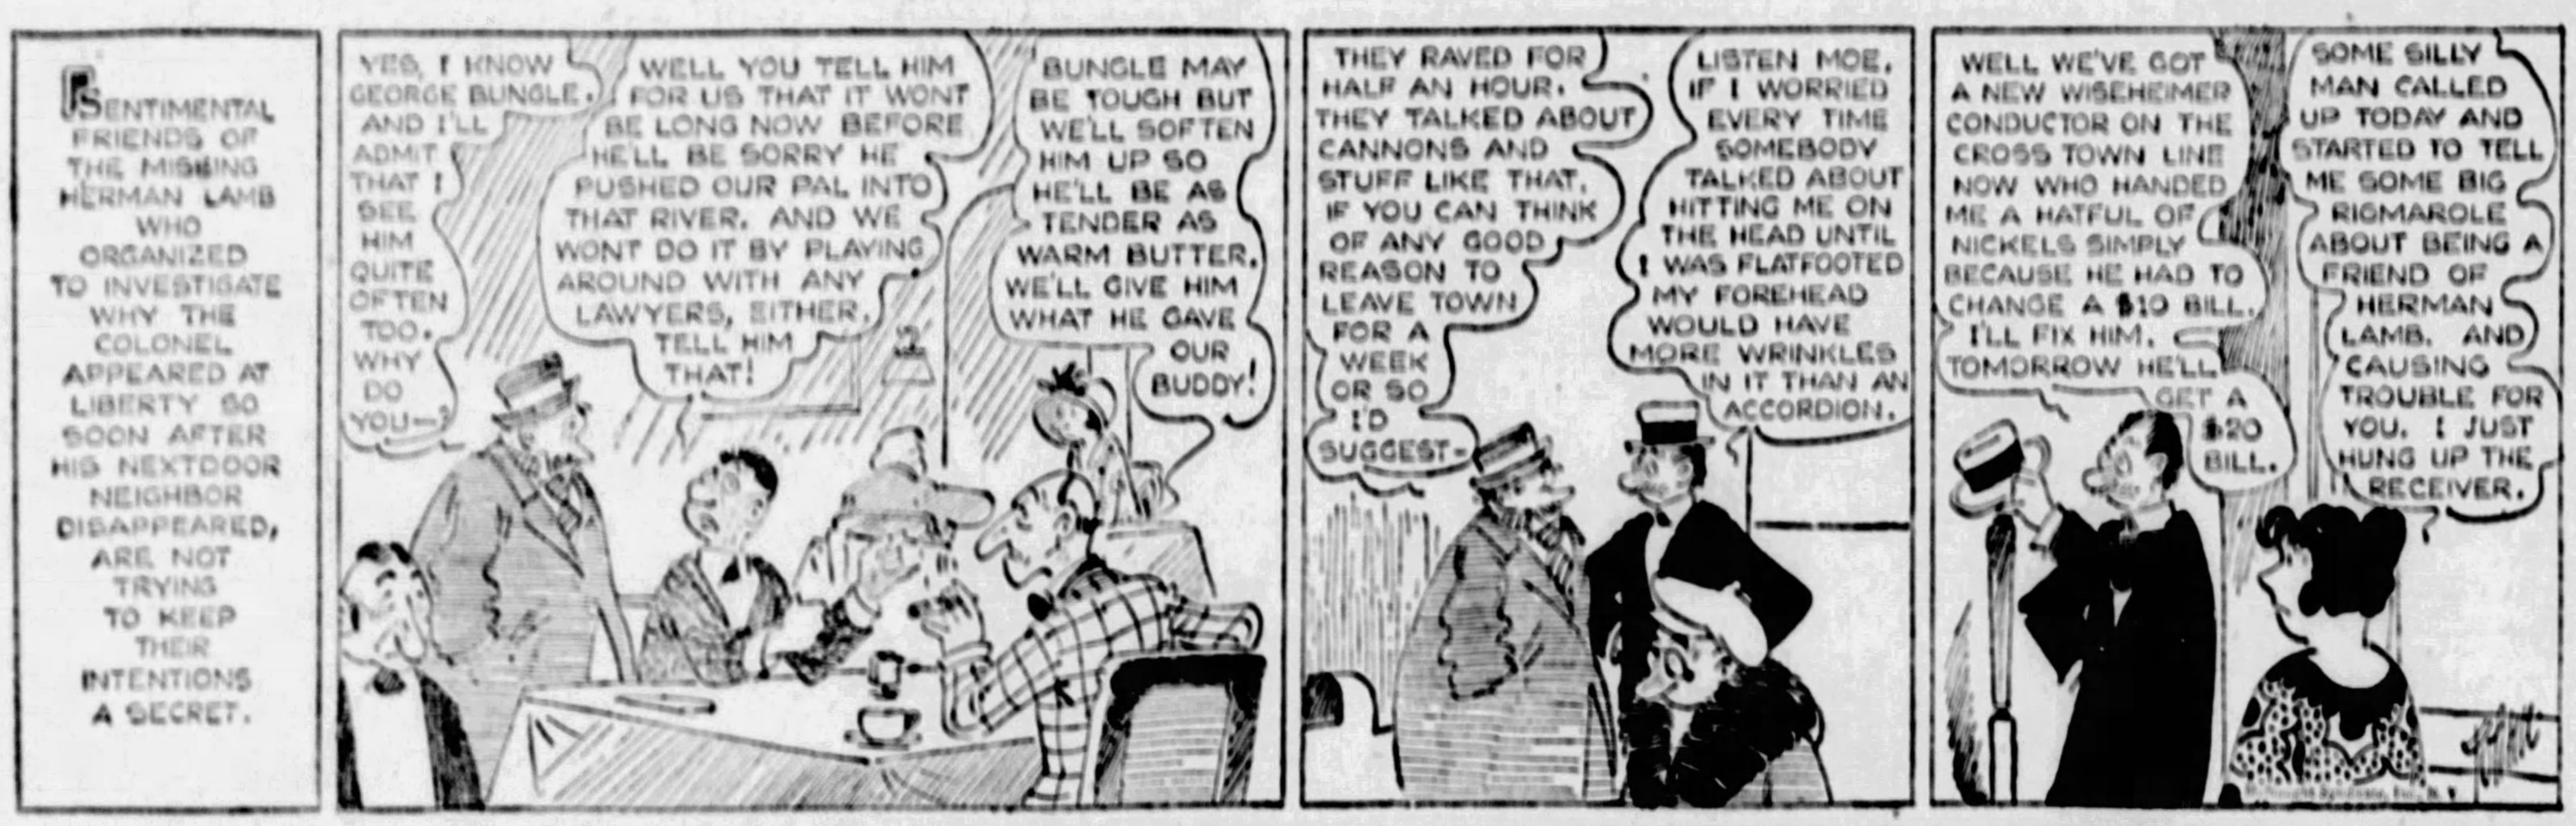
THE BUNGLE FAMILY

Herman's Friends Call Their Shots



SENTIMENTAL FRIENDS OF THE MISSING HERMAN LAMB WHO ORGANIZED TO INVESTIGATE WHY THE COLONEL APPEARED AT LIBERTY SO SOON AFTER HIS NEXTDOOR NEIGHBOR DISAPPEARED, ARE NOT TRYING TO KEEP THEIR INTENTIONS A SECRET.
YES, I KNOW GEORGE BUNGLE, AND I'LL ADMIT THAT I SEE HIM QUITE OFTEN TOO. WHY DO YOU—
WELL YOU TELL HIM FOR US THAT IT WONT BE LONG NOW BEFORE HE'LL BE SORRY HE PUSHED OUR PAL INTO THAT RIVER, AND WE WONT DO IT BY PLAYING AROUND WITH ANY LAWYERS, EITHER. TELL HIM THAT!
BUNGLE MAY BE TOUGH BUT WE'LL SOFTEN HIM UP SO HE'LL BE AS TENDER AS WARM BUTTER. WE'LL GIVE HIM WHAT HE GAVE OUR BUDDY!
THEY RAVED FOR HALF AN HOUR. THEY TALKED ABOUT CANNONS AND STUFF LIKE THAT. IF YOU CAN THINK OF ANY GOOD REASON TO LEAVE TOWN FOR A WEEK OR SO I'D SUGGEST—LISTEN MOE, IF I WORRIED EVERY TIME SOMEBODY TALKED ABOUT HITTING ME ON THE HEAD UNTIL I WAS FLATFOOTED MY FOREHEAD WOULD HAVE MORE WRINKLES IN IT THAN AN ACCORDION.
WELL WE'VE GOT A NEW WISEHEIMER CONDUCTOR ON THE CROSS TOWN LINE NOW WHO HANDED ME A HATFUL OF NICKELS SIMPLY BECAUSE HE HAD TO CHANGE A $10 BILL. I'LL FIX HIM. TOMORROW HE'LL GET A $20 BILL.
SOME SILLY MAN CALLED UP TODAY AND STARTED TO TELL ME SOME BIG RIGMAROLE ABOUT BEING A FRIEND OF HERMAN LAMB, AND CAUSING TROUBLE FOR YOU. I JUST HUNG UP THE RECEIVER.

Judge Lindsey's companionate marriage plan will never be accepted by the public. It ignores the foundation on which the American home is built—alimony.

Why not a combination marriage license and divorce decree with alimony coupons, like those on bonds?

And every little boy in school should be provided with a penny bank—contents of which should be regularly deposited in a special future alimony savings account.

It must be amusing for people in Hollywood to hear Judge Lindsey's old-fashioned ideas.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

Dear Emb. Mom.:

A man bought $4 worth of goods in my store the other day and gave me a $10 bill. On my way to the cash register I found that there were really two $10 bills stuck together.

Imagine my embarrassment when I couldn't make up my mind whether I should keep the extra $10 or divide it with my partner.

By MR. FRISBY

It is, indeed, difficult, at times, to hold back the tears when the world cries out for needed reforms. Today I received a cablegram from Honolulu which wrenched my heart nearly out of its socket. Thousands of girls in Honolulu, I am told, are wearing grass skirts! Think of it! Winter is coming on, and they hardly know which way to turn. Read the following letter and if you can refrain from sending $10 for our Fund to Buy Mother Hubbards for Hawaiians then you are just an old meanie, as Mr. McIntyre says. Here is the letter—

Mr. Horace Filmore Frisby,

My Dear, Darling Uncle Filly—

You are an Elk, aren't you? So's my old man. You are brothers. That makes you my uncle.

Honolulu needs you, Uncle. Won't you do something for us? The crops are bad and we hardly have enough grass for our skirts. It is disgraceful and humiliating the way we have to go around.

Your niece,

HEY HEY VERA.

(You aren't married, are you?)

BUGS BAER Says

THE Athletic Commission has just emerged from its usual state of coma, jocularly known as an executive session.

No one can say that our boxing commission started the new year right by ending the old year wrong. It has finally conceded that the third man in the ring shall be the sole judge of foul punches.

Heretofore, the third bozo among the ropes was up there merely to have his decisions reversed by a couple of button-eyed judges who put a new slant on prophesying and soothsaying by making their second guesses first.

ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

After the fight was over the referee would hand down his written decision which the judges would neutralize with two comic valentines.

We still contend that the only foul committed in the Dempsey-Sharkey fight was when they sold tickets for it. However, the referee claims there was no foul established when Dempsey low-bridged Sharkey with the groundhog edition of his rabbit punch. One judge says he saw a foul. The other judge says no.

If Glick had had a nail file in his hand during the fight with Tod Morgan he would have sawed Tod in half. He must have trained under a table for that contest, for none of his punches were high enough to knock a button off a vest.

Under the new rules the referee will have the supreme nodding privileges over fouls. It will not be necessary to wake up the judges until the 15 rounds are over.

Fighting now steps back to the old days of Eagle-Eye Charley White, Eddie Graney, George Silver and Wyatt Earp. When Earp refereed the fight between Fitz and Tom Sharkey, he saw a foul and the boys paid off on the line. That punch landed far above the plimsoll mark, but Earp claimed that Fitz had fouled and a big gun in his hand seemed to agree with him. Fitz squared things later at Coney with Charley White refereeing.

Under the new ruling the fighters will be allowed 15 fouls each. But they must bank the last.

There will be no outside interference with the footwork and clinching. The only improvement we can suggest now is to make the ringposts 15 feet higher. Then it will be possible for a fighter to climb one and get out of the battle zone.

If the commish really wants to eliminate the groundhog punch it should build a four-foot fence across the ring and let the fighters slug each other over the top.

Mistress: "Give him a lump of sugar, Mary."

Motorists' Choice

Magistrate—Could the motorist have avoided hitting you?

Plaintiff—Ay, your worship. 'E 'ad the choice of 'itting me or the missis and 'e picked me.

"Are you angry, dear?"
"Don't talk to me!"
"May I kiss you?"
"I don't want any of your lip."

Best Crime Deterrent Is Swift Punishment

Quick, certain and adequate punishment of criminals is society's only means of checking criminality. Before punishment can be meted out, however, malefactors must be apprehended. This was accomplished recently in the case of the "Night Rider Gang," arrested on December 5 by Detective James L. McInerney.

McInerney had part of his reward a few days ago when he stood in court and heard pleas of guilty, assuring long terms in the penitentiary, entered by the four young men who made up this crew of desperadoes. A young girl also admitted participation in several of the "jobs" in which the men had been engaged.

In that particular case McInerney had the satisfaction, shared by the public, of knowing that punishment was to be quick, certain and adequate. Peace officers as well as all thoughtful persons know that punishment will not do away with all crime, but they do know that a criminal in jail cannot commit offenses against society, which peace officers are paid to guard.

They are encouraged in the pursuit of their duty when justice is swift as in the case of the "Night Rider Gang." The rapid disposal of this case not only spurs the police, but it serves as a warning to the young thugs who have been operating with what seems to have been great success in Pittsburgh recently.

It is useless to point out that for the most of them ultimate detection and arrest is certain. If they had the intelligence to appreciate that fact they would not be criminals. Good police work, similar to that performed by McInerney, and quick justice, like that given the "Night Rider Gang," is society's best safeguard.

It Is Vital the People Be Given the Facts

As concerns the Western Hemisphere, American foreign policy may be said to revolve about the Monroe Doctrine. The protection of the Panama Canal is a foremost feature of the nation's naval program.

Because of these considerations, threats against American interests in Central America are threats against the nation's most vital concerns.

Absolute security for the canal is necessary if our Navy is to be adequate protection for both Atlantic and Pacific coasts.

This has been recognized from the day when construction of the Panama Canal began. Accordingly, about the time the canal was completed, the United States bought from Denmark the Virgin Islands because of their importance as defences to the canal. About the same time, we got from the Republic of Nicaragua, by treaty, the right to build a canal across that country from Atlantic to Pacific via the San Juan River and Lake Nicaragua.

At that time nobody imagined the Nicaragua Canal would be necessary in any near future, as Panama would easily handle the traffic. But already business at Panama is so heavy that construction at Nicaragua is seriously discussed. So the Nicaraguan rights, which were bought for $3,000,000 primarily to keep them from going to any other power, already have become highly important.

Both the protection of Panama and the security of our rights in Nicaragua require maintenance of orderly, stable, and well disposed governments throughout Central America. This has therefore become a fundamental American policy in the Caribbean. And just as it has become increasingly important to the United States, it has been increasingly opposed by Mexico.

In the 1914 treaty with Nicaragua, both that country and the United States recognized their common interest in protecting Panama. That was declared one purpose of the treaty, which in Article 2 says:

> "Article 2. To enable the United States to protect the Panama Canal and the proprietary rights granted to the United States by the foregoing article (that is, right to construct a Nicaragua canal), and also to enable the United States to take any necessary measures to the end contemplated herein, Nicaragua hereby leases for 99 years to the United States the islands in the Caribbean Sea known as Great Corn Island and Little Corn Island; and Nicaragua grants to the United States for 99 years the right to establish, operate and maintain a naval base at such place on the territory of Nicaragua bordering upon the Gulf of Fonseca as the United States may select."

Thus the United States has rights to build a canal across Nicaragua, and to establish naval bases at the Corn Islands in the Caribbean and at the Gulf of Fonseca, in the Pacific.

Should Mexican plottings in Guatemala and Nicaragua result in establishing a Central American regime hostile to the United States, all these rights would be instantly menaced.

In the event of war between the United States and any important power, an unfriendly Mexican regime would be in sympathy if not alliance with the enemies of the United States. Such was Mexico's attitude during the World War. Such unquestionably would be the attitude of any government of Mexico guided by the policies of the present Calles government.

The consequences of such a situation are obvious. With our fleet divided, or perhaps on the wrong side of the country at the opening of war, a Mexico-Central America League against the United States might destroy the canal before we could possibly get forces on the ground to protect it. A supreme disaster to this country would be brought in sight.

Suggestion of such danger is not vain imagining. Ever since Panama opened, Mexico has intrigued to bring about such a situation. To the utmost that it dared, the Carranza government sided with Germany, because of hatred toward the United States. The danger had been foreseen by our government, and frankly recognized in the treaty with Nicaragua.

This whole situation was regarded by President Coolidge as so critically important that he discussed it in a lengthy special message to Congress within the present year. Since that message, conditions have become even more threatening. The Calles government, with this anti-American policy always in mind, has been fixing its grip on Mexico, through measures drastic without precedent, even in that country. Whatever strengthens Calles in Mexico, inevitably weakens the United States in the canal area.

The time has come when the people of the United States must be permitted to know the whole truth. The one way to place the full truth before them, is for the Senate, now, without fear or hesitation, to lay bare the complete facts about the activities and purposes of the present regime in Mexico.

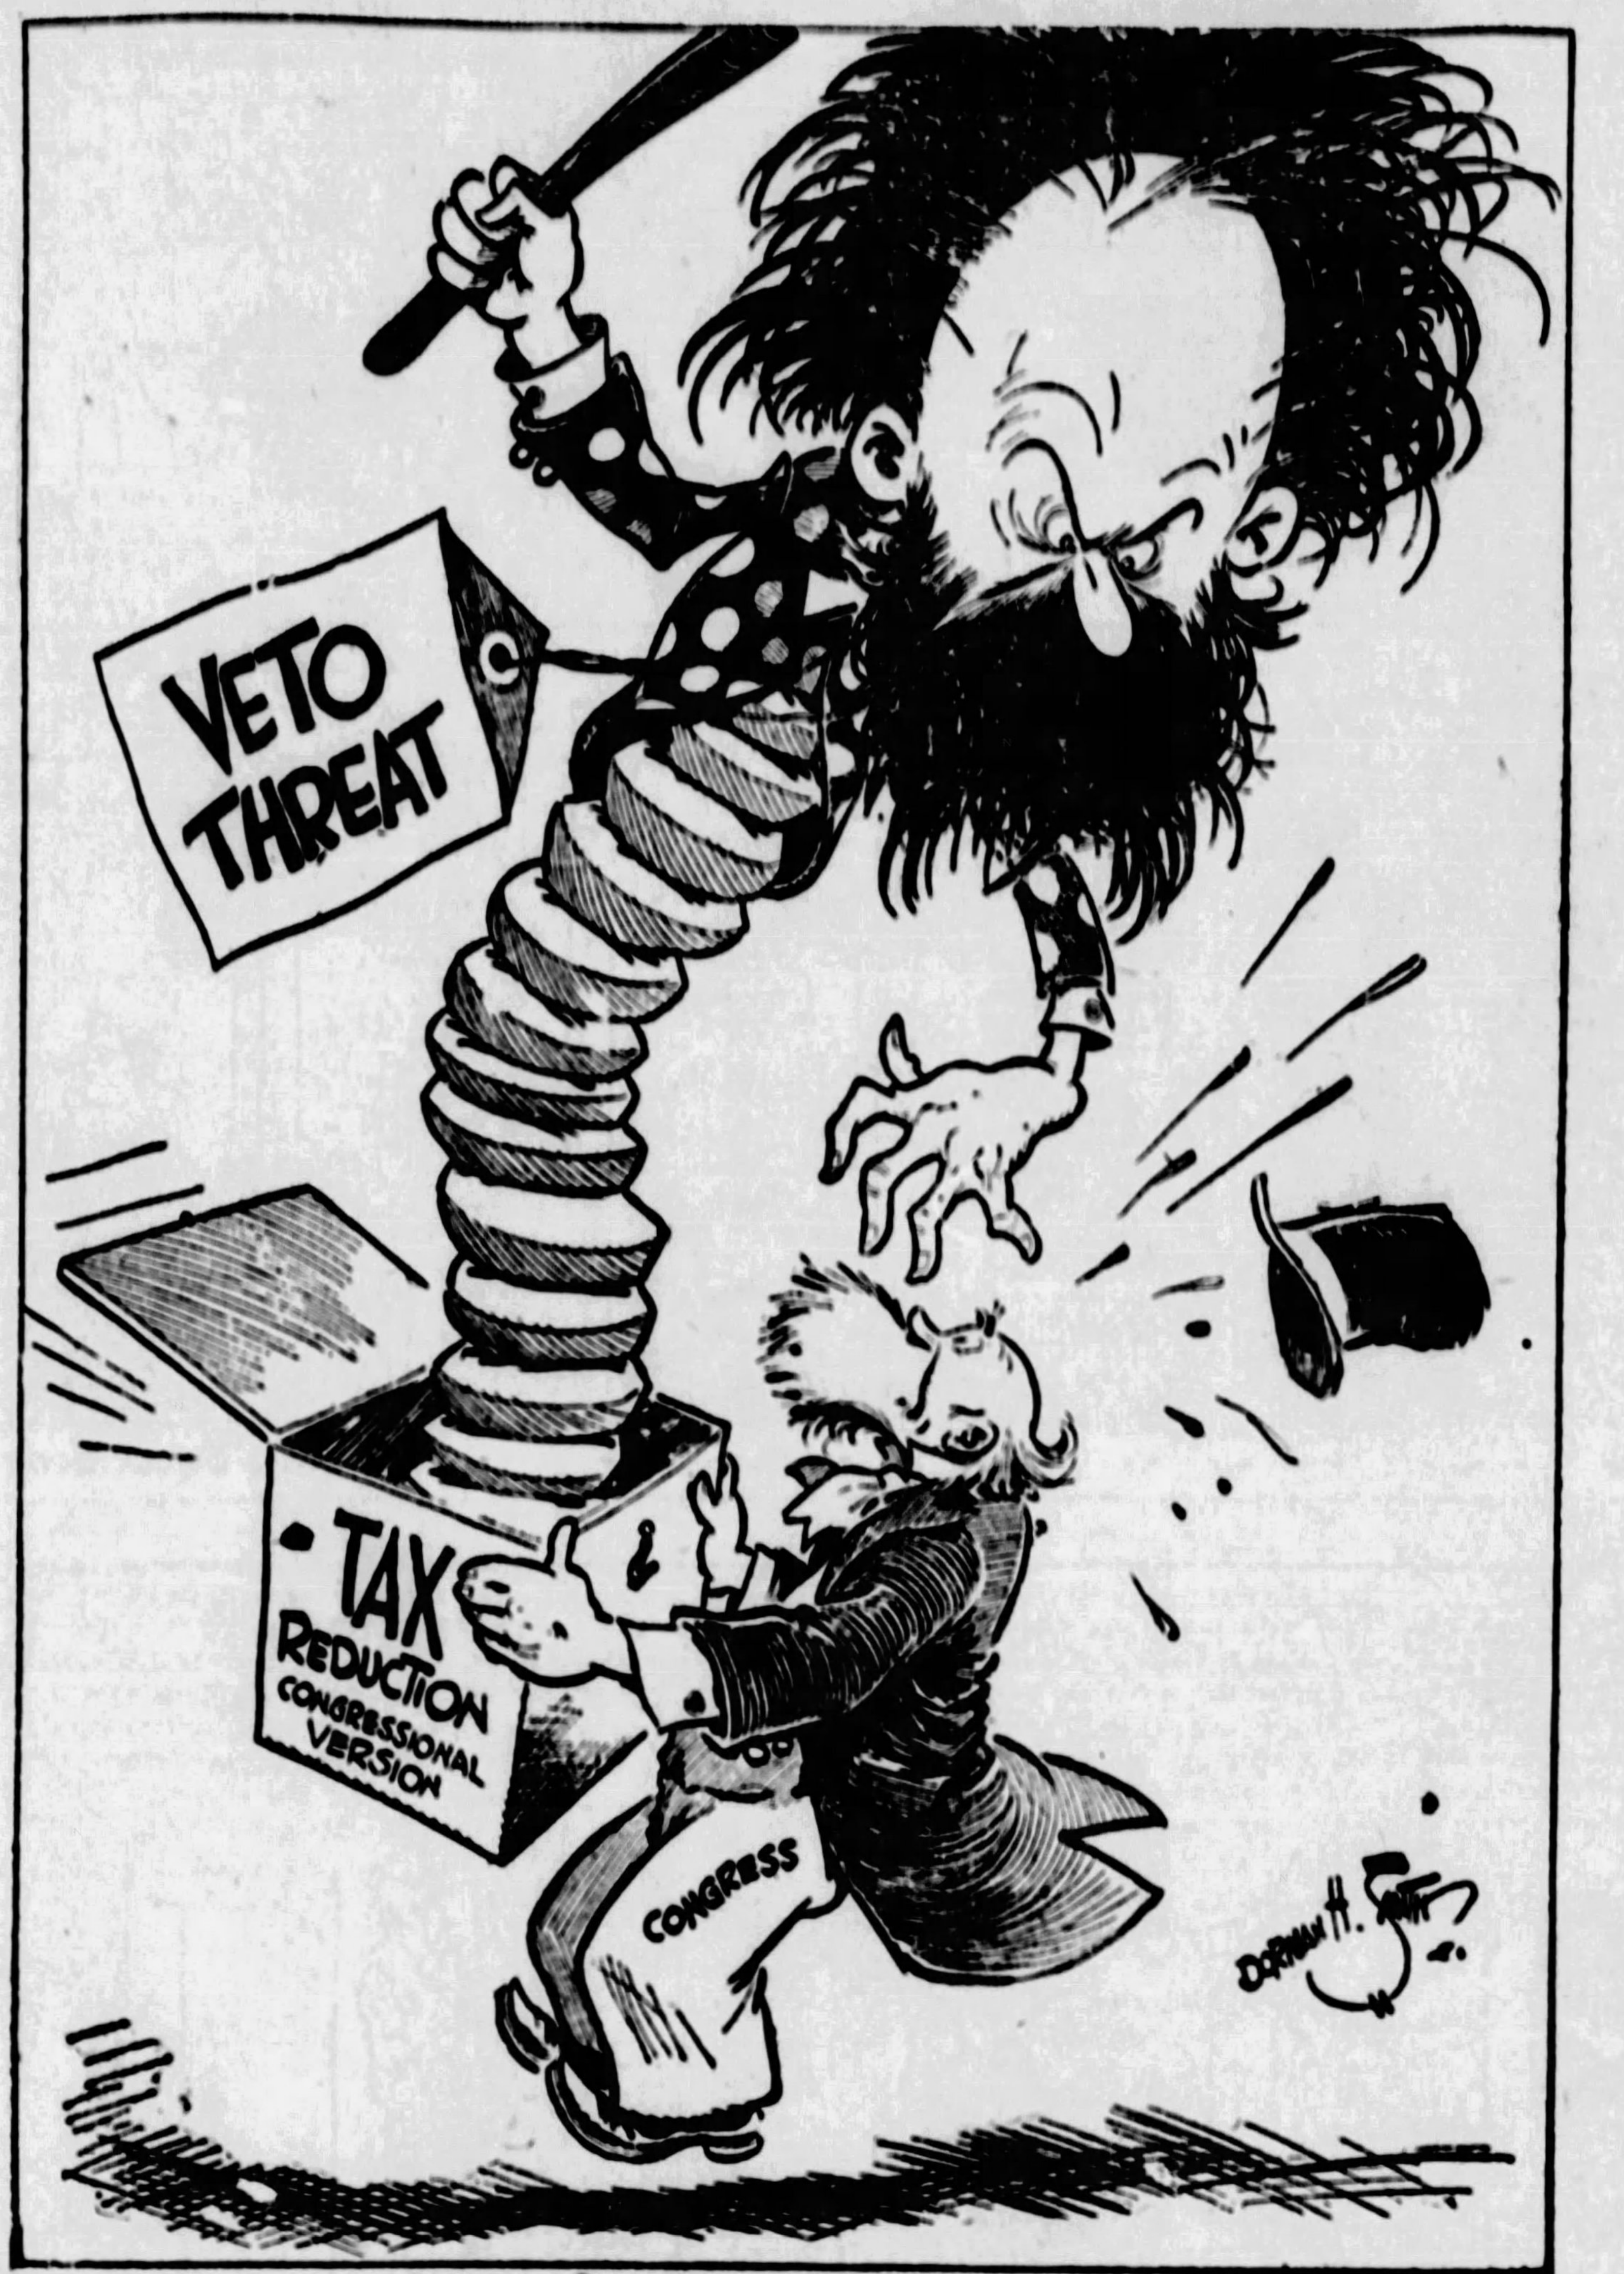
Queen Cuts Dress Bills

The world has been telling King George for many years that he has a good wife. Now Queen Mary has cinched this matter in the minds of struggling husbands the world over by cutting down her dress bills to the absolute minimum for the coming year.

The Queen usually gives away 60 to 70 gowns at this season, but this year is getting rid of only 20. She will wear the others again.

The incident is notable for the reason that when a queen sets an example a lot of other women are apt to heed it. And then, again——.

A REAL KICK OUT OF THIS



Garrett P Serviss Says:

What Blew Up?

THE bulletins of the Harvard Astronomical Observatory have lately contained a most interesting series of notes and observations on meteors and fireballs. Dr. Willard J. Fisher, of the observatory has organized what we may perhaps call a campaign for more knowledge about these objects, in which the intelligent public is invited to participate, provided that the participants will observe certain common sense precautions about giving time, place of observation, direction of motion, etc., without which reports about meteors are generally of very little or no use. As he points out, the prime necessity is that the public should have a widespread knowledge of the constellations, or the geography of the heavens—a thing not so difficult to gain, and the gaining of which affords great pleasure, while it stamps the possessor of such simple knowledge as a true cosmopolite.

On August 10 last a real shower of fireballs flew over southern New England, but nobody would have known of its occurrence but for a request circulated through the newspapers by Dr. Fisher for chance observations of a bright meteor that had been seen at Bridgeport, Mass., on that date. Within a few days two hundred and forty-nine reports were received from observers scattered over an area extending from Nova Scotia to Maryland and from Long Island to near Ottawa, Canada.

Study of the data furnished by these reports showed that the observers from their widespread points of observation had each seen a part of a shower of fireballs, "so sparse that any single observer would hardly see more than one, and distributed mostly over New England." The objects were brilliant, notable for green and blue colorations, for long tails which quickly vanished, and for numerous nearly horizontal courses.

For the evening about forty distinct meteors were reported, of which 26, constituting the fireball shower, flashed into view within a few minutes of 8 p. m., Eastern standard time, all traveling in a more or less easterly direction. The probable ending points could be fixed in six cases. It was the night of the "August meteors," and some of the scattered objects seen no doubt belonged to that well-known "shower," the rush of fireballs happening to coincide with it.

It may be well to say that for convenience a distinction is made between meteors which belong to the class often called "shooting-stars," and the much more brilliant fireballs, which often greatly outshine the brightest stars and the largest planets. When a fireball succeeds in reaching the ground it is ranked as a meteorite, like the specimens to be seen in many large museums.

The origin of these objects is still buried in mystery. The fact that in form they are fragments instead of complete bodies is full of extraordinary suggestions as to their place and manner of origin. Dr. Fisher remarks that the iron meteorites are crystallographic fragments, while the stone meteorites are fracture fragments. But, as he says, "Fragmentation implies an original catastrophe (or more than one), the breaking up of some body or bodies." He expressly refrains from considering what such a catastrophe might have been, but adds, "that it was vast and violent: the great crystal irons and lesser but more frequent stones are witnesses."

Meteorites are not the only objects that seem to record the occurrence of some terrible explosion, or series of explosions, in ancient times, in interstellar or interplanetary space. The small planets, usually called asteroids, of which about a thousand have been discovered in the solar system, may be fragments of a blown-up planet.

Prison Preferred

BY NO means an isolated case is that of Sam Wilson, of Texas. Given a life sentence for murder, he was paroled later by Governor Miriam Ferguson.

Now Sam is clamoring to get back in prison and spend the rest of his life there. Making a living in the outside world has not the certainty that it has in a state penitentiary. Outside of jail almost anything, even starvation, can happen to a man.

Once Overs

By J. J. MUNDY

No End to the Day

GREAT responsibility means a heavy load to carry.

True, a real executive delegates much arduous work to his subordinates.

It may be your job to do this detail work under an executive.

You compare your work with that of some of your acquaintances and think your work harder than many whom you know.

You put in so many more hours than the regular working hours.

Or possibly your business contact requires more working hours than that of many another business.

But do you give thought to your work after you have left shop or office?

No, for you think that the specified hours are the full time, and you believe that you have done your full duty when you work the number of hours for which you are paid.

How does your superior feel in regard to this matter?

If he had taken an attitude like yours he could not have reached the position of executive.

To be responsible for other men's work exacts a toll you are unwilling to give, and yet you lament the fact that you a mere detail worker.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

Man's Portion

SOMETHING of light and music,
Something of joy profound,
These are to be man's portion,
Ever, while earth goes 'round;
Beauty of robins singing,
Beauty of white clouds winging,
Rapture of sight and sound.

Something of pain and sorrow,
Glimpses of grief profound,
These are man's portion ever,
Long as the earth spins 'round;
Sadness of cold rain falling,
Sadness of dark tides calling,
Trials that still abound.

Yet, to man's glory ever,
Sorrow is always brief,
Faith in the Springtime never
Shadowed by falling leaf;
Brightness each day comes flooding
Hours with some promise budding,
Gladness still conquers grief.

Isn't It So?

Ye Towne Gossip

by K. C. B.

IT USED to be.
THAT ALL THEY did.
WAS TO put the tickets.
IN AN envelope.
AND WRITE a letter.
THAT MADE you feel.
YOU'D BE a piker.
IF YOU sent them back.
AND THEREUPON.
YOU'D write a check.
FOR WHATEVER it was.
THE TICKETS cost.
AND MAIL the check.
AND GET no pleasure.
IN DOING it.
FOR THE very good reason.
YOU HAD a feeling.
YOU'D BEEN held up.
AND ANYWAY.
THEY'VE CHANGED IT now.
AND WHAT they do.
IS TO telephone.
AND IT'S happened to me.
AND THEY start right in.
WITH A lot of palaver.
AND MAKE you think.
YOU'RE BEING invited.
TO A WHITE HOUSE breakfast.
AND YOU get all ready.
TO SAY to them.
HOW KIND they are.
AND OF course you'll go
AND THEN they'll tell you.
THE PRICE of the tickets.
AND ASK how many.
THEY'LL MAIL to you.
AND THEN right away.
YOU BEGIN to sink.
AND GOING down.
YOU SAY to them.
IN A weak little voice.
"YOU MAY mail me two."
OR MAYBE five.
IF YOU don't think fast.
AND THEN you sit down.
AND CRAB for an hour.
AND THE other night.
OUR TELEPHONE rang.
AND JUST as soon.
AS THE man began.
I KNEW what it was.
AND I said to him.
"I'M VERY sorry.
* * *
"BUT I make it a rule.
"TO BUY no tickets.
"BY TELEPHONE."
AND TWO days later.
I RECEIVED five tickets.
AT FIVE dollars each.
AND A letter that said.
"HERE ARE the tickets.
"YOU ORDERED by phone."
AND I sat right down.
AND SENT them back.
AND I'M hoping now.
THAT THEY'LL move my name.
FROM THE easy list.
TO THE piker list.
I THANK you.

It is difficult to tell whether the health expert who declares he can keep us young at 150 is boasting or paying us a compliment.

Somebody has just discovered that King George II had 400 cooks, which may explain why he suffered a permanent loss of appetite when still a young man.

SUCH IS FAME—George Remus is referred to in Cincinnati dispatches as the "famous bootlegger." But there are "illustrious" men in the same line of business in almost every community.

The wife of the "Average Man" has been heard from. She insists he is better than the "average husband," but he could be that and still be about zero in the percentage column of the average man.

BE A PITTSBURGH BOOSTER

New York Day by Day

by O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Dec. 30.—Thoughts while strolling: Bon bons named for a night club hostess. Madison Square Garden. Which, as Robert Garland observes, is not only not on Madison Square, but is not a garden. And if those are not enough nots here are extra ones—not, not, not. With love and kisses!

The tragic, young and beautiful girls with fat and guttural yogis of the flesh. All the fur seems a bright yellow. Hepner, the wig man. Wonder whatever became of face veil manufacturers? Messmore—there's a name—Kendall. Fanny Ward's husband's whiskers.

Fascinating tobacco shop windows—racks of pipes, deep rubber pouches and bright tins of tobacco. "Maloney—Spaghetti." What's wrong with that picture? Dr. George A. Dorsey, who has the benign face of a village grocer. An Arabian rug seller following a drunk up a side street.

Those playwrights who try to be shy yet luminous. A gum-chewing flapcake window juggler. Otis Skinner's talented daughter Cornelia. The open fronted ptomaine parlors with mechanical pianos and hairy armed attendants. An angry face hurls his derby at a taxi cab driver. Will Page, the publicity man.

Muzzled trained bears waddling into a stage entrance. Curtain time crowds in ticket agencies waiting for "returns." The perfume parlor with a sidewalk spray of odors—changed daily. Theater slogan: "Courtesy—But Not Overdone." A hint to movie palaces.

The flashy clothing stores open at night. Will Lengel, editor of Smart Set. A lady sighs: "I'm tired of being a blonde." The silhouetted tightly-gripped couples in upstairs dancing academies. Old Mississippi—Broadway's grinning ebony hued hackman.

Immobile lady "decoys" knitting in sight-seeing buses. And the industrious barkers who cry: "Fast car, going right out!" The Broadway florist who resembles King George even to knock knees. A sprinkle of rain and the umbrella sellers swarm Times Square.

Someone sends an invitation to the "private showing" of the latest dance steps. And in the Bronx they had a grand opening of a delicatessen store.

On a side street this morning one of those professional busybodies inquired why I kept a dog in the city. I indicated it might be, by odd coincidence, my own affair. He followed me for a half block mumbling utter disgust. New York often appears a city where people mind their own business and then again it appears as meddlesome as any other town.

There are six blind piano tuners in Greater New York and all, it is said, are in constant demand. Nature has compensated for their lack of sight in a tonal accuracy superior to that of the average person.

Everything that used to be called "a stunt" is now known as "a racket." The origin is claimed by Chicago, where it was first applied to the bootlegging game. It has achieved the title for a Broadway play.

One of the picturesque Tenderloin racketeers is a chunky, bediamonded fellow with the sickly pallor of a fish's belly. He grips his cigar between flashing gold teeth and is reputed to be quick on the draw. He is the sort whose entrance into a cafe or supper club causes a quick ominous hush. His companion is a frail baby type of blonde who seems happy just to cup her face in her hands across from him in an attitude of worshipful adoration.

A department store floor walker, all fluffed up with a frock coat, striped trousers and lapel gardenia, eyed me coldly this afternoon when I mustered sufficient courage to inquire directions to the basement. "The basement," he said haughtily, "is down stairs." I merely replied with something nasty in my native Polish and passed on."

Companionate Marriage

By DR. FRANK CRANE

The whole difficulty with our thinking about the marriage question lies in our two different points of view. One looks at the matter from a religious and sentimental standpoint. It regards marriage as sacred and would brook nothing that threatens to disrupt it.

The other attempts to apply reason to the matter and to deal with practical situations.

It looks to a by-standing mind as if two people who discover they cannot get along ought to be able to secure a divorce as easily as they contract a marriage. On the contrary, however, we find the laws of almost every state fulminating against collusion. There must be no agreement between the dissenting husband and wife. The one must make charges and the other must defend them. Somehow or other it implies that there must be some sort of scandal connected with divorce.

The effort of Judge Lindsey and others to establish companionate marriage is an effort to apply common sense and rational adjustment to a complicated problem. These people are not immoral and they are not aiming at free love or multiplying the opportunities for illicit or irresponsible relations.

One view of marriage is that its ultimate object is simply and solely the creation of children.

There is another view of it, however, which is that marriage may be simply for companionship, that solace and pleasure which are enjoyed in the permanent relationship of man and woman without thought or intention of progeny.

The other day Maj.-Gen. Robert Lee Bullard, commander of the Second Army in the World War, was married at a rather advanced age, and he was married by a Catholic chaplain. In this marriage there was certainly no thought of children. These two people simply wanted the satisfaction that comes from companionship. They probably think rightly that their lives would be more ordered and their conduct would be more surely moral if they live together as man and wife than otherwise.

The theory of those in favor of companionate marriages is that such relations will, in most cases, result in permanent attachments and possibly eventually in children.

The existence of a large number of unmarried men and women between the ages of 20 and 30 is not good for this country. It provokes irregularity of conduct, and these people, to be good citiens, ought to be married.

Those in favor of companionate marriage think that it would benefit the morals of the country and restrain people from irregular lives. They ought to be given credit at least for their good intentions.

Not All for Liquor

UNCLE SAM is quite a fellow to live next to year in and year out. Figures show that people from the United States spent $8,000,000 in touring the province of Ontario this year. The report admits that some of it went for liquor, under Ontario's new liquor law.

But just to show that all the visitors did not go there to quench thirst, gasoline, meals, hunting permits and souvenirs are also mentioned in the report. This relieves our minds.

Tales That Are Told

He Was Right

A FARMER'S daughter started to practice singing. One day her father came in from the fields unexpectedly.

"What's that extraordinary noise?" he inquired.

"That, dear," replied his wife, proudly, "is Jane cultivating her voice."

"Cultivating! Huh!" ejaculated the farmer. "That ain't cultivating—that's harrowing!"

Her Angel Ways

A MAN unaccustomed to praising his wife went out of his way to call her an angel.

"Mary," he said one morning, "you are an angel," and she felt charmed all day.

In the evening she ventured to ask him why she had been so honored.

"Well," said the wily one, "you are always flitting about; you are always harping on things; and, by your own account, you have nothing to wear!"

Name of Meaning

THE Christian names of the baby were "Alfred Homer," and the minister, making the usual entries, paused.

"Strange," he thought, as he recalled Homer, the Greek poet. "A queer name for the son of a laborer!" Then he turned to the proud father. "You favorite poet?" he asked.

"Poet, sir?" repeated the man, with a surprised look: "no, I keep pigeons!"—Belfast Evening Telegraph.

What He Wanted

THE train was starting when a woman entered and dropped into a seat opposite a young man.

After a while the young man said, politely: "Excuse me, miss, but—"

"If you speak or annoy me, I'll pull the communication cord," snapped the girl.

After a long pause the young man made another attempt to speak, but the girl turned away and took no notice.

At last the train slowed up at a station and the young man rose to his feet.

"I don't care whether you like it or not," he said, "but could I have that bag of grapes you've been sitting on for the last six miles?"
